TELL HOW GANG CZAR RESENTED RISE TO POWER

Slain Track Chief's Hideout Found.

Mystery! Where's Al?

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12 [Special]. — The whereabouts of Al Capone became a mystery tonight after reports were circulated that he had been released from the federal prison on Terminal Island, Cal. It was reported that Capone hac been taken out of the prison and was headed for a hospital for further treatment for paresis. His release was scheduled to take place next Sunday.

Asked whether Capone had been freed from federal custody, James V. Bennett, director of the federal bureau of prisons, said: "I am not at liberty to say where Capone is."

Capone was sentenced to prison for 10 years for income tax evasion on Oct. 14, 1931. Appeals kept him in jail in Chicago until May 5, 1932, when he was taken to Atlanta federal penitentiary. He was transferred to Alcatraz prison, San Francisco, in August, 1934, and removed from Alcatraz to Terminal Island for hospitalization last Jan. 7.

For more than two years before his shotgun assassination last Wednesday, Eddie J. O'Hare, millionaire front man for the Capone gang syndicate, lived in the knowledge that two convicts freed from Alcatraz said that Al Capone was angry "at Eddie" and was making threats against him.

This was learned yesterday. Investigators who have been seeking the shotgun murderers have been convinced from the start that O'Hare's death must have been decreed by the gang. They reasoned that no other mob would have dared to harm the Capone organization's front man without at least its acquiescence.

O'Hare, it is now learned, received his warning from a friend of the two convicts. Whether or not they knew O'Hare is not clear, but their friend did. The released convicts told this friend of O'Hare that Capone was raging against his race track manager. Investigators could only speculate on what aroused Capone's wrath.

Three Possibilities Studied.

It could be, they reasoned:

[1] A possible refusal by O'Hare to contribute liberally to the flow of cash understood to have been sent by the gang to their leader's family. [2] jealousy of O'Hare's growing wealth, and [3], Capone's fear that O'Hare was trying to get control of Capone's interests.

O'Hare's reaction to the threat could be judged by certain of his actions during the last two years. It was learned that he invested in insurance annuities, made additional provision for his three children in a large trust fund, and provided himself with a secret hideout in an apartment building he owned in Rogers Park, the discovery of which was a major development of the investigation yesterday.

On the other hand, investigators said, it is possible O'Hare believed that if he entrenched himself firmly enough with the local Capone organization, no harm could come to him from Capone.

Value to Gang Shown.

The slain man's value to the Capone gang as a money getter is evident, police said. Under his management were Sportsman's Park race track in Chicago, the Bristol County Kennel club, near Taunton, Mass., and the Miami Beach Kennel club in Florida.

All three were big money makers, according to financial statements figured by O'Hare's auditors. One of these showed that the Massachusetts dog track made a profit of $127,000 during the summer racing season of 1937. The Miami Beach club alone netted $127,810 in the winter of 1938—a fine year for professional sports generally.

THE PRESENT CONFLICT

Widow, Facing a Term in Jail, Ends Her Life

Mrs. Katherine L. Cochran, 43 years old, feared the disgrace of going to jail as a drunken driver. And she had mourned for her husband, Robert, ever since he committed suicide six years ago.

So, yesterday, she put a gun to her temple and shot herself to death in her apartment at 1547 Fargo avenue while a friend sat waiting for her.

What Mrs. Cochran didn't know was that relatives had interceded for her and that the jail sentence was to have been vacated today and she was to have been fined $100 instead. She had been sentenced to 30 days in jail in Evanston Municipal court last Thursday.

Jail Term Crowning Misfortune.

Sergt. William Owens and Policeman Richard McGinnis of Rogers Park station expressed belief that Mrs. Cochran's immediate motive was a feeling of disgrace over the jail term. She said in a note to the coroner that she was threatened with blindness. Then, referring to the traffic case, she added:

"All a person has is his good name, and when that's gone there's nothing left. This misfortune is too much for me."

In a note to a sister, Mrs. Anna L. Hayes, 1235 Elmwood avenue, Evanston, dated Oct. 27, two weeks before she was sentenced, Mrs. Cochran said: "Don't feel bad when I'm gone. I had planned to join Bob ever since his death."

A note to another sister in New Orleans also expressed the determination to "join Bob."

Mrs. Cochran's husband killed himself in 1933 at Pittsburgh, Pa., after his paint and varnish business failed. She then came to Chicago to be near Mrs. Hayes.

Finds Her Dead in Tub.

Dr. A. T. Fisher, a dentist, of 800 Davis street, Evanston, was in Mrs. Cochran's home when she shot herself. He said he called, and that they went out for coffee, returning later so that she might dress for an automobile ride.

After Mrs. Cochran had failed to reappear he called to her, then entered the bathroom when he got no answer.

He found Mrs. Cochran fallen into the bathtub, a bullet wound in the temple. A revolver lay beside her.

Mrs. Cochran was arrested on the traffic charge in Evanston last March. She was found guilty by a jury with eight women members before Judge Harry H. Porter, who imposed sentence.

PARIS AIR RAID ALARM SOUNDED SECOND TIME IN 2 DAYS; GUNS HEARD

PARIS, Nov. 13 [Monday] (AP).—The faint hum of airplane motors and the heavy firing of antiaircraft batteries gave Paris its second air raid alarm of the week-end today. The motors were believed by observers to be those of German scouting planes flying in the direction of Paris.

The air raid sirens sounded at 4:20 a. m. [9:20 p. m. Sunday, Chicago time], and it was not until an hour later that the all clear signal was heard.

The city experienced a 70 minute alarm early Saturday morning. Today's alarm was the seventh of the war for Paris.

MISSING FAMILY IS SAFE, SIGN IN SNOW REPORTS

WHITE HORSE, Y. T., Nov. 12 [Canadian Press].—A huge sign written in the snow told aerial searchers that James Miller and his wife and four children were safe but stormbound on the shore of Lake Lebarge, it was learned today.

Everett Wasson, one of the searchers, sighted the message on Friday. The Millers had been missing since Oct. 24, when they started across the windswept lake in a skiff.

It is believed they have sufficient food and will remain in their shelter on the lake until the surface freezes over and they can travel by dog sled.

Rescuers have been unable to reach the family by boat because of winds and fog.

PARENTS BREATHE LIFE BACK INTO A DYING INFANT

The parents of 11 month old Judy Olsen literally breathed the breath of life into her yesterday after she suffered a severe bronchial spasm following teething convulsions.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Olsen, 5216 Harper avenue, telephoned Dr. Everett S. Borton, an osteopath, when Judy began gasping for breath. On his instructions they breathed into their daughter's mouth until Dr. Borton arrived, and a fire department inhalator squad under Capt. Thomas Noonan had been summoned.

The baby then was taken to the Chicago Osteopathic hospital in a Hyde Park patrol wagon, and oxygen treatments started by the firemen were continued until she was out of danger.

Lucy's in Luck Despite Loss of a Rabbit's Foot

It was cold, and still dark, when he came to the home of Dr. Milton J. Summerville at 7218 Quick avenue. Eddie tossed a paper on the doorstep and was about to go on when he heard a whimpering cry.

He investigated. At the side of the front porch, caught in a trap, lay a terror stricken wild rabbit. Its right front foot was crushed and bleeding badly.

An Emergency Operation.

Eddie roused Dr. Summerville. Dr. Summerville opened the trap [it had been set to catch a rat] and carried the rabbit in the house. There he bound a tourniquet about the rabbit's leg to stop the bleeding.

Then he telephoned for his nurse, Miss Mary Evans, 5912 Erie street, and told her to meet him in his office at 1011 Lake street, Oak Park, to assist in an emergency operation.

Half an hour later the rabbit lay on the operating table. Nurse Evans applied the anesthetic and then, for an hour, Dr. Summerville was busy tying blood vessels and laying bare the rabbit's torn muscles. This done, he amputated the crushed foot.

Lucy Makes Some New Friends.

In another hour the rabbit was wide awake and Dr. Summerville, Nurse Evans, and Eddie took it to the Trailside museum in the River Forest forest preserve. This is a refuge for injured forest animals, established by Clayton F. Smith, president of the forest preserve board.

Lucy, as Eddie named the rabbit, found many new friends in the hospital, among them an injured pheasant and a duck. But best of all was a big white rabbit which bounded over to Lucy's cage to rub noses.

"Lucy will have no more worries," said Dr. Summerville. "When she gets well she's coming home with me."

And then it was time for breakfast. Lucy wrinkled her nose and Eddie gave her a liberal helping of lettuce and radishes.

SLOWS UP WAR PREPARATIONS; TROOPS HALTED

Sees Hitler Program Aided by Delay.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—A sudden lull in military preparations, and the assurances of Europe's belligerents that they are interested in the peace suggestion of The Netherlands and Belgium, which was supported by a telegram from King Carol of Rumania, started rumors in Berlin today about possible peace talks.

Adolf Hitler's minister to The Hague informed Queen Wilhelmina's foreign office that the Fuehrer still was studying her peace offer. Add to this the fact that troops, which were scheduled to leave central Germany this week-end, have been held in barracks for new orders; that preparations seem to be slowing up all along the rear lines, and the more optimistic interpretation of the British king's message to Holland, and you have the explanation for the rumors of "possible peace talks."

Advantage to Hitler?

Nazi radicals declare this means only that Hitler feels the delay is advantageous for his preparations and "will help increase the nervousness of Great Britain and France."

It has been noted that Hitler conferred extensively with Baron Konstantin von Neurath, former foreign minister who does not share the violent hatred of England which inspires Foreign Minirter Joachim von Ribbentrop and his wife, especially the latter, who feels that British society snubbed her when her husband was ambassador to London from 1936 to 1938.

Von Neurath is one of the men who helped bring about the compromise at Munich last year. He now occupies the difficult position of protector of Bohemia and Moravia, the territories taken over when Hitler dismembered and occupied Czecho-Slovakia.

Can Afford a "Slow War."

The Nazis also hold they can afford a "slow war" because with their strong police organization they are able to control restlessness among the population—should it become too obvious—whereas Britain and France are "hampered by what is left of their democratic privileges."

Purely military consideration also plays a part in slowing up the present German advance. A number of military experts assert that if "Germany finds herself compelled to occupy the Netherlands this will be a dangerous move unless it can be made at top speed. If flooded areas of Holland hold up troops, the British and French would have time to rush reinforcements to the Dutch coast and possibly use it as a base of operations, thereby gaining a base about 180 miles closer to Germany and possible military objectives."

Urged to Remain Calm.

Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, propaganda minister, addressing workers of a big electric plant and the soldiers, officers, and antiaircraft units protecting the factory, stressed the necessity for remaining calm. "We knew from the start that this war would not be easy for us," he said. "The nation which has the best nerves and knows how to keep those nerves steady is best prepared for war. It is self-evident that the Fuehrer has prepared everything so thoroly that there can be no doubt of our victory."

He sought to bolster up the faith of his listeners by telling them that the Germans get more butter in their rations than the British, but he failed to add that the English can buy margerine and cooking fats without restriction whereas they are strictly rationed in Germany.

Blame Jews for Blast.

The Munich explosion still holds the front page of newspapers. A few days ago efforts to blame it on Jews were hidden in back pages, but the Montagblatt today front paged a charge that the "spiritual authors of the despicable attempt on Hitler's life will be found in the circles of British war agitators and international Jewish organizations."

"Open agitation for the murder started in Jewish newspapers in the United States of America," it charged. "Newspapers with mass circulation in New York published declarations of alleged Jewish emigrants who in reality are only agents of London war agitators about the necessity of doing away with Hitler."

No new details of the investigation of the explosion were revealed.

UP TO BERLIN TO MAKE PEACE BID, BRITAIN ASSERTS

LONDON, Nov. 12 (AP).—The text of King George VI. of Great Britain's reply today to the mediation proposal of Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands and King Leopold of the Belgians follow:

King George VI.

"To her majesty the queen of The Netherlands:

"I have carefully examined with my governments in the United Kingdom, Canada, the commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand, and the Union of South Africa the appeal which your majesty and his majesty the king of the Belgians addressed to me on Nov. 7.

"I recall the appeal made by his majesty the king of the Belgians on Aug. 23 in the name of the heads of state of the Oslo group of states in which his majesty pleaded for the submission of disputes and claims to open negotiations carried out in the spirit of brotherly coöperation.

"My government in the United Kingdom as well as the French government sent favorable replies to this appeal.

Recalls Offer of Aug. 28.

"I recall also the joint offer of good offices made by your majesty and his majesty the king of the Belgians to my government in the United Kingdom and to the French, German, Italian and Polish governments on Aug. 28. This offer was welcomed by my government and by the French, Italian and Polish governments. A few days later the German government launched an unprovoked attack on Poland which has been overrun with every circumstance of brutality.

"My governments deeply appreciate the spirit of your majesty's offer and they would always be willing to examine a reasonable and assured basis for an equitable peace. It is, as it always has been, my desire that the war should not last one day longer than is absolutely necessary and I can therefore at once reply to that part of your majesty's appeal in which you state your willingness to facilitate the ascertaining of the elements of an agreement to be reached.

Conditions Already Stated.

"The essential conditions upon which we are determined that an honorable peace must be secured have already been plainly stated. The documents which have been published since the beginning of the war clearly explain its origin and establish the responsibility for its outbreak. My peoples took up arms only after every effort had been made to save peace.

"The immediate occasion leading to our decision to enter the war was Germany's aggression against Poland. But this aggression was only a fresh instance of German policy toward her neighbors. The larger purposes for which my peoples are now fighting are to secure that Europe may be redeemed, in the words of my prime minister in the United Kingdom, 'from perpetually recurring fear of German aggression so as to enable the peoples of Europe to preserve their independence and their liberties and to prevent for the future resort to force instead of the pacific means in settlement of international disputes.

"These aims have been amplified and enlarged on a number of occasions and particularly in the statements made by my prime minister

BRITISH, FRENCH REPLIES DEEPEN BELGIAN GLOOM

Considers Germany's Answer Friendly.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Nov. 12.—The answers of France and the British empire today to the peace overtures of King Leopold of the Belgians and Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands were disappointing to Brussels officials. However, Adolf Hitler's reply was considered sufficiently sympathetic and friendly to reassure Belgium that it is in no danger of an immediate German invasion, if an invasion ever were contemplated.

The foreign ministers of Belgium and the Netherlands tonight held a surprise conference on the developments of a tense week-end, meeting at Breda near the Belgian-Dutch frontier. The exact purpose of the conference was not disclosed. The ministers are Paul Henri Spaak of Belgium, and Eelco N. Vanklieffens of the Netherlands.

The French and British answers deepened the gloom now overshadowing the efforts of the two sovereigns to solve differences over the conference table rather than on the battlefield.

Will Consider Any Proposals.

Britain responded with a pledge to give "most earnest consideration" to any German proposals which might "afford real prospect of achieving" Britain's avowed war aim to halt German "aggression."

Britain's war aim was set forth again as the redemption of Europe from "the perpetually recurring fear of German aggression so as to enable the peoples of Europe to preserve their independence and liberties."

This statement, quoting Prime Minister Chamberlain, and other similar declarations by Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax "must form part of any settlement" of the current conflict, the British reply said.

Must Repair "Injustices."

Britain's ally, France, replied saying it was "up to Germany" to establish peace "by reparation of the injustices that force imposed on Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland."

[Germany informed The Netherlands foreign office on Saturday that the mediation offer would be examined "carefully." On numerous occasions Adolf Hitler has stated that no peace would be considered on the basis of restoring Poland.]

While tension in Belgium has visibly lessened, the British are reported to be more worried than the Belgians. Two great British enterprises in Brussels, a soap factory and a bank, are being moved to Ostend, on the North sea coast of Belgium.

Americans Advised.

Americans in Belgium also are receiving letters from consuls suggesting that they prepare themselves for any emergency by having the necessary cash and gasoline for automobiles or arranging for other transportation.

However, the letters follow the routine plans decided upon by the American state department last May in the event of war and emphasize that the department has no information not published which occasions suggestions that the 700 Americans registered at Belgian consulates take precautions to facilitate departure.

Report Originated Abroad.

The Tribune correspondent, since coming here after visiting Holland, has been trying to trace the source of reports that an invasion of the low countries by Germany was imminent. The report originated in France and Britain.

The question is asked: Have these countries inside information of the intentions of the German general staff? German sources insist that the real reason is that the British and French want to find out just that and if the Germans continually give assurances to the contrary the real German military plans can be more easily estimated thru a process of elimination.

The main argument for the imminent invasion, as advanced by armchair strategists, is based upon the assumption that Germany must act quickly because of the economic situation and the allegedly increasing superiority of allied armaments.

Needs Closer Bases.

On this assumption another is added that Germany, in contemplating war against Britain, needs the low countries for military and submarine bases. The logical answer to this is that the Germans, by bringing their own bases to within bombardment distances of the British navy as well as the combined French and British air fleet, would gain little, if any, military advantage.

In the course of occupying the low countries, it is generally conceded that a modern warfare attack would necessitate three times as many troops, six times as much artillery, and twelve times as much ammunition as the defenders.

Even if this were not true the political and psychological consequences of a German invasion not only in America but in other neutral European countries would create real allies for the French and British empires. All of these European countries, despite British war aims which pledge to protect them from German aggression, would prefer to see differences settled at a peace conference instead of on the battlefield, and in all of them real neutrality reigns now.

Could Use Money and Coal.

Another argument is that Germany is tempted to go into Holland and Belgium to obtain the relatively huge reserves of money and coal of both countries which Germany may need to prosecute the war. But here, as in Poland, the money might be evacuated before the German armies could reach the vaults.

It is suggested here that the reason for the French and British invasion reports, if unwarranted by inside information, was really to stir the low countries into accepting secret general staff discussions so that the empires' aid would be forthcoming the moment a German invasion became imminent. In this way the empires at least could obtain the battleground for which Gen. Maurice Gustav Gamelin, French chief of staff, has been shouting since the war began. Belgium and Holland so far have refused to accept this plan.

One effect of the campaign here, which THE TRIBUNE discovered, has caused a run on American dollars, in many instances totally unjustified. Even two months ago dollars were at 10 per cent premium in Luxemburg over the rates paid on travelers checks. The same is true in Holland and Belgium.

Tens of millions of American notes are hoarded by the wealthier classes. The result is that there has been benevolent money control in Holland altho so far there have been no restrictions whatever on the amount carried out in cash.

Dutch Study Replies.

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, Nov. 12 (AP).—The government studied today the British and French replies to the peace mediation offer of Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold in the hope of finding a basis to bring the belligerents together around a conference table. Authoritative quarters said the messages could not be interpreted as complete rejections.

They said King George had left the way open for further efforts when he stated Britain would consider any proposal Germany might make.

It was not indicated whether Wilhelmina would approach Germany to seek peace proposals.

American Minister George A. Gordon was received by Queen Wilhelmina tonight, but there was no comment as to the nature of their conversation.

Meanwhile, Netherlanders continued anxious over reported precautionary measures despite assurances from the government that there was no cause for alarm.

Some concern was felt over the interruption of telephone service to some eastern sections of the country last night. It was announced today that communications were disturbed by military order but they had been restored.

in the United Kingdom in the house of commons on Oct. 12 and my secretary of state for foreign affairs in the house of lords on Nov. 2.

"The elements which, in the opinion of my governments, must form part of any settlement emerge clearly and distinctly from these declarations of policy. Should your majesty be able to communicate to me any proposals from Germany of such a character as to afford real prospect of achieving the purpose I have described above I can say that my governments would give them their most earnest consideration."

"Up to Germany," French Say.

PARIS, Nov. 12 (AP).—President Albert Lebrun, replying to the mediation offer of Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold, said today it was "up to Germany" to establish peace "by reparation of the injustices that force imposed on Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland."

[Adolf Hitler repeatedly has stated Germany would make no peace which called for the restoration of Poland as an independent state.]

The text of President Lebrun's reply follows:

"The government, public and the French people are unanimous in rendering homage to the sentiments which inspired the message of your majesties addressed to me. They appreciate fully the loftiness and courtesy of it.

"France a Pacific Nation."

"No nation is more pacific than the French nation. No nation has made more sacrifices to European peace. France already often has made known and recalls again today that she was and remains determined to welcome all possibilities of assuring a just and durable peace among all peoples.

"Only peace founded on justice is in effect durable. France has taken arms to put a definite end to enterprises of violence and force which for two years, in contempt of the most solemn engagements, in violation of the pledged word, already have subjugated or destroyed three nations in Europe and today menace the security of other nations. Lasting peace therefore can only be established by reparation of the injustices that force imposed on Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, and Poland. It can also only be in a measure where some effective guarantees of political and economic order assure for the future the respect and liberty of all nations.

Guarantees Needed.

"Mankind will only be delivered from worry or anguish if it has certainty that new attempts against right henceforth are forbidden.

"Any solution that would consecrate the triumph of injustice would procure for Europe only a precarious truce with no relation to the legitimate stable peace which your majesties advocate.

"Today it is up to Germany, not France, to pronounce herself for or against this peace to which aspire all countries whose security and independence are menaced by her action."

FIGHT ON: CHURCHILL

LONDON, Nov. 12 (AP).—Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, said tonight that Britain and France would make war "until the other side has enough of it." He declared that "the fate of Holland and Belgium, like that of Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, and Austria, will be decided by the victory of the British empire and the French republic."

Declaring Britain's navy stronger, her anti-U-boat forces three times as numerous as enemy submarines, and her army and air force growing, Churchill said in a broadcast, "We are far better prepared to endure the worst malice of Adolf Hitler and his Huns than we were at the beginning of September.

"I go so far as to say that if we come thru the winter without any large or important event occurring we shall in fact have gained the first campaign of the war," he added.

Says German Are Concentrated.

Asserting German troops were concentrating near The Netherlands and Belgian borders, Churchill said, "I shall not attempt to prophesy whether the frenzy of a cornered maniac will drive Herr Hitler into the worst of all his crimes, but this I will say without a doubt, that the fate of Holland and Belgium, like that of Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, and Austria, will be decided by the victory of the British empire and the French republic."

[Well informed sources in The Hague, The Netherlands, said Saturday that tension had eased over reports of heavy German troop concentrations near the Dutch frontier.]

"You may take it absolutely for certain that either all that Britain and France stand for in the modern world will go down or that Hitler, the Nazi régime and the recurring German or Prussian menace will be broken and destroyed," Churchill said.

"If we are conquered all will be enslaved and the United States will be left alone to guard the rights of man."

Churchill listed restoration of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia among Britain's war aims. The admiralty chieftain said Hitler and his "cluster of confederates" could not find "one single friendly eye" in the world.

Claims Islamic Support.

"Not one. Russia returns them a flinty stare; Italy averts her gaze; Japan is puzzled and thinks herself betrayed. Turkey and the whole of Islam have ranged themselves instinctively but decisively on the side of progress.

"The great English speaking republic across the Atlantic ocean makes no secret of its sympathies."

"You know I have not always agreed with Prime Minister Chamberlain, tho we always have been personal friends," Churchill added. "But he is a man of very tough fibre and I can tell you that he is going to fight as obstinately for victory as he did for peace. Can I say more?"

Soviet Russia had barred Germany from the east, he said, "so now these boastful and bullying Nazis are looking with hungry eyes for some small countries in the west which they can trample down and loot as they have trampled down and looted Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, and Poland.

Fierce But Prudent Glare.

"Now they turn their fierce but also rather prudent glare upon the ancient civilized and unoffending Dutch and Belgian nations. They have not chosen to molest the British fleet. They recoil from the steel front of the French army along the Maginot line. But their docile conscripts are being crowded in vast numbers upon the frontiers of Holland and Belgium.

"To both these states the Nazis have given the most recent and solemn guaranties; no wonder the anxiety is great."

ANGLO-FRENCH MINES WILL ARM JUGO-SLAVIANS

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Nov. 12.—Jugo-Slavia's government tonight decreed its right to appoint commissioners to control production and exports from the French and British owned mines of Bor, Europe's biggest producer of copper, and Trebcha, a lead and zinc producer. It will sell the minerals to countries ready to supply modern armaments, especially tanks, bomber motors, and pursuit planes.

Of Bor's annual yield of about 60,000 tons of copper, Germany last year took 8,000 tons. Recently it asked that its minerals quota be doubled, and offered to supply antitank and antiaircraft guns and Messerschmitt planes. Jugo-Slavia then put minerals in a class of exportable goods to be sold only against armaments. Britain and France said they could not provide the weapons Belgrade seeks.

BRATISLAVA, Slovakia, Nov. 12.—The Slovakian government has decreed that all streets named after Jews and Free Masons must be changed immediately.

IL DUCE ORDERS SECOND INCREASE IN ITALIAN ARMY

ROME, Nov. 12 (AP).—Premier Mussolini ordered 5,000 noncommissioned career officers and 18,000 volunteer specialists added to the army today to strengthen Italy's military might.

It was the second expansion of Italy's army within a week. Last Monday Il Duce ordered 1,500 officers and 1,500 noncommissioned officers recruited. Enlistment will begin immediately.

The new additions, it was said, were intended to strengthen Italy's technical preparation for any fighting, to reinforce smaller army groups and to strengthen the whole framework of the army, which at present consists of 1,300,000 men.

Mussolini last week held a series of conferences with the country's military chiefs and gave Gen. Ubaldo Soddu, his new undersecretary of war, instructions for "preparing and amplifying army units."

[Previous dispatches from Rome said there were unconfirmed reports that during maneuvers last August the Italian army did not measure up to the high standard of efficiency Mussolini set for it. Since that time constant efforts have been made to increase Italian armed might.]

Mussolini recently changed the heads of the army and air forces and military experts announced the development of new motorized equipment for the artillery. Production of modern arms, especially airplanes, has been placed on a wartime basis since the start of the European conflict.

EDINBURGH STILL MANAGES TO SING SATURDAY NIGHTS

German Bombs Fail to Daunt Its Heart.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Nov. 12.—Edinburgh and towns along the Firth of Forth know something about this war. But the people seem astonishingly unimpressed by German air raids.

Arrow locates Firth of Forth.

The attack on Rosyth and the Forth bridge might be ancient history now as far as the attitude of the people is concerned. Altho some saw shrapnel fall in the streets, nobody even talks about the raid.

With buildings and monuments which seem like furniture especially designed for the craggy, mountainous surroundings, Edinburgh is one of the most handsome cities on earth. It is clean, gay, bustling, and astonishingly animated.

One can judge how Scotland is taking the war by observing the number of men and women in uniform. This stands out here more than in Glasgow, Scotland's workshop.

Many Uniforms Visible.

One can see all types of soldiers, sailors, and air force men in all types of places. Some of them have been firing antiaircraft guns to repel raids over Scotland. Nobody seems worried, altho some were said to have been a "wee bit excited" at the time of the first raid.

Scottish women and girls are very active. The ones not knitting or sewing are driving ambulances, helping the fire department, and performing other chores—all in uniform.

Saturday night is a great social night in Scotland and even the blackout has not been able to kill the lustiness of this popular evening. Last night I went to bed about 11 o'clock at my hotel near the railway station. But it was long after midnight before I got to sleep because of the hollering and singing in the streets and the noise—or music, if you like—of mouth organs. Some soprano voices were in the choruses, too.

Shoppers Crowd Streets.

On Saturday afternoons Edinburgh streets are choked with people shopping. I tried to get into a Woolworth store to buy some salted peanuts, but I gave it up. I could not wiggle thru the milling crowds.

It was Armistice day and hundreds of girls and women were selling poppies in the streets. Some people stopped and stood still at 11 o'clock for two minutes of silence. But it was not ordained as last year. I was in Prince street near the Robert Burns monument at 11 a. m. An ex-soldier with several world war medals was speaking from a soap box to a good sized gathering. He was condemning the government for treatment of ex-soldiers, arguing for better pensions and complaining against purchases of poppies on the grounds that the buyers had better give their money for pensions.

When 11 o'clock came, the ex-soldier picked up a German helmet and a couple of bayonets which he had as trophies. He put on the helmet to illustrate his remarks. "You'll soon know what I am talking about," he said to a couple of young men in the crowd who were laughing.

Hears Singer of Old Songs.

Later I went down to the Royal theater to hear buxom Florrie Forde, still a popular music hall favorite up this way, sing some of her old songs. She got the house to join in one war song with considerable gusto, but it was noticeable that this war has not yet produced any really good songs to match those of the last war. They had to resort to old timers such as "Pack Up Your Troubles," and "Keep Your Head Down, Fritzis Boy."

They sang "We're Gonna Hang Our Washing on the Siegfried Line," but curiously the audience did not know the words.

Yesterday afternoon, in a mixture of sunlight, gloom, and rainstorms, I took a street car to Leith and Granton, two suburbs situated along the Firth of Forth. There is a splendid view of the other side of the Firth from them.

A harmony of blues, grays, and the rugged shoreline rising from the mist was visible. It was over this body of water that German planes swooped a few weeks ago. Two men with caps and burry accents told me why I couldn't go to the Leith docks.

"Ye can go, but the policeman will stop you," they said. "No visitors are allowed in wartime."

Secrecy About Ships.

Farther on is the great Forth bridge which the Germans missed, and beyond it in the gray mist were dim, vague shapes which may have been British warships. But you cannot tell, for no one is allowed near. During the last war these Firth waters for a time held the full might of the grand fleet.

In Edinburgh you can meet some of the so-called Scottish nationalists. The nationalist movement, however, is more literary and academic than political. It does not embody a race theory, and adherents simply believe they ought to have more local and less London control in order to have efficient government. It seems the Germans thought they had fallen on a good thing in this Scottish nationalist movement. In the years before the outbreak of this languorous war the Germans sought to exploit it, but they tell me here that their methods were clumsy.

Some Advocate Neutrality.

One hears in Edinburgh that there still is a little group of Scots who advocate Scottish neutrality. Another little group has been in communication in the past with Irish dissidents. It claims to have safeguarded Scotland from Irish outrages by means of a nonaggression pact.

A special committee has been set up by the Scottish Nationalist party to consider the position in which industry and agriculture in Scotland likely will find themselves at the end of the war and to suggest remedies.

The question was raised at a meeting of the national council of the party. It was explained that the heavy industries of the Clyde valley are and have been for years largely engaged in war work. When the war is over and arms orders come to an end, the council fears a collapse might occur.

Fear Withdrawal of Subsidies.

Disquiet also was expressed regarding the position of agriculture. Various government subsidies for farmers are in difficulties at the present time, it was said. The opinion was expressed that when money is scarce, as it might be at the end of the war, these subsidies likely will be withdrawn.

Overcrowding in cities still is a big problem in this area as well as in Glasgow. In England, overcrowding amounts to about 4 per cent, but here it is said to be 22 per cent.

Across the Firth of Tay and its long bridge one comes to Dundee, where more sandbags can be seen than in any other city in Scotland. Huge mounds of jute and sand are everywhere, the reason being that Dundee makes jute and sandbags. The town simply helps itself to its own products.

Germans Hurl Back Several French Attacks Against Hill

BERLIN, Nov. 12 (AP).—French attempts to occupy a hill southwest of Pirmasens were reported by the German high command today to have been beaten back in fighting on the western front.

A communique said:

"Several attempts by the French in the last few days to occupy a hill six miles southwest of Pirmasens failed despite the French use of airplanes and heavy artillery. The hill remains in the hands of German troops. A certain number of French were taken prisoner."

[Pirmasens is a German town about 20 miles east and south of Saarbruecken, industrial capital of the Saar.]

French Report Night Raids.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—The French war ministry reported today that there were "raids at various points on the front during the night."

Tonight's communique stated:

Raymond Pigeaud, a division general, one of the first French officers to receive the Croix de Guerre during the present war, died tonight from wounds.

No information was given on when or where he was wounded. His death was the first announced for a French or British general since the war started.

Gen. Pigeaud was awarded the Croix de Guerre in the world war, too.

Steamer Bombing Denied.

LONDON, Nov. 12 (AP).—A British communique tonight said passengers who reported a German plane attempted to bomb a French channel steamer yesterday were mistaken. The communique declared splinters of antiaircraft shells fired at a plane over a prohibited area fell near the channel vessel, but that no bombs were dropped.

AUSTRALIA SETS UP WAR CABINET TO AID DEFENSES

CANBERRA, Australia, Nov. 12.—Creation of a war cabinet for Australia was announced today by Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies, who will take over the post of minister of defense coördination. Brig. Gen. G. A. Street was named minister for the army; J. V. Fairbairn minister for air, and Sir Frederick Stewart minister for the navy. R. G. Casey becomes minister of supply.

Senator H. S. Foll, now minister of the interior, and Senator G. McLeay, vice minister of commerce, also will be included in the new cabinet. P. C. Spender has been promoted to treasurer to relieve Premier Menzies of financial duties while the war cabinet is functioning.

A finance committee has been set up under the chairmanship of Sir Walter Mass-Greene, former minister of defense, treasury and finance.

FARMER DIES OF CRASH INJURIES.

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 12 [Special].—Peter Lichter, 63 years old, a wealthy Kenosha county farmer, died today of injuries incurred last night when a wagon in which he was riding near his farm in Somers township was struck by an automobile.

FINLAND ADMITS TALKS WITH REDS NEAR BREAKDOWN

May Summon Delegation Home from Moscow.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 12 (AP).—Russian-Finnish negotiations are on the verge of a breakdown, Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko said today, and unless Russia modifies her demands Finland's delegation probably soon will be recalled from Moscow.

Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko.

The Finnish foreign minister told a press conference he would "regret very much" if, after more than a month of negotiations, it became necessary to recall the delegation, but "if there is no advance in negotiations there is no other way."

"We think the discussions have reached a stage where it should have been possible to arrive at some kind of a result," Erkko asserted.

Naval Base a Stumbling Block.

The foreign minister did not reveal details of the discussions but observers expressed belief that Russian demands for a naval base on Finnish territory at the entrance of the Gulf of Finland and a revision of the border on the Karelian isthmus were the stumbling blocks.

"We have stressed all the time that we are willing to consider questions which are of defensive value for the Russians but at the same time we must look to our own defense and ability to remain neutral," Erkko said.

Mentions Sandy Hook.

His only hint on the nature of the demands on which the negotiations are stalemated came when he said to American newspaper men:

"I believe there is a place called Sandy Hook outside of New York harbor. How would you like to hand that over to some one?"

[The six mile Sandy Hook peninsula, part of New Jersey, is about 15 miles south of the extremity of Manhattan Island. It forms part of the outer boundary of lower New York bay. Fort Hancock is located there.]

"That is the position today," Erkko continued. "There are no indications that further progress thru negotiations is possible. Both sides know their positions. There is a last minute chance but we have come so far it is difficult."

Erkko shrugged off Russian press attacks as "part of the game" but added "when press attacks are inspired we have to take them into consideration as part of the discussions."

Want Land in Arctic.

MOSCOW, Nov. 12 (AP).—Widespread soviet naval demands upon Finland, including bases in the Arctic as well as in the Gulf of Finland, were disclosed for the first time today as Russian newspapers hammered at what they called Finnish "obstinacy" against coming to terms.

An article in the newspaper Red Fleet, organ of the soviet navy, said Russia also must gain control of Finnish areas west of Murmansk in order to protect that port, the northernmost ice-free harbor of the soviet union.

[Finland now has access to the Arctic thru a narrow strip of land between Norway and Russia.]

The newspaper Trud, organ of the soviet trade unions, warned Finland that she was playing a "dangerous game" which "may have grave results," and criticized the American government on charges of interference in the Russian-Finnish issue.

[Premier Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, speaking on Oct. 31, uttered similar criticism because President Roosevelt on Oct. 11 expressed hopes that nothing would be done to endanger the peaceful relations between Russia and Finland.]

Charge Finns Are Difficult.

All Moscow newspapers today carried a Tass, official soviet news agency, dispatch of last night which charged that the Finns had intensified "their irreconcilability" in the Moscow negotiations.

Red Fleet's article said Leningrad could not be safe unless Russia controlled both sides of the Gulf of Finland.

It said she therefore should create a naval base in the mouth of the gulf in the region of Hanko [Hango] Island; must erect fortifications on Stirsuden and other islands in the eastern part of the gulf, and should have the islands of Suursari [Hogland], Seiskari, and Lavansaari as well as Tytarsaari."

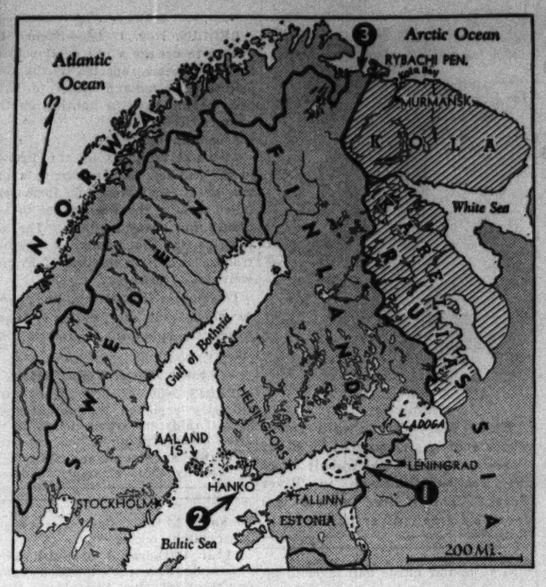
"The Soviet-Finnish frontier in the far north in the region of the Rybachi and Sredni peninsulas is awkward and unnatural," the article continued.

"The military weakness of Finland with almost a complete absence of defenses in the north creates a danger of both peninsulas being captured by an enemy. This would give him the opportunity to control to some extent Kola bay and bottle up the only nonfreezing soviet port in the north—Murmansk."

"Our proposals [of exchanging land in Karelia and Kola] are dictated by the interests of 183,000,000 soviet citizens."

Reds' Demands on Finland

(Story in adjoining column.)



In addition to the islands of Hogland, Lavansaari, Tytarsaari, and Seiskari (1) demanded by Russia, Hanko Island (2) is necessary for a Red naval base, according to the soviet naval organ. The soviet-Finnish frontier (3) in the arctic region is "unnatural," according to the paper, which sees a danger to Kola bay and Murmansk, only Russian port free of ice. The paper proposes that Russia exchange land in Karelia and Kola (diagonal ruling) in a deal with Finland.

BRITISH TROOPS RECALLED FROM DUTY AT TIENTSIN

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The British war office announced today its decision to withdraw British troops from North China, leaving only about 100 to protect property and maintain order. The decision was made, it was stated, "for reasons of military convenience arising from the conflict in Europe."

Various governments which, as in the case of Great Britain, have been maintaining troops in that area of China in accordance with the international protocol of 1901, have been notified. The fact that such notification has been given is taken as an indication that Britain is relying on other signatories of the protocol to look after her interests. The United States of America is one of the signatories.

The British North China force now numbers about one company of troops, maintained at Tientsin, storm center of the Anglo-Japanese discussions last summer. These discussions, which included the Japanese demand for possession of $50,000,000 in silver deposited by the Chinese national government in the British concession at Tientsin, has not yet been concluded.

Chiang Sees Jap Failures.

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 12 (AP).—Gen. Chiang Kai-shek opened the sixth assembly of the Kuomintang party central executive committee today with the declaration that any Japanese offensive was doomed to failure.

He said China's foreign policy was to resist aggression, uphold international conventions, refuse to adhere to any anticommunist pact and maintain absolute diplomatic independence.

Chiang said each Japanese mistake caused a fresh defeat and each defeat a new mistake.

German Officer Calls on French at Front.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASEL, Switzerland, Nov. 12.—A German officer with a white handkerchief tied to his walking stick strolled across the Rhine bridge linking Kehl and Strasbourg and offered cigarets to French sentries, it was reported here today.

The sentries returned the greetings and chatted in a friendly fashion with him, it is said, until a French officer approached.

"Please don't carry this joke too far," the French officer advised the German. "I beg you to go back to Germany."

Propaganda Hits at British.

The incident is regarded here as illustrating the lengths to which the Germans are going in attempts to cut the French away from the British. It is assumed the officer who crossed the bridge was trying to convince the sentries that Germany bears France no ill will and all would be peaceful along the Rhine if it weren't for the British.

This has been the theme of German propaganda directed recently at France. There is no definite evidence that the propaganda is succeeding, but when the French dynamited Rhine bridges at Mulheim and Breisach last month the Germans are said to have had warning to get out of the way.

Pass Guns Unmolested.

Travelers from Basel who enter Germany on the railroad line that parallels the Rhine report that serious war operations apparently have not begun in this section of the western front. The train, as it rolls through a part of the Siegfried line, is in view of French soldiers in the Maginot line across the river, but the French never shoot at it.

A Basel business man who visited Germany says he saw soldiers strolling in exposed areas where French snipers easily could have shot them. German civilians work on Siegfried line pillboxes in places exposed to possible fire from French machine guns, he added. German soldiers and their girl friends bicycle on roads bordering the Rhine, in view of the enemy, and are not molested.

Report "Stars" Warned Hitler.

With the British and French charging that the GSP [German secret police] planted the Munich beer hall bomb, a story trickles from Germany that Adolf Hitler was warned a year ago by an astrologer that attempts would be made on his life early in November, 1939.

This warning was said to have been given by Mme. Neumann, reported to be the 45 year old astrologer with whom Hitler went into a huddle before making any important decision. She is supposed to have told him he could safely grab Austria and Czecho-Slovakia, but would find himself involved in war if he tried to seize Poland.

The prediction that he would stir up war by invading Poland was not to Hitler's liking and Mme. Neumann soon found herself in a concentration camp. From there she wrote to the Fuehrer that the stars forecast an attempt on his life. She is reported to have been shot shortly afterward. This story possibly was spread in Germany to counteract the British and French accusations that the bombing was just another reichstag fire incident.

RUMANIA URGES MINORITIES TO AID IN KEEPING PEACE

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 12.—Premier Constantin Argetoianu today called on minorities to coöperate with the Rumanians. In a speech before the National Renaissance Front in Cluj, capital of Transylvania, he said, "The country needs peace to be able to work with success."

The slogan of the front, he added, now is "More justice, more peace, more humanity." Unfortunately, he remarked, the minority did not always take the way leading to a fruitful collaboration with the majority.

"Those times are over," he added, "The National Renaissance Front is open for the minority to collaborate."

EX-LEGION CHIEF TELLS 5,000 NATION MUST AVERT WAR

Edward A. Hayes, past national commander of the American Legion, told an audience of 5,000 at the Morgan Park Military academy yesterday that no excuse exists for this nation to enter the European war. He asserted it was time for the United States to be selfish and not to follow again the unselfish ideology which led her into the last war. The United States, he added, is the last hope for world peace. The meeting, a post-observance of Armistice day, was sponsored by the Beverly Hills post of the American Legion and the Woman's Club of Morgan Park.

STRAIN OF WAR BOOSTS LONDON MENTAL ILLNESS

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Nervous strain in the week after the outbreak of the war sent 100 patients into London mental hospitals as compared with 62 in the corresponding week of 1938. During the period of the war of nerves, from July 1 to the beginning of September, the number of admissions week by week was 68 against 57 in the previous year.

Since the end of the first week of the war the average number of admissions has been 19 per cent fewer than the pre-war average. A possible factor in the reduction of subsequent weeks, the London county council reported, was that voluntary evacuation has removed from the capital some persons who might have been in need of care.

THE LURE AND LORE OF LINEN (3)

By CALEB

SLENDER, erect, with gay blue flowers and globular seed-pods on its waist-high stems, the flax plant finds its home in such temperate and tropical regions as India, Argentina, the Baltic, and Ireland.

Along with rice, wheat, cotton and soy, it is one of man's most invaluable plants—furnishing linseed oil to industry and medicine, and linen and oakum to textile-maker and shipbuilder. Its name derives from the Anglo-Saxon fleax . . . while the fabric woven from its fibers is a variant of its botanical title, Linum usitatissimum.

The steps by which plant becomes fabric are simple. After pulling from the soil, the flax stems are "rippled" with an iron-toothed comb, to separate seed capsules from branches; then "retted," to remove resinous matter; and finally washed, broken and beaten, then drawn into threads with a comb. The long fibers are spun into linen, the short ones made into oakum. . . . The gay, blue-flowered favorite of Irish landscapes abandons sun and breeze to assume a new role as Irish linen.

For handkerchief purposes, however, this Irish linen travels far and wide before, as "a thing of beauty and a joy forever," it ultimately reaches its owner. Once it merely crossed the Channel to Appenzell, in Switzerland, and there was wrought into the finest of the fine for market. Today, however, some sixty per cent of our handkerchiefs come from China, and the remainder from France, Belgium, Porto Rico, the Madeira Islands, Switzerland, and our own America. The linen is shipped from Ireland—but many lovely specimens will have gone the rounds of a half-dozen Chinese communities, each famous for its one particular type of work, before setting sail for Marshall Field & Company.

At least half of the handkerchiefs featured today are in color; while in purpose and pattern both white and color run the gamut from rare, exquisite collector or gift items, to sports and novelty affairs of the moment. From trifles of a mere six inches to eye-openers two feet or more across, size likewise accommodates every occasion. Versatile workmanship ranges from simple hemming to hand embroidery; ajour (the French version of openwork); corded borders; mosaic work; spoke stitching; applique; hand-made lace; and similar nuances of the needle.

Lovers of the lovely always linger longest over the rarities in Belgian lace that grace our first-floor State Street display. Dainty confections of Malines, Rose Point, Valenciennes, Duchess, or Binch—they vie with those other quality triumphs, the tan-tinted, lace-edged creations in Pina cloth, imported from the Philippines. . . . As to the innumerable prints which glorify Field counters—but that is a separate story!

FOREIGN POWERS' PLANE ORDERS TO BE KEPT SECRET

Military Experts Blamed for Censorship.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12 [Special].—Responsible officials of the state, war, and navy departments are maintaining strict secrecy concerning the airplane procurement plans of foreign powers, especially belligerents in the European war. If present arrangements continue, all the public will learn about such developments will be occasional "leaks" from the offices of airplane manufacturers.

Under a new policy, encouraged by President Roosevelt, army and navy regulations have been revised to permit manufacturers to furnish American planes to foreign buyers as much as 18 months sooner than would have been possible under the practice existing before Sept. 28.

Only Part of List Known.

The aeronautical board has approved a list of types of American military airplanes, the makers of which are released immediately to seek foreign business if they can get it. This list, however, has not been made public.

The only type known to be on this list is the Curtis P-40, a fast plane which soon will be standard equipment for most pursuit squadrons of the United States army.

This plane was designed to army specifications to supplant the P-36, now in use, and is much faster. The P-36, however, has given an excellent account of itself under combat conditions in the French air corps. Official reports to the army and navy confirm newspaper accounts that these planes daily are besting the German Messerschmidts, which were supposed to be the best pursuit planes in the world.

Two Reasons for Secrecy.

One reason for secrecy concerning the list of released planes is said to be a fear of public opinion that foreign bidders are being favored over the domestic military establishment. Another reason is not widely discussed.

Holding the upper hand, so far, are the military technicians who have insisted that the policy on releasing planes for foreign sale must be extremely flexible and each case must be judged on its merits.

This has brought them into conflict with the state department, which insists that all releases, once made, must be general.

For example, the aeronautical board might be willing to sanction the release of a type of which the Swedish government wanted to purchase 50, where it would not favor a similar release if the Japanese government wanted to purchase 1,000.

Before any final decision is reached, it is said that these and other questions of conflicting policy must be settled by President Roosevelt.

HEAD OF EDITORS URGES FIGHT TO KEEP PRESS FREE

Donald J. Sterling, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, said yesterday American newspapers are dedicated to a "never ceasing fight for the maintenance of democratic institutions."

He declared it is the duty of newspaper editors to work unceasingly to make readers realize the value of a free press so that they will become willing helpers in the fight for its preservation.

Sterling, who is managing editor of the Portland, Ore., Journal, spoke at the midyear meeting of the board of directors of the society of newspaper editors.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

What is the best way to keep the United States from rule by dictatorship?

Where asked.

Near north side.

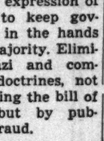
The Answers.

Miss Jerry Phillips, 120 East Pearson street, sculptor—The best way is to stay clear of any dynasty in this country. I mean the Roosevelt family. A third term would be a real danger. Roosevelt hasn't done anything to show he doesn't want war.

Arthur Talmadge, 4654 Monticello avenue, advertising man—Live up to the spirit and the letter of free speech; prevent any censorship of newspapers and radio. You must educate the public not to rely upon one man to do its thinking.

Irving Parsons, 222 West Adams street, managing director of Chicago Wholesale District Property Owners committee—Give everyone a free voice to express individual opinions, and then, from this nationwide chorus, find the right answer for the country's problems.

Lewis Harkey, Lawson Y. M. C. A., art student—Allow free expression of opinion to keep government in the hands of the majority. Eliminate Nazi and communist doctrines, not by violating the bill of rights, but by publicity and exposure of fraud.



Mark von Zendt, 58 East Bellevue place, salesman—Solve economic problems such as unemployment and starvation income. Such conditions lead to dictatorship. Citizens with full stomachs are not easily influenced to surrender their liberties. Hungry men are.

ACCUSED BRIBER OF PARKER TRIAL WITNESS SEIZED

Patrick Dwyer, alias Frank Murphy, who had been sought since August in connection with the Frank Parker counterfeiting case, was arrested yesterday in a rooming house at 2511 Van Buren street by state's attorney's police. He is under indictment on charges of conspiracy to offer a bribe to Arnold Becker to keep him from testifying in the Parker trial.

Becker was arrested by federal agents in Denver, April 15, the day after the Parker trial ended. The government had intended to use him as its chief witness, but was forced to drop four counts against Parker when Becker disappeared. Parker, however, was found guilty and sentenced to two years in the federal penitentiary and fined $10,000.

Charges of accepting the bribe and unlawfully withholding testimony are pending against Becker. A charge against Charles McGavin, a former congressman from the 8th Illinois district, of conspiring to have Becker remain out of the state during the course of the trial was dismissed by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson on Oct. 5. Dwyer, who is 52 years old, will be questioned today by A. Bradley Eben, assistant United States district attorney.

DEMAND RECALL OF SOVIET ENVOY TO WASHINGTON

N. Y. Socialists Denounce Hitler-Stalin Pact.

New York, Nov. 12 [Special].—Four thousand Socialists and trade unionists, meeting in Carnegie hall tonight, applauded denunciation of the Hitler-Stalin pact as a "betrayal of democracy" and cheered a demand for an investigation of published charges that Constantine A. Oumansky, now soviet ambassador to the United States, served as an agent of the soviet secret police when he was counselor of the soviet embassy in Washington.

The meeting was under the auspices of the National Council of the Social Democratic federation, various labor organizations, the Workmen's Circle, and the Jewish Daily Forward.

Charges Are Cited.

The demand for an investigation of Ambassador Oumansky was voiced by Louis Waldman, who presided, and who cited charges made against Oumansky by Walter G. Krivitsky, former general in the Red army, now in the United States. If the charges are substantiated, Waldman said, the ambassador's recall should be demanded by the state department.

Alexander Kerensky, premier of the first Russian government after the downfall of the czarist régime, declared that the collaboration between Stalin Russia and Hitler Germany was "quite logical and inevitable" and chided the democracies for believing that Stalin had ever had any intention of coöperating with them against Hitlerism and Fascism.

BROWDER'S NEW PLAN

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—Earl Browder, general secretary of the communist party in the United States, expanded tonight on his reference in Boston last week to what he called America's ripeness for a "quick transition to Socialism." At his desk in communist national headquarters Browder outlined the new order he advocates.

Opposition political parties, which, he said, usually are "put out of business," probably would meet the same fate as the 13 noncommunist parties that survived revolution in Russia. No party opposed to communism is permitted to exist in soviet Russia. The educational system would follow communist ideologies.

Religion would be purged of most of its present leaders and teachings. Religious institutions which could be "shown in public debate as not a social menace" to the new system would survive.

Industry, national economy, property and profits, would be taken over by the government and "expanded rapidly." The press is "a great industry; therefore, it is impossible to think of it continuing as it is."

Browder compared each phase of the government he recommends with the present soviet Russian government, in the wisdom and integrity of whose leaders, he said, he has "the greatest confidence."

A Bandit Goes to a Heap of Trouble for Nothing

A bandit put on a handkerchief mask and drew a revolver last night as he entered the Coronado hotel, 1061 Rosemont avenue. Then he approached the clerk, Clarence Eggers. But Eggers simply glared at him and said, "Get out." The bandit said, "No fooling, this is a holdup." Then Eggers got tough. "I said get out," he shouted and struck up the bandit's gun hand. So the bandit gave up. He turned, pocketed his gun and left quietly.

There's No Great Mystery
about Cigarette Tobaccos

THERE ARE FOUR TYPES of tobaccos found in the more popular cigarettes, namely... Bright, Maryland, Burley and Turkish.

ALL THESE TOBACCOS except Turkish (which is bought direct from the planters in Turkey and Greece) and Maryland (which is bought through sealed bids under government supervision) are bought at public auction, just like any other auction where you might have bought in a table or a chair.

AT THE AUCTION SALE the tobacco is piled in baskets weighing from about 100 to 500 pounds and each purchaser buys all of his tobaccos by competitive bidding for the particular piles he wants.

THE CHESTERFIELD BUYERS buy the best of these mild ripe tobaccos for the Chesterfield blend. And it is Chesterfield's Combination . . . the right amounts of Burley and Bright . . . just enough Maryland . . . and just enough Turkish—that makes the big difference between Chesterfield and other cigarettes.

IT IS BECAUSE of this combination that Chesterfields are COOLER, have a BETTER TASTE and are DEFINITELY MILDER. They are made of the world's best cigarette tobaccos. You can't buy a better cigarette.

PANAMA STAGES A BLACKOUT THAT IS REALLY BLACK

Extra Guards Watch Over Strategic Points.

BY PETER BRENNAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, Panama, Nov. 10 [By Air Mail].—Blackouts in Europe may be as common as salt, but the first one held Thursday night in the Panama Canal Zone and the Republic of Panama reduced the community to whispers. It lasted only fifteen minutes, but this was long and silent enough to make it effective.

The blackout was really the second in the program designed under President Roosevelt's limited emergency proclamation to protect the Panama canal. But the first exercise last month was confined to the Canal zone, which was comparable to putting out the lights in half the house and leaving the other half illuminated from top to bottom.

This month the Republic of Panama joined the Canal Zone in the test, and the blackout was nearly complete. Voluntary coöperation was not its basis; instead, at 10:45 p. m. Thursday switches thrown in electric power plants cut off the current in the terminal cities of Colon and Panama City, adjacent towns in the republic, and in every Canal Zone settlement from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Wait It Out in Homes.

In the zone communities, prototypes of any prosperous American suburb, most American residents awaited the enforced darkness in their homes. At army posts, the locks and other vital adjuncts to the waterway, extra guards stood watch against any contingency. Motor cars on the road halted when the siren on Sosa hill shrieked its signal. Navy and commercial vessels in the bay extinguished lights. A few blinking buoys in the channel were the only illumination.

In Panama City the transition was more marked. The garish capital was transformed into a fearsome place from which all life mysteriously had fled. There was no moon, but the stars shed sufficient light to reveal human forms huddled at street corners. In the plazas the usually gossipy groups talked in hushed voices.

Watch Suspicious Characters.

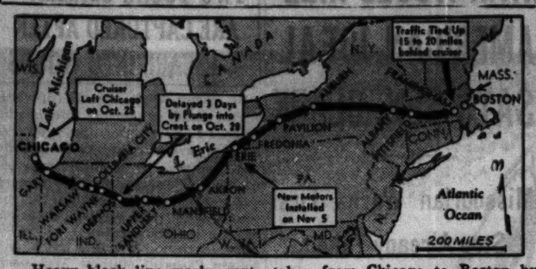
Firemen in their red flannel shirts, Russian boots, and black helmets guarded alarm boxes. A few policemen were stationed at strategic points; the majority had been recalled to the central station. No traffic moved.

Because Panama City is a transient center authorities took no chances. Suspicious characters were rounded up and kept under surveillance until the blackout was over.

Fireman Falls Four Floors, but Only Suffers Bruises

Fireman Mathew Schieder of Truck 4 amazed his comrades yesterday. While fighting a fire in a four story building at 4635 Broadway he fell from the roof. He fell all the way down, then picked himself up as Capt. Gus Gerstung ran up. The captain exclaimed, "My gosh, man, you should be dead after that!" Fireman Schieder started up a ladder, but the captain ordered him down for a medical examination. It showed that Schieder, who lives at 4850 North Claremont avenue, had suffered only bruises.

Snow Cruiser's Route to Boston



Heavy black line marks route taken from Chicago to Boston by snow cruiser built for Admiral Byrd's antarctic expedition. The cruiser arrived in Framingham, 20 miles from Boston, yesterday after having tied up 70,000 automobiles in 132 mile trip from Pittsfield.

SNOW CRUISER IN A JAM; TIES UP 70,000 CARS

Traffic Tangled for 20 Miles.

Framingham, Mass., Nov. 12 [Special].—After causing one of the worst traffic jams in the history of Massachusetts, the Byrd Antarctic expedition's snow cruiser was halted here at dusk and parked for the night beside the state police barracks.

The cruiser, which had journeyed today from Pittsfield, had only 20 miles to go to reach the army base in Boston where it will be loaded aboard Admiral Richard E. Byrd's polar ship North Star. Tomorrow night it will be at sea, barring mishaps such as have marked its cross country trip from Chicago.

Eugene M. McSweeny, public safety commissioner, estimated tonight that 70,000 automobiles were involved in the congestion of Sunday traffic along 90 miles of highway between Brookline and Springfield. At times cars were banked solidly for 20 miles back of the cruiser.

Long after the vehicle was parked for the night, highway patrolmen worked to untangle the jam.

Travels at 10 Miles.

The snow cruiser, which is 55 feet long, 15 feet high and 15 feet wide, weighs 75,000 pounds and requires a double traffic lane. As it lumbered along at its average of 10 miles an hour thru the Berkshires, the jam behind it became heavier and heavier. This in turn stalled cross traffic for miles on both sides of the highway.

The departure of the North Star has been held up for two weeks awaiting arrival of the snow cruiser, which had its first mishap Oct. 27, one day out of Chicago, where it was built under direction of Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, director of Armour institute's research foundation. Dr. Poulter has driven the cruiser thruout most of the trip from Chicago.

Collides with Truck.

The first mishap was a collision with a truck in Columbia City, Ind. Two days later the cruiser hit a bridge and plunged into a creek near Delphos, O. It was damaged considerably, and three days were required to get it back on the road. On Nov. 1 an oil line break delayed the cruiser for two hours. It reached Erie, Pa., Nov. 5 and new wheel motors were installed to replace those damaged in the creek plunge.

The next breakdown came Nov. 8 near Pavilion, N. Y., and several hours were lost in making repairs. The next day it broke down in Navarina, N. Y. Travel Friday and yesterday was without mishap.

The cruiser will be carried as deck load aboard the North Star, which is under sailing orders for tomorrow. The first port of call will be Philadelphia, where two planes for the expedition will be loaded. The next stop will be New Zealand.

MANTENO JURORS HEAR BOWEN ON EPIDEMIC TODAY

Director A. L. Bowen of the state department of public welfare will testify this afternoon before a special grand jury in Kankakee county regarding the typhoid epidemic at the Manteno state hospital, State's Attorney Samuel H. Shapiro, announced yesterday. He said Bowen had asked to appear and that he consented that the jury might have all the facts involved in the deaths of 53 patients and employés of the state institution.

Prosecutor Shapiro said he would outline to the jurors this morning the results of his investigation. He said he also would present records showing that the state health department had warned for eight years that the Manteno water supply was polluted, and that during all that time Bowen and other officials did nothing about it.

Representative W. J. Lawler of Springfield, chairman of a legislative committee assigned to visit state welfare institutions, has obtained permission for himself and members of his committee to appear before the jury.

U. S.-MEXICAN BRIDGE FALLS; 6 HURT; 1 MISSING

McAllen, Tex., Nov. 12 (AP).—One man was missing and six were suffering from critical injuries tonight following collapse of the $50,000 international bridge spanning the Rio Grande between Hidalgo, Tex., and Reynosa, Mexico.

The east cable of the suspension structure, built in 1928 and 1933, snapped on the Mexican side, then the west cable, unable to carry the entire weight, gave way more gradually.

Four automobiles, waiting to pay tolls on the American side, were damaged when they dropped 15 feet to the river bank. Two automobiles plunged from the bridge near the Mexican side. The driver of one of the machines, Francisco Delgado of Edinburg, is missing.

POCKET RAIDERS CAUSE AMERICAN NAVY TO WORRY

Lacks Warships of Same Speed and Power.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12 (AP).—There is reason to believe that Germany's roving pocket battleships are causing worry to American naval designers as well as the British navy.

The raiding Deutschland and Admiral Scheer have dramatized the embarrassing difficulties of dealing with this particular type of warship. There is reason to believe that American admirals, looking to the time when this nation might be involved in war, are seeking means to forestall any such a situation as now confronts the British and French fleets.

The United States of America has not a single vessel at this time rated capable both of catching and destroying such vessels as the Germans' speedy, heavily gunned craft.

Battleships Could Do Job.

Any one of the eight battleships now building or appropriated for could do the job easily, but battleships are intended for more vital rôles in war than chasing commerce raiders. They are too valuable also to risk on detached missions.

Further, it may be that Japan is building one or more super cruisers, more than a match for any of the 18 American heavy 10,000 ton, eight-inch gun cruisers already in service.

President Roosevelt, official circles have heard, has been devoting keen interest to the problem. This may be a factor in the months of delay in starting work on the last two cruisers for which congress voted initial funds last spring.

To Be of New Design.

It was announced originally that the two new cruisers, the Columbia and Cleveland, would be of about 8,000 tons and of a new design. The navy has made no further announcement.

The United States of America, along with other nations, previously appeared contemptuous of the three pocket battleships that Germany built before breaking the bonds of the Versailles treaty. [The third one is the Graf von Spee, which appears to have remained at home when her sister ships set out to harry the empires' shipping.]

The German ships are just under the 10,000 ton limit set by the Versailles treaty. Their speed of 26 knots is greater than that of any more powerful British or French ships with five exceptions. The exceptions are battleships or battle cruisers that are needed at home.

600 BUNNIES IN A ROW, SHOW LASTS 4 DAYS, SO WATCH 'EM GROW

The entry list in the show of the Tibbar Rabbit Breeders' association, to be held from Thursday thru Sunday at 6614 South Halsted street, with admission free, can only be fixed tentatively. There will be 600 rabbits the first day. But the show lasts four days. And you know rabbits.

Two German Freighters Leave Haven in Japan

TOKIO, Nov. 13, Monday (AP).—A Domei dispatch from Nagasaki today reported the sailing of two German freighters which twice before had left only to return when seen by enemy warships. The vessels were the 6,103 ton Elsa Essberger and the 5,173 ton Anneliese Essberger of Hamburg. Domei [Japanese news agency] said the ships were reported bound for Rotterdam.

O'HARE WARNED OF CAPONE RAGE IN PRISON CELL

Word Carried to Friend by Two Convicts.

According to records of the Illinois Racing commission, O'Hare held $193,000 worth of stock in Sportsman's Park. The track's total issue of stock was $500,000. John Patton, known as the boy mayor of Burnham, owns $211,000 worth of the stock. The rest is held in small amounts by ten or eleven persons.

Suavity Proves of Value.

In addition to his financial ability, O'Hare's education, brains, and suavity made it possible for the gang to operate in fields undreamed of in the bloody days of prohibition.

He was a clubman and had state legislators and judges as business partners. Miles Dyer, a respected business man of Missouri, was his partner in a big trucking business in St. Louis. Dyer said last night that altho the firm name still was Dyer & O'Hare, he had not been in partnership with O'Hare for 15 years. Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland of Chicago was O'Hare's partner in a south side real estate enterprise.

O'Hare had been well educated. He held a law degree and at the time of his death still was a member of the Missouri bar. His son, E. J. O'Hare Jr., is an Annapolis graduate and an officer in the United States navy. O'Hare sent his eldest daughter, Patricia, to a fashionable boarding school in France. Another daughter, Marilyn, 15 years old, is attending a private school in St. Louis. O'Hare sent $400 a month to his wife, who divorced him several years ago.

This was the man who was overtaken at Ogden avenue and Rockwell street Wednesday by assassins. Two shotgun charges struck him in the head and neck. His expensive coupe bounded over the curb and crashed against an electric light pole.

But not all of O'Hare's associations were so wholesome as those that made him invaluable to the gang. The fact that he could be a close friend and partner of Patton, who once was Capone's vice overlord for Cicero, Stickney, and Burnham, was proof of his versatility, police said.

Hideout Lavishly Furnished.

It also was recalled that O'Hare once had been convicted under the national prohibition law on charges of withdrawing whisky from a bonded warehouse. This was in connection with the activities of Mrs. George Remus, wife of the Cincinnati, O., bootlegger king. O'Hare's conviction later was reversed and he never was retried.

The Rogers Park hideout was discovered by Coroner Frank J. Walsh's investigators. It is a basement apartment in O'Hare's $100,000 building at 1220 Sherwin avenue. Walsh's men entered the expensively furnished rooms thru a door that bore double locks.

The windows are covered by Venetian blinds and light-tight curtains. There is no name plate or bell for the apartment. Its telephone number does not appear in the directory.

This establishment is in addition to the pretentious home O'Hare provided for his daughter, Patricia, at 221 Franklin avenue, Glencoe, and rooms for himself in the Illinois Athletic club and in the clubhouse at Sportsman's Park.

O'Hare went to the Sherwin avenue apartment when he deemed it discreet to drop from sight temporarily.

Rugs Scattered on Floor.

The place contained period furniture, oil paintings, and bronzes. Valuable rugs were scattered about the overall carpeting. There were a number of books marked "Private library of Edward J. O'Hare." A baked ham was on the kitchen table, but there was little other food in the apartment.

A mass of papers and letters was found, and these were being examined last night for clews to O'Hare's assassins.

A trust fund and two safety deposit boxes for which keys have been found will be the object of an inquiry today by Assistant State's Attorney Robert Wright and his investigators. Friday they uncovered two O'Hare checking accounts, totaling $42,000, in the First National bank. O'Hare is believed to have kept many thousands in cash.

One of the deposit vaults is in the Continental Illinois National bank, it was announced last night. Wright also expects to open a vault compartment today in a Wrigley building office that was occupied by two of O'Hare's advertising agencies. This will be done in the presence of Patricia O'Hare and Payton Tuohy, an attorney.

Daughter to Face Quiz.

Afterward the daughter will be questioned by Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office, and his assistant, Lieut. Thomas Kelly. They also will take a statement from Miss Ursula [Sue] Granata, sister of State Representative Peter C. Granata and friend of O'Hare.

She was granted permission to attend O'Hare's funeral Saturday in St. Louis on condition she would submit to questioning this morning. Miss Granata was found at the home of relatives after she had eluded investigators more than 36 hours after the slaying.

Capt. Gilbert also hopes to question Miss Antoinette [Toni] Cavaretta, O'Hare's Sportsman's Park secretary, in whose handwriting was found a note indicating a close association between the slain man and the federal bureau of investigation in Chicago. The memorandum, found on O'Hare's body, said federal men wanted to know what O'Hare knew of a bank robber and counterfeiter, Clyde Nemerich, who is a fugitive.

Judge Holland Tells of His Real Estate Deal with O'Hare

Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland last night issued a statement on his association in a south side real estate enterprise with E. J. O'Hare, millionaire front man for the Capone gang.

Judge Holland, who was under fire a year ago on the accusation by a fellow Municipal judge that he freed accused 700 bookies and gamblers a month, described his association with O'Hare as strictly a business proposition. Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court yesterday declared he will order an investigation.

Judge Holland's statement follows:

"A few years ago—about four or five—I joined a group of business men in a realty company which purchased three parcels of south side property. I considered the proposition a good investment. E. J. O'Hare was one of the stockholders and thru meetings of the stockholders I became well acquainted with him.

"During this period I did not see or hear of him doing a wrong thing. Every one I know, who knew him, regarded him as a fine man. He did not smoke, drink or use profane language.

"I have never heard of him being associated with hoodlums or racketeers. In fact, he was outspoken in his condemnation of them. If the so-called rumors of his association with the gangsters is correct, it will be a surprise and a shock to me and to many others."

Each of five original partners in the real estate enterprise put up $8,000 and began with the purchase of property involved in the collapse of the Bain banks.

STOLEN CAR STRIKES TRUCK; THREE HURT, PLACED UNDER GUARD

Herrin, Ill., Nov. 12 [Special].—Herman Nation, Emery Runnels and Curtis Gulledge, all of Harrisburg, are in a hospital here as a result of an automobile crash last night. Each has a broken leg and broken arm. A stolen car in which they were riding crashed into a coal truck near Johnston City.

Nation, 21 years old today; Runnels and Gulledge, both 20, were returning to Harrisburg from Benton at the time of the crash. The automobile had been stolen from a Harrisburg dealer's used car lot.

The three are under guard while Herrin, West Frankfort and Christopher police investigate two kidnapings and a filling station robbery which took place last night. Jack Berge, 19, of Herrin, was seized in his own car by two men, bound, placed in the rear seat and driven about for seven hours before he and the car were abandoned in Benton.

The two who seized Berge also kidnaped E. D. Niblett of Christopher, stripped him except for his underclothing, drove him around for several hours and then threw him into a ditch. Police Chief Walter Clark of West Frankfort suspects that the kidnapers of Berge and Niblett are the pair who robbed a West Frankfort filling station of $10.

WAR WOULD KILL AMERICAN IDEAL, SAYS SEN. CLARK

Missourian Warns First Step Already Taken.

United States Senator Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.], in a strong warning against letting America be drawn into the war, declared last night that Europe's battlefields are unworthy of being the scene of the death of American ideals.

That would happen if this nation went to war, he predicted, for war probably would mean a dictatorship, and a dictatorship, he implied, would mean the end of traditional ideals.

The Missouri senator, a leader in the recent fight against repeal of the arms embargo, spoke before the New Trier Sunday Evening club in the New Trier High school, Winnetka. He hammered at the Roosevelt administration and said it violated the spirit of neutrality.

Calls Repeal "Choosing Sides."

"I fully agreed," Senator Clark said, "with President Roosevelt's 1936 speech in which he condemned those who wanted 'fool's gold' thru the breakdown of neutrality. I only wish the President would adhere now to that neutrality stand as he did in 1936.

"Members of the administration and congress openly avowed help to Britain and France during the arms embargo fight. These proponents of repeal changed the rules of the game while the game was in progress. Repeal was only a quiet process of choosing sides.

"In repealing the embargo, the first step toward war has been taken. Any further tampering with the neutrality law will mark successive steps toward entering the war. Already the international bankers are moving heaven and earth for us to take sides with one of the belligerents."

Warns Nation to Be Alert.

The senator said he detected two "warlike signs" in governmental affairs. One was in the President's limited national emergency proclamation, and the other in his shifting of control of the Panama canal zone to the army.

"The limited national emergency proclamation actually has no limitations at all," said the senator. "That proclamation is just the same as any national proclamation issued in wartime. As for the Panama canal zone, shifting of its control to the army can be done only when a state of war exists."

Senator Clark said that unless the nation is alert, martial music will be heard again, and staggering war budgets will be jammed thru on the pretext of national defense.

TWO YOUNG GUNMEN ARE CAPTURED AFTER ESCAPE INTO WOODS

St. Ignace, Mich., Nov. 12 [Special].—Two young automobile thieves who escaped from Wisconsin peace officers and fled here in a sheriff's automobile were captured by Michigan state police today. The youths were hungry and shivering after a night in the woods with the temperature at 25 degrees and snow falling.

Robert Noel of Dearborn, Mich., and Nelson Pasha of Mosinee, Wis., each 17 years old, were being returned Friday night to Wisconsin Rapids, Ia., from Plymouth, Ind., where they were caught with a stolen car, when one of them sneaked a pistol from Police Chief Roland S. Payne's pocket. The prisoner fired a shot which passed thru the coat of Cliff Bluett, undersheriff of Wood county, Wisconsin.

Payne turned in the front seat to grapple with the youth, was seized with a heart attack and died. The youths overpowered Bluett, handcuffed him to Payne's body, and put them out of the car, which they drove here and abandoned when chased by state police. The youths will be arraigned tomorrow for an extradition hearing.

Seven American Bombers at Lima on Good Will Hop

LIMA Peru, Nov. 12 (AP).—Seven United States army air corps bombers on a good will flight to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, landed at Limatambo airport here today after a nine hour flight from Cristobal, Canal Zone. The mission, which started from Langley field, Virginia, is in charge of Flight Commander Maj. Gen. Delos Emmons. A crew of 56 officers and men is in charge of the 23 ton ships.

NIGHT COUGHING CAN OFTEN BE PREVENTED

Your child's coughing at night caused by throat "tickle" or irritation, mouth breathing, or a cold—can often be prevented by rubbing his throat and chest with plenty of Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. VapoRub's swift poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm, relieves irritation, clears air passages, tends to stop mouth breathing. This helps him relax into healing sleep. VICKS VAPORUB

FRANCO DISPUTES WITH VATICAN ON HOSTILE CLERICS

Seeks Power to Select Friendly Bishops.

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 12.—Gen. Francisco Franco is determined to remove from Spain Cardinal Vidal y Barraquer and several bishops because he believes them to be hostile to his régime, it was authoritatively learned today.

Cardinal Barraquer.

The cardinal and the bishops, according to Spanish circles, refused to sign a pastoral letter in support of the Franco movement published during the civil war by Cardinal Isidoro Goma, primate of Spain, on Franco's advice.

As a consequence the conflict of views over the prerogatives of the church in Fascist Spain has developed during negotiations which are going on between the Vatican and Madrid. The situation is held to be so grave that to avoid the danger of a deadlock, Msgr. Cicognani, nuncio to Madrid, in accordance with instructions from the Vatican, shortly will go to Toledo and discuss the controversy with Cardinal Goma.

Settlement by Spanish Tribunal.

In order to reach his objective, Franco is asking the reënactment of the old concordat concluded between the Vatican and Queen Isabella II. in 1851, which regulated Vatican-Spanish relations until the fall of the monarchy. It never was abrogated by the republican régime which followed it.

By the terms of this concordat, all religious controversies were to be settled by a Spanish tribunal and not by the Vatican tribunal in Rome. Moreover the throne had the right to appoint bishops in Spain.

If these privileges were granted, Franco, it is said in the Vatican, not only would be empowered to appoint bishops favorable to his régime but would be in a strong position to demand the deposition or retirement of those prelates already appointed.

The Spanish contention now is that the privileges of the monarchy should be granted to the Franco government, which defended the interests of the church thruout the civil war, and in addition appropriated huge sums of money to defray the expenses of the church.

Vatican Has Other Views.

The Vatican, it is reported, considers the old concordat abrogated with the fall of the monarchy and supports its argument with the fact that after the end of the world war in 1918 15 new concordats were concluded with governments that succeeded those existing before the war.

Moreover, the Vatican says that a new code of canon law was promulgated in 1918 whereby the state was denied the privilege of appointing its bishops and of having ecclesiastical tribunals.

—TIME, October 16, 1939

Where does that leave YOU, Mrs. America? Yes, this is only a war measure in a dictatorship. But it is a very fine example of EFFICIENCY for any government. One good strong soap for all purposes!

After all, there's no good reason for white soaps, pink soaps, plain soaps and scented ones. No good reason except one. You, my dear lady, want them!

That blessed right of yours to choose what you want is worth fighting for!

And for over 50 years Good Housekeeping has been fighting this good fight for you.

Even here in America there are those who would require you to take what they think you should have instead of what you want. They are not willing to put the facts and the merchandise before you and let you decide for yourself.

Good Housekeeping opposes this—violently and bitterly.

Good Housekeeping believes that she needs protection from fraud, from misleading advertising and, most of all, protection from the busybodies who want to tell her:

"It is more efficient to have all your dresses the same cut. It is more economical to have ugly but durable furniture. It is more sensible to regiment you and make you conform to strict rules."

THIS IS THE WAY WE SEE IT . . .

In our editorial pages, month by month, we bring you authentic news of all that is new. Let the critics rage that a fluffy new powder puff or a fancy new streamlined iron are fripperies and vanities. But we will defend you to the last in your right to choose from a vast variety and style of goods honestly made, honestly presented—both in Good Housekeeping's advertising and editorial pages.

We have spent a million dollars in Good Housekeeping testing laboratories during the last 5 years to separate the impractical, the unworkable, the fraudulent or dangerous product from the good, the new, the "nice" and desirable one.

We expect to go on spending money doing this—to go on giving seals of approval to eligible merchandise—and to fight for your right to exercise your own good judgment and your own good sense in selecting what pleases you as against being forced to select what pleases some policeman or minion of a misguided dictatorship.

Tested and Approved by Good Housekeeping Institute Conducted by Good Housekeeping Magazine

Tested and Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau Conducted by Good Housekeeping Magazine

Good Housekeeping is an open book for anyone who has an eligible product to sell. There is only one condition: the product must perform what is promised and do what is claimed in the manufacturer's advertisement.

All products advertised in the magazine are carefully examined to this end by Good Housekeeping's technical staff. If any one of them proves defective, or not as advertised, it is either replaced or the money refunded.

In addition to this, any manufacturer whose product comes within the testing scope of Good Housekeeping Institute or Good Housekeeping Bureau can bring in his product and have it tested free, whether he advertises in the magazine or not, provided (1) he is established with good stability and (2) his product is sold with reasonably wide distribution.

This service, which has cost the magazine over a million dollars in the last five years, is designed to protect the consumer, without in any way interfering with her freedom of choice.

THE SAINTS BE PRAISED! FATHER TOM MARCHES ON

St. Columbkille Church a Monument to Him.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

When Chicago writes her legends the name of Good Father Tom of St. Columbkille's parish will appear in letters of light in the chapter on the Irish tradition.

Father Terence O'Brien.

A man of Limerick was Father Tom Burke, round faced, benign, a hulking figure in an ancient cassock; his tongue a musical instrument of saintly wisdom and Irish wit. By a hundred whimsicalities, all good grist for the telling, was he endeared to his Celtic flock.

His was a faith to move mountains, direct and simple as a child's, and proving, upon more than one occasion, confounding to the mighty. "Where good Father Tom walks," they used to say, "you can hear the rustle of wings."

His Charity a Proverb.

His method of effecting personal economies was a joke, but his charity was a proverb. "Sure, him," they used to say, "for all of his size, 'tis the wonder of the world that the heart of him doesn't burst out and swallow him up entirely." This was Father Tom as the old timers recall him.

The story of St. Columbkille's is Father Tom's story.

A profund classicist, Father Tom held that Ireland's crowning glory was its saints and scholars. He set himself the task of building here a temple to the gentle Irish saint, the Dove of the Church, Columbkille, from which would issue the best that Irish heads and hearts could give to the new country.

How well he built in stone, the church block at Paulina street and Grand avenue gives monumental evidence. How zealously he built in the way of the spirit was proved within one generation. St. Columbkille's became known as the parish of priests.

Bennie Sheil a Bishop Now.

There was Bennie Sheil, one of Father Tom's altar boys. He was a mannerly lad and studious, but a whiz with a baseball bat or on a bicycle. Today he is Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, administrator of the Chicago archdiocese, and he's known wherever men are concerned with the guidance of the young as the founder of the Catholic Youth organization. Bishop Edward F. Hoban of Rockford was Eddie Hoban, to the neighbors.

At the first mass in the parish, antedating Father Tom's pastorate, the servers were the late Patrick Riordan and his brother Dan. Patrick was to become archbishop of San Francisco and Dan a monsignor and the pastor of St. Elizabeth's church here. Father Dan was assistant priest at the golden jubilee mass in St. Columbkille's on Oct. 2, 1910.

The brilliant linguist, Edmund M. Dunne, later bishop of Peoria, was a curate in Father Tom's day. In the Congregation of the Holy Cross there is a Columbkille contingent that includes Matthew Walsh, former president of the University of Notre Dame; James Wesley Donahue, provincial of the order, and the Burke brothers—Tom and Eugene, Father Tom's nephews. Readers of Arch Ward's "Wake of the News" column in THE TRIBUNE know Father Tom's namesake as "T. E. B." and Father Eugene as "Owen Lir."

A Fountainhead of Pastors.

To the Jesuits went eloquent Emmett O'Connell, now at Detroit university. Denis O'Brien became a monsignor and was made pastor of St. Columbanus church. At his death another of Father Tom's boys, Father William J. Gorman, who also is chaplain for the Chicago fire department, succeeded to the St. Columbanus pastorate. Father William I. Ward is pastor of St. Rose of Lima's, Father Steve Sullivan at St. Joseph's in Homewood, Msgr. John Code at St. Edmund's in Oak Park, Father Edward O'Malley at St. Philip Neri's, Father Henry Fitzgerald at the Church of the Nativity, and there are many more.

The Sisters of Mercy, the Sisters of Charity, the Dominicans, the Visitandines, the Sisters of Providence all number in their religious communities daughters of St. Columbkille's.

First as a mission of St. Patrick's the parish was established in 1859. St. Patrick and Holy Family parishes set the southern boundary. From there, in Father Tom's words, "it took in most of the west side and all the country 'round." Calls from as far away as Maywood would bring the old priest, often plowing thru snowdrifts in his creaking buggy, to administer the Viaticum and the last rites of the church.

Before Father Burke was appointed in February of 1862, brief pastorates were served by Father P. A. Ward and Father Edward Kenney.

The Irish Go to the Wars.

In those early days the thoughts of men in the parish, as elsewhere, were occupied with great national issues. At wedding or wake conversation inevitably turned to Calhoun, Lincoln, and Douglas, and what they were saying of the indissolubility of the Union and the rights of state. The butcher's and the blacksmith's sons came home in blue uniforms.

Finally came the word that down at St. Patrick's Father Dennis Dunne was organizing an Irish regiment for Mulligan's brigade, with Col. Tim O'Meara in command.

With Mike Doherty, the contractor, directing them, the men hurried their work on the little frame church that was going up on Rumsey street, now Marshfield avenue. Then in the church they had helped to build the soldiers of St. Columbkille's and all the parish assembled for a farewell mass.

There was another military mass in the parish 57 years later. But the church of 1918 was an imposing Gothic temple of stone and stained glass windows. A radiance of candles suffused a carved and gilded altar. From where they stood vigil above the sanctuary, Bridget and Columbkille looked down upon a service flag of 100 stars.

Father Tom Brings Prosperity.

With Father Burke's advent St. Columbkille's entered upon its prosperous period of growth. A. L. Morrison, the justice of the peace, who later was marshal of New Mexico, opened a Sunday school where the children flocked from miles around to recite their catechism and feast on cookies. A St. Vincent de Paul society was organized by P. B. Sheil, Bishop Sheil's grandfather, and William J. O'Neil, one of the first trustees and the mainstay of the choir. James O'Neil, his son, is heir to the trusteeship and continues the St. Vincent charities.

And in poured the Irish—Donovans, Dillons, Dolans, Sullivans, Hayeses, Rileys, Closes, Kellys, Cullens, Conroys, Dunnigans, Foys, Flynns, Flannigans, Gormans, Keevans, Monahans, Mooneys, O'Connors, and O'Tooles. Up and down Rumsey, Indiana [Grand], Wood, Erie, and Ohio streets plodded Father Tom, his ancient cassock fluttering below a more ancient great-coat; a muffler tied about his neck, and on his head an elegant silk topper if it happened to be a holy day. For the children there was a paternal pat; for the older sons and daughters a word of praise or a word of advice; for the old a mellow memory of the Irish yesterdays.

New Church Begun in 1871.

Father Tom laid the corner stone of the new church in 1871. He called St. Vincent's white bonneted Daughters of Charity to establish a St. Columba academy for the girls and sturdy Marcellinus and his Holy Cross brothers to conduct the boys school.

Father Tom was pastor of St. Columbkille's for 37 years. He died June 7, 1899. He was buried in Calvary cemetery.

Scholarly Father N. J. Mooney, who had been chancellor of the archdiocese, succeeded Father Burke. During his pastorate the Sisters of Providence took over the schools.

At Father Mooney's death in 1906, Father P. J. Tinan was appointed pastor. Father Philip Traynor was appointed four years later. The present pastor, Father Terence O'Brien, succeeded him in 1925.

It was during Father Tinan's pastorate that the aspect of the parish began to change. Industry moved in and families moved out.

But the scattered Irish could not forget.

Last Sunday hundreds came back for the memorial mass offered each year in November for the repose of the souls of St. Columbkille's dead.

Three years ago the late Charles L. Chambers, Father Gorman, Ward, and some of the others called for a reunion of St. Columbkille's clans. More than 1,400 crowded the dining hall in the La Salle hotel. The St. Columbkille Old Timers' association was organized. There were more the next year in the Hotel Sherman. James G. Sullivan, assistant to the chief justice of the Circuit court, took Chambers' place as chairman for the third party last May. Close to 2,000 Sullivans, Hogans, Keevans, Cullens, and Carboys—judges, business men, public officials, professors, priests—turned back the clock and sunned themselves again in the benign light of Father Tom's smile.

OIL AND GAS RIGHTS OF CHURCH PROPERTY ISSUE IN HIGH COURT

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 12 (AP).—The question of whether a Marion county church holds the oil and gas rights in its half acre estate, or whether drilling operations have caused reversion of the property to heirs of the original owners, is the major issue in a case on file in the state Supreme court.

The Baptist church of Pleasant Grove, near Salem, leased its property Aug. 26, 1938, to Charles A. Baldwin and Clinton G. Farthing, who put down a producing oil well.

The land was deeded to the church in November, 1876, by Madison G. and Susan Williams. Their heirs also signed a lease with Allen Rule and W. R. Clark, contending that under a reversion clause in the deed the land should come into their possession.

The church originally instituted suit to quiet title by having the first lease set aside. The Marion county Circuit court held that the church could execute a lease and the heirs appealed to the high court.

FRENCHMEN FLY PLANE TO BRAZIL IN STRATOSPHERE

PARIS, Nov. 12.—France's distance flight champion, Lieut. Paul Codos, and Capt. Henri Guillaumet have made a successful nonstop stratosphere hop from Paris to Rio de Janeiro, it was announced today. The flight was kept secret and the announcement gave no indication of the date of the exploit. Photographs published in the Paris press showed the plane on its arrival and Lieut. Codos with a Brazilian military official.

The plane used was a specially constructed, airtight, bi-motored ship for high altitude work, named after the French astronomer, Camille Flammarion. Paul Comet, navigator, and Jacques Neri, radio officer, completed the crew on the Brazilian flight.

The 24 ton Camille Flammarion and two more similar planes now being built, are said to be intended for use in regular stratosphere service, beginning in 1940, between Paris and New York.

G. O. P. LEADERS PLAN INTENSIVE BATTLE IN 1940

Chicago Is Favored as Convention City.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12 (AP).—Republican leaders disclosed today that they were considering concentrating their efforts to capture the presidency in 1940 in a short, intensified campaign of eight or nine weeks, ending with the November election.

Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, the Republican senate chieftain, said he expected this proposal to be given major attention when the Republican national committee meets in December or January to discuss plans for the 1940 convention.

If this strategy is adopted, the Republicans may hold their convention late in June or early in July, after the Democrats have nominated a candidate and drawn a platform.

Most discussed convention site in Republican circles here has been Chicago. Some party leaders believe that holding the meeting there would help bring Illinois back into the Republican camp.

Favored by Vandenberg.

The short campaign idea was reported to have the indorsement of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], a potential candidate for the presidential nomination. Vandenberg expressed the opinion that a campaign starting about Sept. 1 and maintained at top speed until November would be much more effective than a drive which lagged through July and August and then was forced to pick up pace in the fall months.

Dewey Backers Busy.

A campaign organization for Thomas E. Dewey, New York district attorney, is being established. Vandenberg has opened a headquarters only for his campaign for reelection to the senate, but friends recently put out a broadside urging him for the presidency. Senators Robert A. Taft [R., O.] and Styles Bridges [R., N. H.] have scheduled many speaking engagements.

Friends of Senator McNary, who has been put forth as a possible candidate of a bloc of northwestern states, are talking of holding a meeting in Spokane, Wash., early in December to launch a boom for him.

McNary has disavowed any desire for the presidency, but told friends that if a northwestern bloc could be welded he felt that it could have a powerful voice not only in helping write the Republican platform but in determining the type of nominee.

The northwestern bloc strategy is understood to have met with the approval of Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho], who already has indicated that he intends to take an active part in the next national convention.

ROOSEVELT FOES DETERMINED TO BLOCK 3D TERM

Hail Garner Campaign as Opening Gun.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—Reaction of Democratic leaders to the shattering of the Roosevelt political truce by Vice President John N. Garner revealed today that the split in the Democratic party caused by the President's policies still endures.

Conservative Democratic senators who supported the President on his neutrality repealer, including several of whom Mr. Roosevelt endeavored to purge his party last year, said that the truce applied only to the war measure. That was one of the few questions on which they see eye to eye with the President.

When it comes, however, to the third term, to deficit financing, to state socialism, to antagonism to business, to the excesses of Wagner act administration and to other aspects of the New Deal they are as much opposed to the President as ever and purpose to fight him to the last ditch in the Democratic national convention.

Fight New Deal Rule.

While few of them are definitely committed to Garner for the Democratic nomination for President, all of them hailed the active initiation of his campaign last week as the first gun in the fight of the conservatives to free their party of New Deal domination.

Among the New Dealers there was only amused contempt for the Garner candidacy which they professed to regard merely as strategic maneuvering by Cactus Jack to get himself renominated for Vice President along with Mr. Roosevelt. At the proper moment in the convention they believe Mr. Garner will concede the victory of Mr. Roosevelt as in 1932 and then will be awarded the consolation prize as in 1932.

Most of the New Dealers are supremely confident that Mr. Roosevelt will be renominated, despite the traditional prejudice against a third term for any President. This prejudice they believe will be overborne by the consideration that it would be unwise to change Presidents while the European war is in progress and by the further consideration that no Democrat except Mr. Roosevelt stands a Chinaman's chance of winning the election.

Garner Going Into Primaries.

The Garner managers are preparing to enter the Vice President in the presidential direct primaries in which 470 of the 1,100 delegates to the national convention will be selected and otherwise to work for instructed delegates. They predict that Garner will go into the convention with the largest block of instructed delegates.

The New Dealers are urging the selection of uninstructed delegates, who would be free to plump for the President or for a candidate of his choice. They are willing to concede that Mr. Garner may get the largest number of instructed delegates, maybe 200 to 300, but they don't think it will do him any good except possibly to get him on the ticket again in second place. For the New Dealers are confident the convention will wind up by drafting Mr. Roosevelt, even if in the meantime he should have taken himself out of consideration as definitely as did Calvin Coolidge with his "I do not choose to run."

Push McNutt Candidacy.

Out in Indianapolis Frank McHale is pushing the candidacy of Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, who hopes to be the Roosevelt favorite for the nomination if the President should not choose to run. But something seems to have happened to the candidacy of Postmaster General James A. Farley. Last summer Mr. Farley toured the country, sounding local Democratic leaders, and returned full of confidence that at least 300 delegates would vote for him on the first roll call.

Now the postmaster general appears to take his chances of the nomination no more seriously than others have. Some think it's because he knows that the President intends to be a candidate for a third term.

Regard Roosevelt as Confident.

The President has made a good deal of political capital out of the war, with the result that the aspirations of other Democrats to the nomination have been thrown into the shade. Many politicians believe that this phenomenon has helped to convince the President that he can be renominated and reëlected.

At any rate the belief that Mr. Roosevelt intends to seek a third term is more prevalent now than before the war started. Potential candidates are waiting for some indication of the presidential purpose. It is thought that Mr. Roosevelt may vouchsafe some inkling of it at the Jackson Day dinner in January. Mr. Garner is said to be withholding a formal announcement of his candidacy till after that time.

The carnival was held as part of the week-end entertainment program for the thousands of fathers of Illinois students who were on the campus for the annual Dad's day celebration. Geraldine Wright of Joliet, a member of Chi Omega sorority, and Gwendolyn Munts, Elgin, a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority, were maids of honor.

11 VOTE WORKERS JAILED ON POLLS FRAUD CHARGES

4 Women Held; Group to Face Court Today.

Eleven men and women election officials, the first of a group of more than 50 to be named in warrants charging contempt as a result of the general recount ordered by County Judge Jarecki in all elections in the county during the last two years, were locked up over the week-end in the county jail by state's attorney's police.

They are to be taken before Judge Jarecki today to answer charges of fraud exposed in the recount. The recount was undertaken after State's Attorney Courtney presented Judge Jarecki with the October grand jury report, showing widespread election irregularities.

Four Women in Custody.

The women in custody are Mrs. Rose Zarlinga, 3904 Grenshaw street, 24th ward; Mrs. Edna Walsh, 359 East 26th street, 1st ward, and Miss Ann Turrisi, 637 West 26th street, and Mrs. Gladys Spizzirri, 2723 Union avenue, both of the 11th ward.

Others locked are Julius Stovitsky, 3656 Grenshaw street; Paul Kahn, 3708 Grenshaw street; Sidney Bank, 4237 Grenshaw street, and Harold Burmeister, 3925 Fillmore street, all of the 24th ward; George Brennan, 2631 Prairie avenue, and Roy Booker, colored, 2728 Calumet avenue, 1st ward, and Edward Shader, 2707 Union avenue, 11th ward.

Plan to Map Fraud Fight.

Two luncheons for the discussion of the election fraud problem are scheduled for tomorrow and Wednesday. The politicians and other interested observers are watching both to ascertain whether they will produce parallel efforts for honest elections or two competing movements or whether the two movements will be amalgamated.

Representatives of more than a score of organizations active in civic affairs which have coöperated for several years under the name of the Honest Ballot committee have been invited to a luncheon tomorrow in the Great Northern hotel. The invitations were sent by the chairman, Mrs. Harriet M. Robertson, president of the Women's Civic council.

Bar Group Sponsors Luncheon.

Some of the same organizations have been asked to send representatives to a luncheon Wednesday in the rooms of the Chicago Bar association. This meeting is sponsored by the bar association's committee on elections, of which Fred L. Wham Jr. is chairman. The committee action was authorized by the association's board of governors.

In her letters calling the meeting of the Honest Ballot committee Mrs. Robertson said the committee was organized in 1934 to correlate work of civic organizations in supplying watchers and challengers at the polls and that it has functioned in all elections in the last four years.

"As an example," she continued, "the organizations working with the Honest Ballot committee furnished 1,500 volunteer watchers, covering 794 of the worst precincts in Cook county in the November, 1936, election. These watchers were influential in preventing many fraudulent practices in that and succeeding elections."

She said that the meeting tomorrow is to plan similar activities for 1940.

Plan Study of Polls Staff.

The text of an announcement in the current issue of the Chicago Bar Record, published by the bar association, said the elections committee was authorized "to invite the leading civic organizations in the Chicago area to participate in a conference over ways and means for staffing every polling place with competent nonpartisan watchers at all elections."

"The committee on elections," the announcement continued, "has hitherto devoted its energies primarily to manning the polls with watchers at judicial elections. But it found that the task of policing the polls could not be accomplished effectively even at judicial elections without a city-wide organization which no single group could undertake alone.

"With the vigorous coöperation of all interested agencies and the support of the press, a joint citizens' committee on elections can be formed to build up a permanent corps of watchers to guard the polls at future elections."

IT'S A GREAT YEAR TO SEE AMERICA!

Americans are traveling in America this year. And most of us—repatriates, ex-tourists and stay-at-homes—are going to see America from a new angle. We may see new places or the same familiar places, but we'll have an added respect in our eye, and in our hearts a more wholesome appreciation of our own unparalleled opportunities for living.

Eastern Air Lines devotes itself to the job of showing off America with whole-hearted enthusiasm. We've always felt that silver wings in the sky served most appropriately as the soaring symbol of Democracy and the Freedom to Enjoy Life. When you can hop from Chicago to Miami on a Friday night (plane leaves Chicago 6:45 P.M., arrives Miami 5:55 A.M.), spend a full two days in Florida's sunshine and return Sunday night—that's Freedom. When you can fly home from a far off business trip in a few hours, and spend the time saved from travel snug in the bosom of the family—that's Enjoying Life!

Wherefore, Eastern Air Lines proposes its own four-point program dedicated to America's Silver Wings and what they stand for:

1 that Silverliner service to Florida this year will make possible more grand and glorious vacations than ever before. An augmented Great Silver Fleet will serve Florida's many playgrounds.

2 that air cruises to Mexico via Brownsville will inaugurate the newest travel mode—12-day vacations that allow for 12 days in Mexico.

3 that travelers to the busy industrial cities throughout the South will continue to be served with the utmost in speed, comfort and convenience The Great Silver Fleet has to offer.

4 that wherever you're going this year, it will pay you to call any Travel Bureau, Hotel Transportation Desk, Telegraph Office or local Airline Office and find out about flying!

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

HOW FREE IS RADIO?

S. H. Dalrymple, president of the United Rubber Workers, complained to the Federal Communications commission that an Akron, O., radio station had canceled a contract with his organization for a broadcast known as the "Voice of Labor." The communications commission in reply said that the communications act does not regard radio stations as common carriers and that therefore they legally may refuse to sell time to any particular individual or organization.

Recently the National Association of Broadcasters adopted a code called a code of ethics, one provision of which prohibited the sale of time for the discussion of controversial issues. The reply of the federal commission to the Akron protest seemed to recognize the independence and freedom of broadcasting, but the commission took the opportunity to observe, on the side, that: "The adoption of a code of ethics by the National Association of Broadcasters does not in any way alter the duties under existing laws and rules and regulations of the commission."

The communications act requires the stations to apply for renewal of their licenses each year and they must show "that their operations serve public interest, convenience, and necessity." This reference to the stranglehold the commission has upon the life of every licensed station was a warning which seriously modified the seeming concession that the radio was free and independent, subject only to the libel and other laws which impose responsibility for public utterance and public writing.

The commission had a purpose in reminding the stations that they exist by license and that the burden of proof is upon them to show each year that they are serving public interest. The definition of public interest, convenience, and necessity is wholly within the prerogative of the commissioners. The burden is upon the station to meet whatever requirements the commission may feel bold enough at any time to set up. It does not devolve upon the commission to prove that the station is not serving the public interest, but upon the operators to prove that they are and to the commission.

Such a control, however much it may, in opportunism, be restrained, is intended to keep the radio under a censorship which by intimidation has, indeed, all the repression of the old licensing acts which made every printer subject to the arbitrary will of the crown. A licensed press could be and was suppressed every time it published anything distasteful to the rulers. The definition of offense was entirely in the government prerogative.

The rights and privileges of the English masses were never really advanced until the printers fought their way out from under the licensing system. It was dropped in the reign of William and Mary. Other restrictions were imposed, taxation was used to destroy, but when the printers found low priced newsprint and could defy the government to stop their discussion of political questions, the English people got a new charter of liberties, preserved until the present war dictatorship suspended it.

The government controls were clamped on the printing press when it was a newly found instrument for the dissemination of news and opinion. Authority dreaded it because it was new and properly feared it because it was powerful. The radio is a comparatively new medium of communicating news and opinion, the full uses of which still are being explored and developed. Governmental authority feared it, just as it feared the printing press. Authority was able in the early experimental stages to clamp the licensing system on it and it is still able to continue that control.

The long established freedom of the press is so backed by public opinion that some of its protections are extended to the licensed radio. The government does not quite dare as yet do all the burocrats might like to do. They feel constrained to control by intimation and intimidation, but the fact that each station must appear before the commission as a pleader with proof that it is serving the public interest is a condition which must weigh heavily upon the freedom of many managements. They will hesitate to offend the administration because that offense might count against them when application for renewal is presented.

It is well understood that the broadcasters' code of ethics was drawn primarily to keep Father Coughlin off the air. And also it is generally understood that one of Father Coughlin's offenses, if not his principal offense, was his violent criticism of Mr. Roosevelt's administration. His intemperate remarks on other subjects, his radical and social prejudices, presented a hard case for the freedom of speech to defend. But, nevertheless, such hard cases frequently test the ability of a people to keep their privileges. If Father Coughlin had not been so obnoxious to the administration the broadcasters might not have been so willing to suppress him.

THE CONTINENTAL WILL BE FREE.

Friday, Dec. 1, will be a red letter day in Chicago's history. On that day the city's largest bank, it has just been announced, will get completely out of hock to the government.

The indebtedness, originally 50 million dollars, had previously been paid down to 25 million dollars. It was represented by preferred stock held by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. By virtue of stock ownership the government was placed in a position to dictate the election of directors of the bank, who in turn elect the officers, and to prescribe rules for the institution's operation.

Supervision of banking operations is a proper function of government so long as it is disinterested. But the government has become itself a large debtor at the banks, and so large a debtor that its borrowings are greatly in excess of all other borrowings combined.

The government's loans were moreover objectionable, not only because of their quantity but also because of their quality. A sound commercial bank employs its depositors' funds by making loans which are self-liquidating; loans are made to finance the fabricating of materials and the marketing of goods. After several months the transaction is completed, the goods are delivered, the money is collected from customers, and the obligation at the bank is paid off. With a commercial loan, the means for liquidating are definitely in sight before a dollar is advanced.

Not so with government loans. The funds obtained from banks are used to pay burocrats' salaries and for public roads, to buy consumable materials and build battleships, to provide relief, and pay bonuses to farmers for cutting down production. The loans are not self-liquidating. They are not paid off at maturity out of income. Since the budget is not balanced, when the loans become due the borrower simply renews the loan, but for an additional amount to cover the interest and the increase in the deficit.

So long as the government owned the entire block of senior stock of our biggest bank and could exercise the power that went with stock ownership, the feeling would not down that it might be using the big stick to compel the bank to lend a large part of the savings of Chicago people to meet the ever increasing government deficits. Altho such power may not have been used, there was suspicion that it might. Anyhow, it's bad business when the biggest borrower in a bank is its biggest stockholder. It was just such a relationship which led to the downfall of so many banks between 1929 and 1933. The borrowers controled the lenders and were at liberty to help themselves to banking funds.

Mr. Walter Cummings, as chairman of the board of the bank, and his associates are especially to be congratulated because they have rewon independence from direction of their biggest borrower at a time when the borrower, the government, is incurring a record breaking deficit.

The service of Mr. Cummings to the Continental is notable. In many ways it is like that of Mr. James Simpson for Commonwealth Edison and Mr. Sewell Avery for Montgomery Ward. Able men were needed for three great jobs of internal reorganization in this community. Each of the men chosen was a newcomer to the institution he was to serve. The results show that the right man was found for each job. It is great to be relieved of all worry about three of our giant corporations. It is a particular cause for gratification that our biggest bank is again free to serve only the interests of its depositors, its stockholders, and the community.

WHAT HAS JUDGE HOLLAND TO SAY?

E. J. O'Hare, the race track man who was murdered Wednesday, was a front man for the Capone crime syndicate. Biggest of the syndicate's rackets is the Chicago handbook business.

O'Hare also was in the real estate business. One of his partners in his real estate deals was Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland. Another was a handbook operator. A telephone memorandum asking O'Hare to call Holland was found on his body after the murder.

When he sat in the racket branch of the Municipal court, Judge Holland dismissed some 700 handbook cases a month. The incidents in this circle are too closely spaced to be dismissed as mere coincidence. They demand not only explanation but further investigation.

Prosecutor Dewey in New York unmasked the dealings of Federal Judge Martin T. Manton with persons interested in litigation in his court. Manton is now under sentence to prison. The New York senate is hearing charges against a state judge in New York City, George W. Martin, based largely on the business deals in which Martin engaged while on the bench.

How long must Chicago wait for action to clean up the undesirables on its bench?

Editorial of the Day

THE WICKED CITY.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

New York is still the Babylon of the modern world. From the cradle up, all good midlanders have been warned against the snares and vices of the city. But, under the recent blandishments of Grover Whalen, who wanted a large crowd at that world's fair of his, we almost forgot the exhortations of years. Mr. Whalen did an intriguing job rouging the wicked old lady's cheeks.

But now the truth comes home with new force. William Fellowes Morgan Jr., New York's own commissioner of markets, confesses that he went on a seven hour shopping trip and was cheated every time he made a purchase. Five gallons of gasoline measured a pint short. Two chickens were each a quarter of a pound too light. Silk stockings were not silk at all.

Tell us not of the crusading La Guardia. There she still sits, on the bank of the Hudson, the great painted Jezebel of the western world.

SURE CURE.

"Does your husband still complain of thirst?" asked the doctor.

"He did at first," replied Mrs. Jenkins, "but I gave him a glass of water every time and as soon stopped."—Log.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

A FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY.

There is a certain resemblance in historical pattern between the war against Hitler [the correct title of the present state of affairs in Europe] and the wars of various combinations of allies, with England as mainspring, against Napoleon. Therefore the recent bombing in Munich [call it true or false according to your plot inventing propensity] recalls an attempt to end the career of Napoleon when he was First Consul.

On Dec. 24, 1800, he set out for the opera, with Josephine beside him in the carriage, to attend the opening of Haydn's "Creation." His coachman happened to be slightly drunk and drove at a furious pace. In the narrow Rue Nicaise, a time fuse bomb ["infernal machine" is the good old expression for it] exploded, a few seconds too late. Forty bystanders were mangled. Napoleon continued to the opera.

This attempt at assassination was clearly traced to royalists and an indomitable Chouan, Georges Cadoudal, who had British financial backing. He had vowed to exterminate the dictator, and had been active in numerous plots. Ten months earlier, however, Napoleon had granted him a personal interview, and talked with him alone in the Tuileries. In 1804 Fouché's police caught up with Cadoudal, and he was executed with a number of his associates.

At St. Helena, in his last exile, Napoleon compiled a list of attempts to assassinate him. "I reckon 31 duly authenticated plots," he wrote, "without counting those that never came to light; other people invent such things but I have carefully concealed all I could."

Soft eyes, lovely eyes,
So gentle and mild;
Sweet eyes, tender eyes,
The eyes of a child.
Dark eyes, velvet eyes,

O, what do you see?
Dear eyes, loving eyes—
Look kindly on me!

Imaginary Oration of a Turning Worm.

So then when that wide-eyed hostess floats up and asks in a Billie Burke lilt, "And how did you like your dinner?" I shall tell her just how it impressed me. I shall say politely, like an unradiating radiator:

"Madam, that assortment of inedibles would gag a buzzard. No human being without the digestive facilities of a cement mixer could survive them.

"The potatoes—'whipped,' I believe you term them—must have been extremely recalcitrant to have required the chastisement to which they were apparently subjected. And I regret to report that your efforts to remove their congenital orneriness were not completely successful.

"The spinach had apparently been hastily recalled from a seaside vacation, without time to remove the sands from its ears.

"The meat would have been more attractive and quite as suitable for mastication had it been led in on the hoof.

"The lettuce salad had doubtless seen better days, but certainly not recently. It bore a decided resemblance to a store clerk at 11 o'clock on Christmas eve.

"And the mince pie which I, in a misguided moment, selected as a final flourish to this gustatory binge, was tough to the point of brittleness, sour to the point of—O!—

"Why, yes, thanks. It was very nice. Very nice, indeed."

Do You Collect Toasts?

An Irishman recently drank a toast to me with these words:

"May the grass grow green on your road to hell, but may ye be turned back trespassin'."

Note the double meaning of "trespass" here: the legal usage and also the stronger sense of "sin."

Neat, I call it.

WORTH WAITING FOR.

Now that I have found you, I am glad I waited
These long, dark, dreary ages of the past,
And have not clutched at frothy clouds and moonbeams,
But stumbled on the rainbow's end at last!
What joy I feel that I could still distinguish
The candle's feeble flicker from a star,
And did not fill my soul with substitutions
While looking for the loveliness you are!
Too long I hunted gold to find it ashes,
Too oft I yearned for mist to find it rain;
But now I know the small path from the highway,
And never shall my footsteps stray again!
One time I grasped a rose and sought to keep it,
Then cried because it pricked me with its thorns;
What fools we are to beat our breasts, forgetting
That darkest nights precede the brightest morns!
But now I know, my love—and am so thankful
That I have gone, unfettered, on my way
To stand alone to meet you at the crossroads
And walk together toward another day!

The Censors Are Putting Up a Great Fight

Dr. Carroll Chase, an American physician living in Brittany, reports to a stamp collecting friend in Chicago this typical case of French war censorship.

His laundress received an envelope addressed by her husband, serving on the Maginot line. The letter was missing, and all she got to read was this line from the censor:

"Your husband is well, but he is much too talkative."

Putting San Francisco in Its Place.

A touring San Franciscan came to Jacques' to dine the other night. He complained about the scarcity of Liebfraumilch, vintage of 1921, and, when Jacques said he had it, remarked scornfully:

"If you have, I'm a Chinaman."

Jacques' retort came after the wine had been poured:

"At your service, Mr. Chinaman."

DEAL GENTLY WITH THE SKIN.

SOME of these days we will learn that if a moderate amount of food is good, doubling or quadrupling the quantity will not bring added vitality. Likewise, in the administration of necessary drugs, we must not take an ounce when a grain will do.

There is probably no phase of healing in which conservatism is more important than in skin diseases. Many lesions fail to respond because too much is done or because the medicament applied is too strong. In fact, an eruption may be made far worse by overtreatment. For example, a blemish that proceeds satisfactorily under the influence of a 5 per cent ointment may blaze forth in all its glory should 10 per cent be employed. A dermatitis may persist for weeks or months because an already damaged skin is further insulted by chemicals that appear to exert the effect of lye.

Again, a prescription suitable for one patient may be too harsh for another. Those who are blond or have light complexions, as a rule, possess thin outer coverings. Brunettes, on the other hand, exhibit cuticles that are far more resistant. Then, too, various parts of the body differ in their reactions. A substance well borne by the feet or scalp may cause symptoms when applied to the face or the sides of the neck.

All too commonly, individuals request druggists to dispense ammoniated mercury or sulfur ointment—whereupon they will be handed products of standard concentrations. Some need not wonder should improvement fail to come. In fact, the irritation may actually increase. For many, 10 per cent ammoniated mercury is quite too powerful. A third or a half of this percentage is far more likely to prove adequate.

Now and then a victim of scabies [the itch] will portray a sensitivity to sulfur, with the result that the originally mild eruption will become a mass of inflammation. In ringworm, or athlete's foot, the object is to kill the threadlike fungus. Prolonged soaking in strong solutions may so weaken the resistance of the outer layers of the epidermis that growth of the parasitic plant is actually encouraged.

In recent years we have learned much about the destruction that may follow improperly handled X-rays. When utilized for acne and certain other dermal troubles, the procedure holds great possibilities for good as well as for harm. Occasionally, patients are not completely frank and will fail to disclose to the physician that exposures have been received previously. In such an event—should they be recommended again—a second series may constitute a dangerous overdose.

Unfortunately, bad effects may not manifest themselves for quite some time. Later, however, the region may show extensive atrophy and thickening with dilatation of the blood vessels. Once deterioration has ensued, little can be done for relief. We cannot back up and recall the treatment. No one should ever accept a remedy for a skin malady unless the doctor in charge knows every detail of earlier management. While we can look upon Roentgen therapy as of real value, the finest discrimination possible must be exercised.

Sometimes lotions or shaving colognes will prove annoying. Much after shaving trouble comes from failure to remove the beard softening preparations, whether soap or cream. This means that the face should be cleansed repeatedly with hot wet towels until no vestige of lather remains. Thereafter, a solution that contains 5 or 10 per cent alcohol may be beneficial, whereas 20 or 25 per cent may be too potent.

We can be overly conscientious in any ailment. A plan that calls for something doing every 30 minutes day and night may destroy completely the recovery power of the body. Let the skin and the patient alone as much as possible. Both require rest. Nature will then summon all her forces for repair.

NO CURES REPORTED.

N. B. writes: Are there reports of cures of insanity following the recent epidemic at Manteno hospital? I have heard that high fever treatment has a beneficial effect on certain types of mental disorders.

REPLY.

None has been reported thus far. A high fever is of value in paresis. The ideal temperature for the purpose is 106 to 107 degrees Fahrenheit—maintained for several hours. In typhoid, the fever rarely reaches these levels.

THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO

[From Tribune Files.]

Nov. 13, 1914.

[108th day of world war; 74th of present war.]

NORTHERN FRANCE.—From Dixmude to Arras on the western front artillery thundered day and night. Factories, railroad yards, and warehouses were methodically blown up by long range guns of both sides. Churches, whose towering spires were considered valuable as lookout posts, were the first buildings to be leveled. The main bodies of the German and allied armies were closer together than they had been since the beginning of the war. The slaughter was staggering.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The state department received protests from Great Britain and France that Colombia and Ecuador were violating the neutrality agreement by permitting Germans to direct their southern fleets by radio from these countries. President Wilson stated nothing would be done by this government until the allied nations supplied proof of their charges.

WARSAW.—There was fierce fighting along the Servian border between the Russian and Turkish armies. The activity here began without warning. In contrast, however, the East Prussian border was quiet.

EULOGY ON SALESMANSHIP.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—In a little park on Chicago's near north side I listened to a group fulminate on labor's place in the world. They zealously insisted that labor was the alpha-omega of everything.

A convention of scientists recently claimed that science was the sum total of progress; a convention of teachers maintained that schools were the progress makers; bankers held their institutions to be the key to progress; and, of course, politicians everywhere modestly attributed all social good to themselves.

Labor, banks, schools, scientists, and others have indeed been factors of world progress, but not all of them together have done as much for civilization as "salesmanship" and its handmaid "advertising."

Salesmanship and advertising caused people to adopt sewing machines, bath tubs, electric lights, better shoes, beauty parlors, and automobiles; salesmanship and advertising fill our schools with students and create the demand that gives labor its opportunity to work.

Insofar as the politician is concerned he is simply a barnacle on the hull of the Ship of Progress, and as he multiplies impedes, rather than hastens, civilization's speed.

Future historians, far removed from the class selfishness of this age, no doubt will give due credit to salesmanship and advertising for their overwhelming contribution to present world progress. When a salesman or a piece of advertising approaches you, or comes within your vision, you are being visited by mankind's greatest benefactor, and it is ingratitude to treat us as unwanted guests. We made you what you are today.

SHOOTING AT L TRAINS.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—As a southbound Jackson Park L started from the 58th street station at about 6:28 last night, several passengers in the second car, including myself, were struck by small flying splinters of glass. An air rifle sniper had found his mark. The L guard said the L company couldn't do anything about it. He said L windows were frequently damaged by persons firing air rifles from back porches. I have ridden on numerous trains on this line which were struck by air rifle shot and stones, fired by young toughs at various places between 40th and 61st streets. It is unfortunate that the police do not stop these vicious hoodlums.

FINDS BUS SERVICE BAD.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Thousands of business girls are grateful for THE TRIBUNE's complaint against bad bus service. North side service is dreadful. In the mornings we leave our rooms fresh and neat, ready to meet the day's trials. Soon, aboard the bus, we are being mauled and disheveled.

Where were our aldermen, our mayor, and civic bodies when the bus conductors were discharged and 10 cent fare maintained?

R. E. J.

GAMBLE; SPECULATE.

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 7.—According to Webster the following definitions are almost identical:

[2] "Gamble"—to play for money.

If some one can tell me a difference between "gamble" and "speculate," which will show me that "speculating" is NOT gambling, I'll be grateful.

BUSES ON THE AVENUE.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—As a daily passenger on the Chicago Motor coaches I object to certain statements in Beryl Peterson's letter. Drivers on the daytime buses are given a route and a schedule—paid to drive the bus over the route a certain number of times, and do so. Sometimes they are stopped by a traffic signal and some passengers get on, but the drivers can't help that. Their idea is to stick to the middle of the street when the would-be passengers are on the curb—and vice versa. Under the law of averages you have a 50-50 chance to fool the driver and be in the right place. No one should kick on that.

It's the rules imposing handicaps on the passengers that irk me. They've got it fixed at the Michigan-Washington transfer so that the driver always wins. We get off the north side buses to transfer west or south. These north side coaches stop about the middle of the block and the ones to which we wish to transfer pull down ahead of us or around the corner. Of course, with half a block handicap the driver wins, gets away, and we are left every time. It would be only sporting to fix the stops for north side coaches as near as possible to the corner of Washington and give the passengers a little better odds.

RACE WIRES AND MORALS.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—I see that our horse race parlors have been denied wire service on racing information. It is found to be illegal for the various utilities to serve the bookmaking gentry with this type of information. If it is illegal to give racing information to the horse parlors why is it not just as illegal for these same utilities to serve the newspapers with the same information? Possibly this action was taken merely to strike at a monopoly and one individual, with the moral side as an afterthought. If so, the action taken would be logical. However, if the moral phase of the question is dragged in then the whole thing is just silly.

Looking at it from the moral angle, it does seem rather foolish for the state government to sanction gambling at a race track and to share in the profits of gambling, and then turn around and use some of this same money to go to the expense of preventing gambling in a back room, basement, horse parlor, etc.

MORE ALL-NIGHT PARKING.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—What is the city administration waiting for before they enforce the "No all-night parking law"?

The other morning at 7:15 there was a fire on Langley avenue between 82d and 83d streets. Cars were parked almost solid on both sides of the street so that when the fire patrol arrived it was necessary to move other fire apparatus so that the patrol could get nearer. This all took time and no doubt the contents of the house were damaged more by this delay of the insurance men being unable to get to the fire.

This all night parking is bad enough on wide streets but to permit it on the narrow streets that prevail in the district where the above fire occurred is nothing but criminal negligence on the part of our city officials.

I, as an individual, cannot do anything, but your paper could arouse public resentment to the point where these politicians would be forced to take action.

INJUSTICE TO THE NEGRO.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—A recent item in THE TRIBUNE reports the upholding of a restrictive covenant by the Illinois Supreme court, prohibiting the leasing or sale of property to Negroes in the old Washington Park subdivision. Has the 14th amendment to the constitution been forgotten? Is a supposedly free people in a so-called free country, a people who have been loyal Americans for several hundred years, not worthy of the same privileges accorded the foreigner, who, only yesterday, caught his first glimpse of the Statue of Liberty?

Why should this people be denied room for its expanding population?

Can it be that in spite of his enormous contribution to the building of a great nation that the majority of the American people will not accept the American black man as an equal, at least, of the foreigner, who has not learned the English language, or who has not become a citizen after living here in America for perhaps 20 years?

THEODORE SOL.

ERA OF EASY MONEY.

Macomb, Ill., Nov. 8.—To the citizen who becomes increasingly aware of the extending flood of federal easy money it is too obvious that an emergency does exist and one not limited in scope. Here is your emergency, created by the New Deal, that substituted political 'pap' for the energy and self-denial of the individual. Here is a farm population that confidently expects a perpetual subsidy. Here is a noble experiment that set forth to restore prosperity by purchase, and today leans for salvation upon the turbulence of war. The same policies and practices that would bankrupt any legitimate business will maintain their present proponents in power until the day comes that every earnest citizen fears and the heedless indigent discuss with optimistic speculation. It is well, perhaps, to turn one's thoughts to dog and gun, for too much New Deal contemplation is good for no man.

AUTO HORNS.

Chicago, Nov. 1 [Friend of the People].—My neighbors and myself have made innumerable complaints to our local police station—with no results—regarding the incessant honking of automobile horns [for hiker service] every night from 11 p. m. to 4 a. m. at a public garage in our block. This nuisance has been going on for three or four years and is worse now than ever. Surely some device can be instituted to permanently stop the aggravation. Is there anything you can do? Your cooperation would be greatly appreciated—as we all would like a complete night's rest.

A. T. R.

Citizen's dress Patrolmen Michael Blake and George Weber, stolen autos, assigned to the third watch, informed proprietors of the garages of this complaint and ordered them to have the cause eliminated at once. They readily agreed to cooperate by notifying their hikers and customers to discontinue this practice.

2. Patrolman Joseph Murphy, first watch, reports that he interviewed the night men at both garages and they stated that they had been notified by their employers that the horn blowing must stop, and had informed the customers to that effect.

3. All squads, post men, and citizen's dress men on whose posts these garages are located have been instructed to pay particular attention to them, and to see that there is no further cause for complaint.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

For quite a long time the beauty shops—some of them, at least—have been the only places where we could get a nail cream that we knew was absolutely tops.

Now its success in the beauty shops has earned it a place in the regular beauty marts and if you have a nail trouble of any sort we advise you to hop right down and invest.

We happened on this product some months ago and used it exclusively on a girl we knew who had broken, peeling, weak and ragged nails. The cuticle was all bumps and jags.

She massaged this cream in every day. When she had an idle moment she worked it in well and coated her nails with it at night.

We made her stop filing her nails down at the sides, too.

The improvement in a month was remarkable. Faithful application of the cream corrects and prevents rough cuticle and builds the nail itself up to sturdiness and smoothness.

We heartily recommend it to every woman with "difficult" nails.

Hips in Style, Yes, but Not the Fat Ones

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

In spite of the "new" fashions emphasizing hips to give the hourglass silhouette, there is a limit, we think, to the hippiness of us women.

It should be encouraging to women with large hips to know that, by doing some exercises which do not tire or induce stiffness, they can "melt away" flabby hips in virtually no time at all.

Here is the first exercise. It's amazingly simple, works on the stretching principle, and makes you feel grand!

Stand with arms at your sides, feet astride. Keep your legs straight as you reach down as far as possible by bending your body sideways. Be careful not to twist your body or lean forward, or you won't get a bit of benefit from the exercise. Repeat this stretching down movement from side to side. As one arm reaches down force the other arm up under your armpit as far as possible. Put plenty of "oomph" into your efforts, and let your muscles feel the pull all the way up your sides.

The second exercise is also simple. Stand with feet astride, arms above your head and link your fingers. Now, keeping your arms straight, twist your body in a circle, slowly, round and round. When you've circled your body a few times in one direction, circle it in the opposite direction.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Many humorists have exercised their wits over the bickering that sometimes takes place at the bridge table. Few have seen fit to comment on the Alphonse-Gaston politeness so often displayed in the same arena. How often one may see a defender doing his best to hand the contract to declarer on the proverbial silver platter, while declarer, not to be outdone, makes every effort to hand his contract right back. The hand below describes just such an exhibition.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	1 diamond	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

West should have opened a diamond despite the opponents' apparent contempt for the suit. It was logical to presume that East had a long and fairly strong suit with probable reëntries. West's actual opening of the fourth best club was motivated by a hunch that North had bid a three card suit and that the clubs could be established more readily than the diamonds.

South won the opening lead with the ten of clubs and finessed the queen of hearts, losing to East's king. East promptly returned a low diamond and South's queen held the trick. South now led a low club and West took his king. At this point West could still have rectified the damage done by his poor choice of opening lead. He could have led a spade with the expectation of leading the suit again if he should regain the lead with his club ace. But actually West returned his remaining diamond.

South won with the ace of diamonds and cashed the ace and jack of hearts, hoping that the suit would break favorably. When it did not he became panic stricken and hastened to finesse the spade jack. East naturally won with the spade queen and cashed the rest of his diamonds, defeating the contract. East, presumably a realist, was not concerned with the duel of politeness in which South and West had been engaged.

Had South stopped for a moment's thought he would have realized that even a successful finesse of the spade jack would not have assured the contract. He had already won a club, two diamonds, and two hearts, so that even three spades would have given him a total of only eight tricks. South's only chance lay in establishing another club in the hope that, somehow or other, the diamonds would not be brought in.

Such a line of play, the reader will note, leads to the success of the contract. If South leads the queen of clubs at the eighth trick West wins with the club ace. If West then cashes the ten of hearts dummy discards a low spade. West's next lead is won in the dummy and the jack of clubs squeezes East in spades and diamonds.

West can prevent the squeeze by failing to cash the ten of hearts, but in that case East can be caught in a throw-in. West's best exit, after winning the club ace, is a spade. Dummy wins with the spade ace and cashes the club jack. East must bare down to the king of diamonds and the guarded queen of spades; and a diamond lead puts him in for a forced lead to the North-South combined tenace in spades.

Edward Horton Takes Comedy Antics to Stage

"SPRINGTIME FOR HENRY."

Farce comedy by Benn W. Levy, Setting by Watson Barratt. Presented by Laurence Rivers, Inc., in the Erlanger theater, Sunday evening, Nov. 12, 1939.

THE CAST:

Henry Dewlip.....Edward Everett Horton
Mr. Jellwell.....Gordon Richards
Mrs. Jellwell.....Barbara Brown
Miss Smith.....Marjorie Lord
A Secretary.....Sally McMorrow

BY CECIL SMITH.

In flesh and blood on the stage Edward Everett Horton is still the deliberate, befuddled, droll nincompoop his many successful cinema parts have made him out to be. Henry Dewlip in Benn W. Levy's "Springtime for Henry" is a character Mr. Horton could easily and naturally cut to his own particular antic pattern. For Henry is a fatuous British motor magnate whose mind works with equal unclarity in business and in love, and Mr. Horton has ready a collection of appropriate comedy tricks.

The rise of the curtain reveals him in the act of tossing out his secretary, enjoying a towering rage that engulfs him for the first fifteen minutes of the first act. On the rebound he is easy prey to the unique advances of Marjorie Lord, the new and pretty secretary sent over by the employment bureau. Miss Lord, it develops, has taken the job of hoping to clean up Henry's moral life.

The whole attenuated plot is focussed upon Henry's attempt to follow Miss Lord's decorous precepts—until he learns a few disquieting facts about her personal history.

Mr. Horton is the sort of actor who tries to show the audience that black is black and white is white. There are not many overtones to his histrionic style, and his comedy effects are accomplished within a limited range of technique. When Henry is still a gruff, disillusioned roué, Mr. Horton pulls out all the stops he can find, roaring and snarling and throwing papers onto the floor. After he has undergone reform he speaks in a constant tone of angelic, lyric rapture. Only one trait never deserts him—his typical delayed reaction to every stimulus.

This device, which often is extremely funny, has the disadvantage of prescribing too slow a pace for the play. The lines and situations of "Springtime for Henry" will not stand too much contemplation and scrutiny. While the present performance will, I am sure, delight Mr. Horton's admirers, it does have dead spots, almost all of which could be eliminated by brighter timing.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

At the Civic Opera house yesterday the Chicago City Opera company presented an all-ballet program by the Littlefields in the afternoon and a benefit performance of "Carmen" in the evening.

"Classical Suite," the first of the ballet items, succeeded in conveying the exalted, contained sort of gayety which is the essence of much of the Bach music to which it is danced. This was partly due to Catherine Littlefield's choreography [in which a straightforward use is made of strong, simple, vigorous patterns of movement], partly to the quality of the performance [clean, precise, spirited, unsentimental].

Either "Café Society" has been simplified in the course of its revision or I have grown smarter since last year. This piece, a satire on the various kinds of people who spend bleak, headachy evenings sitting around night club tables, seemed clearer, more to the point, and richer in apt commentary than a season ago. The performance was marked by flash and virtuosity.

"Aurora's Wedding," with Catherine Littlefield's choreography, should be the subject of a scholarly notice comparing it point by point with the "Aurora's Wedding" of the first Ballet Russe company. Since only dim and jumbled memories of the older version remain, searchers for scholarship will have to take what satisfaction they can in the statement that yesterday's show sure was fine. Costumes and settings were of a sumptuousness calculated to strengthen the fairy prince character of the whole delectable fantasy.

Under the sponsorship of K. A. M. temple, which houses Chicago's earliest Jewish congregation, Bizet's "Carmen" was sung by a cast headed by Elen Longone, Armand Tokatyan, and Vivian Della Chiesa. With Henry Weber directing, the performance had lots of life and sparkle.

Elen Longone was vocally smooth and adept, and achieved several bitingly effective voice colorings. In general, her Carmen is on the refined side, with considerably less fire than one usually associates with the role.

Mr. Tokatyan, in his mellow, golden way, made much of the lyrical aspects of Jose's music. Miss Della Chiesa, singing her first Chicago Micaela, achieved many pretty turns of phrase and a great many delicate, girlish tonal effects.

The Mills College Club of Chicago presented in the Goodman last night a recital by Storm Bull, pianist. The program, which ran from Bach to Bartok and bowed to Liszt, Debussy, Ravel, and Grainger on the way, was played with a technique that verges on the virtuoso, and with an intelligent use of both the more obvious and the more subtle of the devices by which musical meanings may be conveyed. To single out only one thing, that was a finely luminous melody line in the statement of the theme of Grieg's G Minor ballade.

LAST OF SHAWN DANCERS

In the midst of their last cross country tour before disbanding next May, Ted Shawn and his ensemble of eight male dancers stopped off at the Studebaker theater yesterday afternoon to repeat "O, Libertad," Mr. Shawn's two hour "American saga." The piece still suffers from the symbolism and the repetitious gymnastics noted at its first Chicago performance two years ago.

Ozark Folk.

Even the narrow, rocky mountain road from our house to the Heaton farm takes on an eerie quality. Dark and shadowy, because of the crowding woods on each side, it dips to sparkling springfed brooks that meander willfully across the roadway, and climbs to such heights that one can look across a carpet of tree tops spread in majestic glory across these Ozark hills. Suddenly that rocky ribbon turns sharply to the left, you whisk around a little white church nestled at the edge of deep woods, then two hills beyond you come upon the Heaton farm. And you know how Dorothy felt in the Land of Oz, when the three Heaton sisters and their deaf bachelor brother, Harry, come out of the two tiny houses, set side by side on the lawn, to greet you.

The sisters are frail, tiny, bird-like, white haired women, with whispering voices. One is a widowed grandmother, the others never married. Harry, slightly younger, is tall, dark, and gaunt, with burning black eyes oddly at variance with his fearful shyness. When he speaks, which is seldom, indeed, it is in the hoarse unnatural voice of the very deaf.

These strange, gentle people seem to have a definite understanding with flowers. No other farm in this land of rocky hills grows such great slumbrous red roses, heavy with perfume, and gay dancing bachelor buttons, or such forests of hollyhocks, larkspur, and delphiniums. To walk with these quaint, whispering little women and their tall, dark, silent brother thru acres of gladioli blossoms as brilliant as any technicolor scene, always gives me a weird feeling of intrusion.

Inside the sisters' house, which stands close beside Harry's little cabin, this sensation increases. Everything is so spotlessly clean, and so miniature in size. The tiny dining table in the doll sized kitchen is always set with four plates, four cups, and four tiny bowls. I often find the birdlike portions of morning cereal forehandedly dished up when the supper dishes are done. Inside the bedroom, three narrow beds stand in a row down the middle of the floor, each with its pink counterpane, and tiny chest of drawers. In the living room there are straight little chairs, a cot, a checker table set up for Harry's nightly game with one of his sisters, and, most startling of all, a table strewn with magazines.

Sister Snow is responsible for those magazines. She is the literary member of the family; the others proudly tell you that she once wrote a poem for which a farm magazine paid $4. I suspect Snow still writes, but it costs money to buy envelopes and stamps; and too, rejection slips hurt worse when one cannot laugh them off with other hopeful writers. Now Sister Snow's great craving is for books and bright, readable magazines. Yesterday, when we were alone for a moment, she named the magazines she had been able to buy this year, sighing that they were so few and so ordinary in character.

"I wish that just once in my life," she said in a fierce whisper, "I could be an EXTRAVAGANT reader!"

"Extravagant?"

"Yes! Extravagant! I'd like to have so many magazines that I could READ JUST THE PAGES I WANT TO READ, and then . . ." she threw her arms wide in a gesture of reckless abandon, "JUST SKIP THE REST!"

Elizabeth Smith Is Engaged to Gardner Brown

BY JUDITH CASS.

TODAY'S news of romantic interest concerns Miss Elizabeth Byron Smith, whose engagement to Gardner Brown is announced by her mother, Mrs. Harold Cornelius Smith. Miss Smith, a granddaughter of the late Byron L. Smith, founder and first president of the Northern Trust company, is the eldest of Mrs. Smith's three daughters. Her sisters are Mrs. Morrison Waud of Chicago and Mrs. Corwith Hamill of Wayne. She has a brother, Harold Byron Smith, who is married to the former Miss Pauline Hart.

Miss Smith was educated at Farmington, at Les Fougères in Switzerland, and at Miss Stout's Traveling school. Her fiancé, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Brown of Wheaton, attended Andover and was graduated from Yale in 1928. No date has been set for the wedding.

Milancie Hill Engaged to Wed Robert W. Janes.

Another announcement of interest was made at a small family dinner yesterday when Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Hill of Glencoe made known the engagement of their daughter Milancie to Robert W. Janes, son of Robert B. Janes of Oak Park.

Miss Hill, who is a fourth generation Chicagoan, is a granddaughter of Mrs. Heaton Owsley. She is a graduate of Roycemore and attended Smith college. Both she and her fiancé were elected to Phi Beta Kappa at the University of Chicago, at which Miss Hill is working toward her master's degree in history.

Mr. Janes received his master's degree there last summer, and is at present doing research work for a doctor's degree in sociology at the University of Illinois. No date has been set for the wedding.

Maurice Evans Breakfast Draws Large Crowd Today.

The unusually large number of reservations that have been made for the Drama league's breakfast today at the Blackstone for Maurice Evans and other members of the cast of "Hamlet" must be an indication of the popularity of this young Shakespearean actor. Every one who has had the never to be forgotten experience of seeing "Hamlet" as it currently is being done at the Grand Opera house, apparently wants to see and meet Mr. Evans.

The breakfast will be given in the Crystal ballroom at 12 o'clock. Lewis Bernays, the British consul-general, Miss Catherine Littlefield, and Robert Hall McCormick will be at the speaker's table. Percy Boynton, toastmaster, will speak on "Cakes and Ale." Mrs. Paul Steinbrecker will preside.

Among those who have made reservations are Mrs. William E. Vogelback, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. Philo Adams Otis, Mrs. Oliver D. Grover, Mrs. Britton I. Budd, and Mrs. H. Newton Hudson.

Italy-America Society to Hear Talk on Stamps.

After her talk Mary Lee Talbot will speak on the sesquicentennial of the adoption of the constitution of the United States and tributes paid to that event by other countries. Tea will be served.

The society has cards out to view the masterpieces of Italian art under the guidance of Ulrich A. Middeldorf at 8:15 o'clock in the evening on Nov. 28 at the Art institute. The exhibit, which has been brought from the San Francisco fair, will be on view from Nov. 17 to Jan. 9. Dr. Middeldorf is an authority on Renaissance painting.

Miss Amelia Birk is opening her home at 457 Wellington avenue from 10 until 5 o'clock on Wednesday for a Christmas sale of goods from the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins. New Tea Party Outfits Given Style Acclaim

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Tea party outfits are distinctive both as to color combines and design. These dress parade duets of dress and jacket are festive enough to grace the most formal candlelight tea, cocktail or theater party. The simple underdress can be worn with fur jackets or coats and with other jackets of color as well as the gay jacket with which it is sold.

Scarlet still flashes everywhere. Daring little rib-hugging affairs are decorated with inky black braid scroll patterns on the chest, on the shoulders and in the elbow section of the sleeves. Crackling black taffeta dresses with at least a dozen gores in the flaring skirt have façades of vivid colored silk jersey or ruched bands around the skirt made of the same taffeta. Brocade boleros, lamé in bold stripes, coin dotted metallics in dusky bronze and black, shirred velvets, velveteens with kidskin appliqué, and the luxurious soft woolens make high fashion tops.

New also are the stiff old-fashioned dark toned brocades fashioned into afternoon clothes. Small floral designs, dots, lovely hazy blurred plaids or the two tone or shot fabrics are used with some very handsome results.

All the skirts are flared and comparatively short, waistlines are still defined and smoothly small, while the cover-up fashion still goes strong with the high, round necklines and a circumspect row of small covered buttons going up from the waistline to the neck in front. Garnet red, tobacco and snuff brown, dark bronze green and lapis lazuli blue are the best of the flattering colors.

WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Phyllis Elizabeth Riggs to William Russell Hannapel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Hannapel of 9642 South Hoyne avenue, will take place on Nov. 18. The ceremony will be performed in the rectory of the Christ the King church at 4 o'clock and will be followed by a dinner for members of the immediate families at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harbert Bryant Riggs of 9111 Longwood drive. A larger reception will be held at 8:30 o'clock in the evening. After a motor trip thru the east Mr. Hannapel and his bride will be at home in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Good Morning!

After reading Daphne Du Maurier's absorbing novel, "Rebecca," we all hotfooted it over to the library in quest of other books by this fascinating writer. And came away with "Jamaica Inn," an earlier opus, which, while not up to "Rebecca" was still highly satisfactory reading.

The eagerly awaited picture, adapted from the book, is a disappointment. For the carefully built up story has been juggled about so that it becomes primarily a melodramatic show window for the display of Charles Laughton's sly pantomime, and the medium for introducing to the public his protégée, Miss O'Hara, who is a pretty girl, but in no sense a genius.

From the start, virtually, the observer is in on the know.

The great Sir Humphrey Pengallan, justice of the peace, magistrate and Respected Somebody in General, is the master mind, responsible for those awful doings along the Cornish coast, where vessels are lured to shipwreck, their crews and passengers killed and their cargoes stolen and sold. . . . From this palatial dwelling, the interiors of which somewhat resemble a grand central station, Sir Humphrey purrs and prowls, and directs the activities of Joss Merlyn, owner of the disreputable Jamaica Inn. This catspaw in turn bosses his gang of murderous, thieving cutthroats who loot the boats that, in storm, so innocently and gladly sail toward the Lorelei harbor lights set flashing by the villains.

To Jamaica Inn comes orphaned Mary, from Ireland, to live with her Aunt Patience, wife of Joss, utterly ignorant of what she's getting into. For her Sir Humphrey conceives an unholy passion.

Thru her rescue of a youth, who you learn later is an officer of the law, Mary gets all mixed up in things, including a romance with the aforementioned young man.

Hectic happening follows hectic happening at breakneck speed. . . . The Laughton eyes gleam with cunning gleam. . . . The full Laughton lips grimace with false and sinister sweetness. . . . The plump and unexpectedly powerful Laughton hands pat and clutch and the heavy body that can move with such surprising agility, gets around with catlike celerity. . . . A madman, Sir Humphrey—but only his faithful servant who had served the master's mad father, knows this.

For the first time I found Mr. Laughton, as Sir Humphrey, only an actor.

Supporting players do well enough. Dialog as delivered in extremely clipped English, is often almost impossible to understand. There are some splendid scenic effects magnificently photographed.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Bagdad-on-the-Pacific

Hollywood, Cal. Nov. 12.—Nino Martini, the opera thrush, is cooing those arias to Jean Hunter. She's a former Arthur Murray dance teacher, with more "oomph" than Ann Sheridan. . . . They'd have you believe that Bette Davis' real crush is an M.-G.-M. star of page 1 proportions. . . . Skinnay Ennis and Carmine Calhoun, his vocalist, will get hitched before Christmas. . . . Jimmy Roosevelt has been dining several nights in a row with his secretary's sister. . . . Al Jolson, L. K. Sidney and Regina Carew in town. . . . The Ernest Truex-Betty Grayson romance has iced. . . . Doris Carson bade Jeffrey Lynn a tearful farewell before she teed off for N. Y. . . . Now it's Loretta Young and Tom Lewis, the advertising biggie. . . . Ernst Lubitsch gave his nurse $10,000 for saving the infant when the ship was sunk.

The good looker with Director Eddie Buzzell is Dorothy Hans. . . . Columbia Picture execs singe your eardrums when they discuss Rouben Mamoullan's handling of "Golden Boy." . . . When Ilona Massey makes her first entrance in "Balalaika," in a very revealing black evening gown, the audiences at sneak previews whistle and carry on—but violently! . . . A famous M.-G.-M. star has quit his home and is registered at a local hotel. . . There are so many off-screen feuds in Warner's "Virginia City" that the studio releases the picture through Mike Jacobs. . . . Reginald Gardiner and Letitia Fairbanks still at it.

Priscilla Lane and Oren Haglund, who adored her, have called it finis. . . . The Dolores del Rio-Cedric Gibbons gossip persists, despite all denials. . . . In "We Are Not Alone," Paul Muni just pecks at Jane Bryan's cheek and forehead. He taboos love scenes in his flickers. Incidentally, Warner advance publicity that Miss Bryan "steals" the picture from Muni is pure hokum, and unfair to her. Muni turns in one of the greatest performances of his career in this one.

Gertrude Niesen, seeing New York with a Broadway columnist, tells pals that her real heartbeat is Burgess Meredith. . . . Starlet Maris Wrixon will become Mrs. Rudi Feher in January. . . . The Franz Waxmans [he's the M.-G.-M. music man] expect Sir Stork. . . .

The Jack Benny-Fred Allen co-starrer has been set for summer production, with Mark Sandrich directing. Allen, to offset Benny's "Rochester," will have a boy named "Syracuse." . . . Tony Martin will grab himself $10,000 for two weeks at the New York Paramount, Bob Weitman having upped him a grand per week over his latest engagement.

Danger on the Border

By FREDERICK R. BECHDOLT

(Copyright: 1939: By Frederick R. Bechdolt)

INSTALMENT I.
THE PAY CAR.

"The stage is hung up in Bonita Canyon," the storekeeper explained. "It's a broken axel and they won't come through till after dark. I just got word over the mining company's phone. And this woman wants to go to San Ilario."

"Sure. I'll be glad to take her," Leonard said.

"Her name," the storekeeper went on, "is Mrs. Sebastian." He regarded Leonard earnestly through his large glasses and he cleared his throat. "She's perfectly respectable."

Leonard laughed. "That's okay with me. I'll pull out as soon as you get her traps aboard." He glanced at the huge figure in white lawn and a multitude of pink ribbons sitting in the dimness at the rear of the long room, where the mingled smells of soap and cheese and leather announced a wide variety of wares, and he went outside to wait.

The store was about all there was of Copper City: a long building coated with aluminum paint, it made a gleaming landmark on the wide brown plain. His car was parked nearby under a discouraged ironwood tree. He seated himself on the edge of the wide veranda before the building and lighted a cigaret. There was more than six feet of him, big-boned and rugged and young, but the youth was tampered by a few lines about the eyes and lip ends. He was wearing cavalry boots and one of those cork helmets which go so well with good sized men, the sleeves of his light shirt were rolled up to the elbows and his muscular forearms were burned dark by the sun.

He was gazing into the east along the winding streak of gray where the road wound over the malapi-strewn flats, hanging to the south of occasional iron monuments which marked the international boundary until it made a brief excursion northward into Copper City. He was watching a thin cloud of dust that rose toward the cloudless sky, and as he looked it moved onward toward the spot where he was sitting.

He had been here for a few minutes when he became conscious of a presence beside him, and he glanced around. A curious thing happened then. During the first moment, while he was examining the man who had slipped up to him so silently, he got the impression of lean, hard alertness, the eyes that met his were quick with intelligence. The clothes were ragged: A pair of faded overalls, a coarse shirt open at the throat and stained with dust. The face was dark, but it was not the darkness of the peon Indian.

While Leonard was in the beginning of his inspection the storekeeper came out. He was carrying two rolls of roofing paper under his arm, and as he tilted them, the containers of heavy tacks within their hollow cores thumped down upon the pasteboard which enclosed the ends. Leonard was to remember those tacks later. The storekeeper glanced eastward and he said:

"That would be the pay car and the escort. They're late." He went on to Leonard's car and the strong, harsh sunshine made his huge glasses glare like a pair of headlights as he placed the roofing paper in its rear. The owner of this merchandise was following him. Her white dress billowed although there was not a particle of breeze, the pink ribbons fluttered over her enormous bosom, her teeth flashed in a vivid contrast to her chocolate colored face and she bowed to Leonard. Then she vanished in the car's interior, leaving behind her a fleeting impression of high-heeled shoes with rhinestone adornments and much pink stocking.

And during the extremely brief time which had been consumed by this interruption a complete change had come over the man who was sitting on the porch beside Leonard. All the fitness was gone. He was a peon, limp and dirty and very drunk, a sort of sour halo seemed to hang over him. He touched Leonard's arm.

"Ceegaretto, plis."

"O, get out of here!" Leonard said.

The limp figure rose, it hovered for a moment of dreadful uncertainty during which it seemed about to collapse upon Leonard's lap, it regained its balance and lurched away around the corner of the building.

"Now where did he come from?" The storekeeper's plaintive demand was interrupted by the hammering of a motor whose muffler had been cut out. He hurried to the gasoline pump as the pay car came in. It was a big, open car without a top, the dust of the Arizona border covered it from the radiator cap to the gas tank. Two men were in the front seat, a slim, cool-looking American with a wisp of blond moustache and shallow blue eyes, and a swarthy, stiff-backed officer in tan and green, and polished puttees. In the rear were four Mexican soldiers, sweating in their uniforms of olive-drab, holding their carbines upright between their knees.

During the ensuing five minutes the overheated air was filled with the unpleasant reek of gasoline fumes. The pair on the front seat were talking in Spanish and the storekeeper was busy with the red pump lever. To these matters Leonard was paying small attention: he was reflecting on that swift change which had come over the vanished Mexican: he could have sworn that the man was sober when he first set eyes on him, but that was the least startling element in the transformation.

"He just seemed to shrink," Leonard was thinking. "Shrink and grow sour." He shrugged his shoulders as the motor roared once more, and he looked after the receding car.

"They carry twenty-five thousand dollars," the storekeeper said. "They pay off at the Golconda mine this afternoon." He nodded to Leonard who had risen and was starting toward his car. "Well, adios!" The latter waved a parting salutation and climbed into his light sedan. The Mexican was slumped down on the front seat, he seemed to be asleep.

"Pull out," he said under his breath. "Talk later."

Leonard pressed the starter and let in the clutch. He glanced around into the rear. Mrs. Sebastian smiled at him serenely from the back seat. He noticed that the two rolls of building paper were at her feet. When they had gone a half mile he turned to the man beside him.

"How in the hell did you manage to get in without my seeing you?" Leonard demanded.

"You were watching the pay car pull out." The other resumed his full height now, the general air of greasy ineptitude had been shed like a discarded coat, he seemed to have grown cleaner, somehow.

Leonard trod on the accelerator for the road was good here. He stared straight ahead of him where the wreath of brown dust which marked the progress of the pay car was receding toward a range of ragged little mountains at the skyline. He had spent all his life in the west, except for two years at Freiburg doing post graduate work in structural geology. During the last half decade he had seen all sorts of places, he had gotten used to all sorts of men, and he had acquired considerable sureness in himself. He shrugged his shoulders.

"I want to get to San Ilario," the other went on. The voice of Mrs. Sebastian came from the rear seat.

"Es okay." It was, Leonard reflected, the voice of respectability. Or so the storekeeper had assured him at any rate. He withdrew his right hand from the wheel and brought a packet of cigarets from the pocket of his shirt.

"There's the smoke you asked for." He tossed them to the man beside him.

"Thanks." The other lighted up and Leonard looked him over as thoroughly as sidelong glances would allow. Dark hair that curled enough to keep it rebellious and untrained by comb, the eyes were not the dead black of those in whom runs a strain of Indian—they were a peculiar brown which changed with varying lights and moods from a greenish hazel to the darkness of a deep pool, the nose was thin, the curving lips held no sign of grossness, and over all the face there was a sort of presence, a swarming of much daring. Leonard stole a final glance to find his neighbor smiling. The latter shook his head.

"No," he said, "I'm not a Mexican. I was born in Buenos Aires, my father was a Spaniard, and my mother was French."

"You didn't owe me the information," Leonard reminded him.

DEREK'S RETURN.

"So Elderson-Brown was an unsuspected madman," said Alison, her eyes snapping.

"Exactly," replied Inspector Headcorn. "Dr. Ladbroke will tell you this form of insanity sometimes runs a longish course before a real smash-up occurs and the patient has to be put under restraint. During that period its only outward symptoms may be glittering imaginative flights—often most plausible-sounding—and extravagance which at the finish becomes fantastic. In this case the head office was hampered by its rare contacts with its employé. There was the fever to account for one or two wild letters, and even when the man himself turned up his manner suggested only that he was in a strung-up condition. It was these reports coming in from Bath and other places that began spilling the beans. If the company didn't know, can you wonder that Fitts, off here in the country, hadn't an inkling?"

"I see now," said Alison, "why you thought the engineer himself had been making that crazy bid for this place."

"Yes. He was in the west counties on the right dates. He'd done madder things than trying to buy property he couldn't pay for. That he happened to be an expert on oil did not mean he had any criminal connection with any one here, and both murders must have been committed by an individual on the spot.

"Now for your letter, Miss Young. Memory is very tricky, especially when it's snarled up by emotion, as it was bound to be with you. I meant to question you again and see if there could be some significant item tucked away in your mind. I had little hope that there was, but then in the train Dr. Ladbroke gave me some rather disturbing news. It might be true your hostess was contemplating self-destruction. On the other hand there was a just-conceivable alternative: That some one here was getting badly alarmed. If so, then the suicide suggestion was a plant to cover a death or deaths which might have to occur. The star witness for the Crown was feeling shaky over her evidence. If all of a sudden some light flashed on her——"

Headcorn did not finish. The big dim lounge grew silent.

"Two snapshots," croaked Alison, hand straying to her throat. "A sheet of blank paper . . . "

There'd been a better clue, of course. Small doubt now as to how that last shred of white cotton had attached itself to the detective's own sleeve. The murderer had used a clothes brush with great thoroughness before he bustled along to the Glover farm, but bits of fibre fly about, clinging where they light, and one of these he had not only carried with him but transferred, all unconsciously, to the enemy's own person. . . .

"Time's up," ordered Colin briskly, "Now, you two crocks, into your beds!"

Wynn did not stir. She had lain back amongst her cushions, eyes trained on the door.

"Let her be," muttered the doctor, and so in the shadows they left her.

When the footsteps had died away Wynn toiled out of the house, reached the big gates and leant breathless against a pillar. Under the chestnuts a million blossoms made a sodden carpet. Puddles remained from the storm and broken boughs had been swept into piles. A cuckoo called and went on calling, the notes cool and clear as spring water. The evening was heavenly sweet. In the west hung the great star.

Arthur's car was just stopping. She heard Derek say, "Thanks, you might set me down here."

"Wynn! Here, look at me! Are you all right?"

"Nonsense! What's all the fuss?"

It was the old Wynn, making light of his fears. A spurt only, for now she had wilted, rough curls pressed deep in his shoulder.

"O," she choked, "just hold me. Tight . . . "

Mizrachi Conference Told of Schools for 300 Refugee Girls

Three hundred refugee girls of the orthodox Jewish faith now are being educated in Palestine thru the work of the Mizrachi Women's Organization of America, Mrs. Bessie Gotsfeld, Palestine representative of the group, reported yesterday.

Mrs. Gotsfeld, a gray haired little woman, spoke at the annual midwest and western regional conference of the order which opened a two day session at the Hotel Sherman. The organization, which has 15,000 members, is affiliated with the orthodox Zionist movement.

To this end the women opened their first Palestine school in Jerusalem in 1933. In 1938 they opened their second school in Tel-Aviv. They have plans for a third school at Haifa, and now have a temporary farm school near Tel-Aviv, which they plan to erect on a permanent site in 1940.

No woman ever had too many cookie recipes, especially at this time of year. And few families ever have been surfeited with cookies. Therefore I feel justified in bringing forth another group of unusually good cookie recipes for homemakers to try out as candidates for Thanksgiving and Christmas boxes.

Many more are to be found in our booklet, "Holiday Cookies and Fruit Cakes," which will be sent, upon receipt of 5 cents in stamps, to any reader who requests it.

Fruited Holiday Cookies
[Four dozen small]

½ cup shortening
1½ cups brown sugar
1 egg
2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup raisins
½ cup chopped candied cherries
½ cup chopped nuts

Cream shortening and sugar until fluffy. Add egg, mixing well. Sift flour, baking powder, salt, and cinnamon together. Add alternately with milk to creamed mixture. Add flavorings, fruits, and nuts, and blend. Drop by teaspoons on greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees, for 12 to 15 minutes.

Butter Balls
[About 80 small]

½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
2 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup sugar
½ cup chopped nuts

Cream sugar and shortening. Add beaten egg and vanilla. Sift flour, salt, and baking powder together, and add. Chill the dough. Roll into balls the size of marbles. Mix sugar and nuts and roll the balls in the mixture. Bake on a greased cookie sheet in a fairly hot oven, 400 degrees, for 10 minutes. The cookies will flatten during baking.

Cherry Almond Refrigerator Cookies
[Crisp and buttery]

1 cup butter, or half butter, half margarine
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
4 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup finely chopped almonds
½ cup chopped candied cherries

Cream the butter thoroughly. Add sugar a little at a time and beat well fluffy. Add beaten egg, then salt and flour, a little at a time, working it in well. When flour is all in add vanilla, nuts, and cherries. More than the amounts given for nuts and cherries may be used if desired. Shape the mixture into two rolls, wrap in wax paper, and store in the refrigerator to bake as wanted. Slice thinly, place on an ungreased baking sheet, and bake at 425 degrees approximately 10 minutes.

Chocolate Drops

1 egg
1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup butter, melted
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sour cream
½ cup chopped nuts

Beat egg and sugar until very light, add vanilla. Melt chocolate and butter. Add to sugar and egg mixture. Alternately add sifted dry ingredients and cream. Add nuts. Drop mixture from a spoon on a greased baking sheet and bake at 375 degrees. Cool and frost with confectioners' sugar icing.

THINGS AREN'T THE SAME BACK IN IOWA CITY

Cup of Joy Brims Over 'Til Dawn.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 12.—Sunshine was bright and beautiful in Iowa City today and that may have been the reason that that portion of the citizenry which appeared on the boulevards today still was blinking.

Iowa football fans all last week dreamed victory over Notre Dame. In spite of anticipation there wasn't going to be anything to it. But when victory came—a 7 to 6 triumph, in case you hadn't heard—the Iowa rooters weren't nearly so certain in retrospection as they had been in consummation. For hours after the finish most of the spectators seemed dazed. Some said they feared that an alarm clock would ring and wake them up. Others reported they had an insane feeling the Hawkeyes would be called back to play another quarter or so. Still others were just plain flabbergasted.

Warm Up After Midnight.

Until midnight the celebration was nothing more than the routine exuberance of folks who think they have to get noisy before, during, and after all football games. Between midnight and breakfast things warmed up and today veterans of all Iowa outbreaks of hilarity insist the joy surpassed all other demonstrations for sheer delight. With it all there was only a modicum of hooliganism. No destruction of property was reported, no auto tragedies gave hospitals or morgues any business.

Of course there was a scattering of bums; also a liberal sprinkling of lost, sour apple, and bar towel jags in the juvenile brackets. But at no time did the celebrants give a hint of a drunken orgy. We have seen 10 times as many intoxicated gents in Iowa City during prohibition and after an Iowa defeat before one-third as many spectators.

They Hie to Other Spots.

The celebration was by no means confined to this city of 15,000 year round population. Cedar Rapids, 26 miles to the north, was a noisy, gay municipality. Davenport, home town of Coach Elmer Layden and pregame headquarters of Notre Dame, was another hilarious spot. Iowa celebrants swarmed in as fast as Notre Dame followers evacuated and song boomed forth from thousands of throats.

Those who found Iowa City too crowded for their hilarity, but still didn't choose to go too far from the scene of Iowa's new victory whistle, headed to other spots where the pack was as great or greater—Tiff Inn, Club 66, Mayflower, Green Gables, the Lighthouse, and other merriment spots within a radius of 10 miles of the campus.

The only beer and soda pop is dispensed over the mahogany in these establishments and Iowa liquor stores were closed on Armistice day, all rendezvous enjoyed overflow business most of the night. All crowds were predominantly Iowan and few tourists were reported.

Anderson for Governor.

Toasts everywhere were identical. Both Eddie Anderson should be elected governor of Iowa at a special session to be called right away, with Jack Cardeo lieutenant governor, Jim Harris secretary of state. All of them should be sent to the United States senate forthwith, tho Iowa has only two senatorships, both currently held by noble statesmen. Then there should be roll calls of Iowa's 60 minute men. Yells for Capt. Erwin Prasse. Hurrahs and a tiger for Nile Kinnick, a skyrocket for Iron Mike Enich. Then it went right down the list of the 35 Hawkeye heroes who beat previously unbeaten Notre Dame. And on and on, all thru the night.

Restaurant proprietors remained in their crowded establishments until after 7 o'clock then retired to let assistants supervise the breakfast trade. One old time restaurateur said he never had seen such a merry, but orderly, crowd.

Iowans Ready to Start Again.

Despite all the hilarity last night there were plenty of persons downtown at noon today, girding to start it all over again. For Iowa, which beat Chicago last year, is in undisputed possession of second place in the Big Ten standings, and next Saturday meets Minnesota in Iowa's homecoming game. Even before Iowa licked Notre Dame, arrangements had been made to handle even a larger crowd for the homecoming. And if Iowa beats Minnesota for its fourth Big Ten victory of this year of the renaissance, then—

And about that Minnesota game. Coach Anderson: "I thought the Iowans could beat Notre Dame and they did. I think they can take Minnesota." Anderson also reported that Nile Kinnick, 184 pound junior halfback, was the only Iowa casualty. Kinnick suffered a sprained left wrist. Capt. Prasse when asked if he felt any shivers about the impending invasion of Gopher crushers: "Bring 'em on. It's just another football game for Iowa."

Thus the folks on the boulevards were blinking today, And it may have been the bright sun.

DI MAGGIO'S KID BROTHER, DOM, IS SOLD TO RED SOX

Boston, Mass., Nov. 12 (AP).—Purchase of Dominic DiMaggio, outstanding Pacific Coast league outfielder, from the San Francisco Seals was announced tonight by the Boston Red Sox.

A sizeable amount of cash was involved in the deal, which also sends Larry Powell, youthful left handed pitcher, to the Red Sox, General Manager Eddie Collins said.

Dominic, who has just reached voting age, is the youngest of the DiMaggio ball players—all of whom are center fielders. He gives promise of equaling the feats of his more famous brother, Joe, of the New York Yankees, who was the first to break into the majors.

The third and oldest of the brothers is Vince, who bounced back into the majors at the end of the 1939 season with the Cincinnati Reds. He had been sent to Kansas City last winter after failing to make good with the Boston Bees.

Dominic was voted the outstanding player in the coast league last season.

The youngest DiMaggio, who plays with eyeglasses, broke in with San Francisco in 1937 and hit .306. His batting average in 1938 was .307 and last season he hit .361.

Like Joe and Vince, he graduated to professional baseball from San Francisco sand lots.

Powell, who will remain with San Francisco another year and go to Boston in 1941, won 12 games for the Seals last season and lost 11.

The home folks in Boone, Ia., are mighty proud of Mike Enich, star Iowa right tackle, who played a brilliant game against Notre Dame.

College Freshman Dies After Injury in Game

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 12 (AP).—John M. Korcak, 21, St. Bonaventure college freshman football player, died in a hospital today of a ruptured kidney, caused by an injury in a game yesterday. Korcak, an end, played three quarters of a game between freshman teams of St. Bonaventure and Niagara university. Last Monday a St. Bonaventure varsity player, Clayton Tong of Corning, N. Y., senior class president and right guard, was killed in an automobile accident.

CONSIDER CASE OF DR. ANDERSON AND HAWKEYES

Football Fans Vote Coach Season's Leader.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Without further discussion and with unanimous consent, even from more distant sections of the country, the award for the most effective and surprising football coaching job this season now can be presented to Dr. Edward Anderson of the University of Iowa. With no desire to detract from the efficiency of the coaching at Southern California, Texas Aggies, Tulane, North Carolina, Tennessee or Cornell—to name a few of the leading exponents of intercollegiate football in other sections—the Iowa case is unique, for the Hawkeyes have burst on an unsuspecting public with a football eleven far better than any deemed possible for them to develop this year.

With only a few additions to the roster of the squad that won only one game in 1938, and that from Chicago, and which later tied Purdue, Iowa now has blazed thru six games, winning five. Of these, three were Big Ten victories. Saturday the Hawkeyes climaxed the year's record with a 7 to 6 victory over Notre Dame, first reverse of the campaign for the Irish, who previously had whipped Purdue, Carnegie Tech, Southern Methodist, Navy, Georgia Tech, and Army.

Notre Dame Victory March Ends.

The defeat naturally was heart breaking to Notre Dame because it ended its victory march. The Irish, however, had dealt the same hands to their rivals, winning two games this fall by 1 point and two others by 3 points. By an unusual coincidence the Iowa-Notre Dame score is identical with the mathematical values of the teams as measured by Purdue, a common denominator. Notre Dame defeated Purdue, 3 to 0, while Iowa whipped Purdue, 4 to 0, which leaves the Hawkeyes 1 point better than Notre Dame.

Iowa also disproved, at least for this game, the necessity of having two men for each position. Only 15 Hawks took part and eight played the entire game. The group included Nile Kinnick, who performed his iron man stunt for the fifth time this fall and whose playing inspired his mates.

Retrieves Sitko's Fumble.

It was Kinnick who crossed the Irish goal line after the Hawks had retrieved Steve Sitko's fumble on the Irish 4 yard line. Kinnick then drop kicked the point which won the game. It was the fifth victory scored by Western conference teams against Notre Dame in 20 years. One of these was the 1921 Iowa victory, 10 to 7, when Anderson, now coach of his home state university, was captain of the Irish.

Gridiron fortunes seem to revolve in weekly cycles except at Chicago and Wisconsin. The Maroons are so weak that they cannot expect to win. Thus Ohio State rolled over them as graciously as possible, 61 to 0, the identical score turned in by Harvard over Chicago. But Wisconsin, again piling up a wide margin in comparisons of yards gained and first downs, also again was defeated. If a certain amount of luck is required, certainly the Badgers have been skipped entirely.

Smith Runs 32 Yards.

Illinois won this time from Wisconsin, 7 to 0, Jimmy Smith eluding the Badgers on an 32 yard run which had not been prearranged. Unable to spot a receiver, the sophomore back, who threw the sleeper pass that started Michigan on the downgrade, romped around the Badgers to victory.

Northwestern was the other conference team which failed to capitalize on its power Saturday. Threatening to rip Purdue's line apart for touchdown plunges, but never quite fulfilling the promise, the Wildcats finally fell, 3 to 0, after nearly doubling Purdue's yardage. Mike Byelene, whose touchdown run tied Minnesota this fall, led the attack in the fourth period after intercepting Soper's pass.

His subsequent run permitted Fred Montague to place kick on fourth

FRIENDS of Benny Bengough, the oldtime Yankee catcher, say he will sign as coach of the Pittsburgh Pirates any day now. . . . Rocco Pirro, Catholic university full back, makes most of his team's touchdowns, and his brother, Carmen, a tackle, kicks the extra points. . . . Neutral observers call Ohio State the best blocking team the Western conference has seen in 15 years. . . . The Browns played to only 139,836 fans at home this year. . . . This is 129,999 fewer than watched the Kansas City American association club. . . . Benny Bengough.

Babe Hollingbery.

The chief reason for the poor showing of the Washington State football team the last two seasons, according to Coach Babe Hollingbery, is the loss of two Chicago boys—Eddie Zydowsky and Ted Kent—who starred as freshmen in 1937. . . . A rib injury ended Kent's career and Zydowsky was lured from the campus by professional baseball. . . . Only three members of the original New York Rangers' hockey team of 1926 are still on the roster. . . . The trio includes Manager Lester Patrick, Coach Frank Boucher, and Trainer Harry Westerby. . . . Lee Savoldi, the heavyweight fighter, has dropped the "i" and will use his own name—Savold—in future. . . . He is of Norwegian extraction. . . . The nation's typesetters will be overjoyed to hear that the following seniors at Washington High school in South Bend expect to play college football: Wasikowski, Schramski, Kovatch, Hanyzewski, Hajzyk, Wroblewski, and Ratajczak.

A Boost for Mr. Enich.

Iowa, as you must know by this time, has quite a football team for a change and one of the reasons for the improvement is big Mike Enich, the tackle who used to be a back. Purdue fans will remember Mike better than any one and I imagine they will be among the first to second following motion: Mike Enich is hereby nominated for THE TRIBUNE most valuable player award. Other Hawkeyes equally worthy of the honor are Nile Kinnick and Capt. Erwin Prasse. —Loyal Hawkeye, Class of '28.

I Take Thee.

Forty-five years ago today
They were married
And went on life's way together.
"Forty-five years," says pa,
"It seems like a hundred!
"I wish I knew then what I do now.
"I'd have more sense than that, I vow."
"Sense?" says ma. "It wasn't sense
"But luck you married me.
"O, when I think of all the handsome men,
"And wealthy, too,
"That I passed by to marry you!"
And all the time they smiled
Into each other's eyes,
Not with the leaping flames
Young lovers prize,
But with a warm and steady glow
That had forty-five years
To take deep root in each heart and grow.
"You were so handsome on that day, as now."
"And you so sweet and dear."
"Forty-five?"
"It doesn't seem a year."

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Joffre Desilets, a young fellow who cannot speak a word of French in spite of his fine Gallic name, still knows how to make a hockey goal. He demonstrated that last night by personally accounting for the two scores with which Joff and his Chicago Blackhawk colleagues defeated the New York Americans, 2 to 1, in the Chicago Stadium before a cheering throng of 15,263.

Desilets' first goal, one of those faraway blue line shots, came in the second minute of the second period and grew in importance to the Hawk cause until the 11th minute of the final session, when Murray Armstrong of the Americans came up with the tying goal. Joff then decided it was time to contribute the clincher.

Scores Winning Goal.

Wilf Fields of the Americans was banished for tripping and just was able to escape the red-doored dungeon when Desilets, after an assault in which Johnny Gottselig and Des Smith coöperated, lined the puck past Goalie Earl Robertson of the Americans. There were only 33 seconds of regulation time left, thus the second Desilets feat was especially satisfactory to the big crowd.

The game was one of the roughest of many a season, but Bill Stewart, a man who knows how to officiate in any sport, and who two years ago managed the Blackhawks to the Stanley cup, served as referee and called just six penalties, four on the Americans and two on the Hawks.

Hawks to Go on Road.

The Hawks will meet the Boston Bruins on the latter's ice tomorrow night and the New York Rangers in Madison Square Garden Thursday, returning to the Stadium next Sunday to meet the Bruins.

Phil Hergersheimer, Blackhawk rookie, made his debut and crashed thru for several shots which were stopped by Robertson. Fields was in the penalty box for holding Hergesheimer when Desilets scored the winning goal.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 12.—A shower of forward passes annoyed but did not confuse the Bears today. The Chicagoans merely turned loose their freshman back field stars before 42,496 in Briggs stadium to even their season series with the Detroit Lions and preserve a mathematical chance of sharing in the western division championship of the National Football league.

Two touchdowns in the second quarter, a field goal in the third and another touchdown on the last play of the game gave the Bears a 23 to 13 triumph and dumped the Lions back into a tie with the Green Bay Packers for the division lead. It was the Lions' second defeat against six victories and the Bears' sixth victory in nine games.

Lions Throw 37 Passes.

Dwight Sloan, Johnny Pingle and Darrell Tully fired 37 passes thru the chilly autumn air and connected with 20 for a total gain of 273 yards. But only twice were the receivers able to get away for touchdowns. The Bears avenged the first of these successful forays, a Tully to Lloyd Cardwell maneuver good for twenty-one yards in the second quarter, with a bigger and better one of their own to regain the lead.

Sid Luckman faded back almost to his goal line, threw the ball fifty-four yards in the air to Bob Swisher and the former Northwestern star raced forty-two yards to score. Howie Weiss chased Swisher and made a lunge at him, but succeeded only in slapping Bob on the back. Less than a minute of the half remained when Swisher scored.

Bernie Masterson, Bob Snyder, Jack Manders, and Bill Osmanski assisted Swisher in piling up the points that gave the Bears their first victory over the Lions in four starts. Masterson followed Bob MacLeod's twenty-three yard end run with a one yard quarter back sneak early in the second period and Snyder added the extra point. Manders came in to kick the extra point after Swisher's touchdown and returned again in the third quarter to add three points on a field goal from the Lions' 31 yard line.

MacLeod smashed through the Lion line for the third touchdown on the last play. MacLeod also had set up this score with a long run, intercepting Sloan's pass and returning twenty-eight yards to the 7 yard line.

Detroit Not Inspired.

Detroit was not the inspired football team that trounced the Bears, 10 to 0, two weeks ago. Save for an occasional break by Cardwell and Ken Ryan on wide reverses and several sizable plunges by Bill Shepherd, its running game was stopped, amassing only ninety-three yards. Its passing, however, remained a constant threat, especially when Sloan was in the game.

The Bears matched the Lions in spectacular catches of passes that harked back to last week's hysterical encounter with Green Bay. Like the Lions, the Bears gave up the ball once on the 4 yard line in the fourth quarter after a long march. In each case, however, the marches led to scores, the Lions bouncing back for their second touchdown on an eight yard pass, Sloan to Shepherd, and the Bears returning immediately on MacLeod's interception.

The statistics:

	Lions.	Bears.

Winners Tie Detroit for Western Section Lead.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 12 (AP).—The Green Bay Packers overpowered the Philadelphia Eagles, 23 to 16, in a bitterly fought National league football game in Municipal stadium today. The triumph put the Packers in a tie with Detroit for the western division lead.

A crowd of 23,862 saw the Packers' running attack offset little Davey O'Brien's passing that netted the Eagles 189 yards on nineteen completed throws. The former Texas Christian star's passes and runs accounted for most of the Eagles' fourteen first downs and their aggregate of 243 yards on the ground and in the air.

The Packers matched the Eagles' fourteen first downs and gained 177 yards by rushing to the Eagles' 54. The winners' aerial attack netted them seventy-three yards.

Uram Scores on Pass.

Arnie Herber's passes, aided by an interference ruling, helped the Packers march seventy-four yards to take the lead in the first period after Franny Murray's twenty-one yard field goal had given the Eagles an edge. Herber threw two passes to Don Hutson that put the ball on the Eagles' 39. Hutson threw to Andy Uram on the go.l line.

Another drive in the second quarter, starting from their 49, carried the Packers to the Eagles' 7, where Philadelphia held. O'Brien ran off-tackle for twenty-three yards, but on the next play Charles Brock, substitute center, intercepted O'Brien's pass and ran forty-two yards for a touchdown.

The Packers moved seventy-seven yards in eight plays for their third touchdown in the third quarter. Hinkle ran twenty-four yards, picked up twelve more, then Isbell went off-tackle to the 12. Joe Laws picked up three and Hinkle went over standing up.

The Eagles Go to Work.

Starting from their own 27 late in the third quarter the Eagles drove seventy-three yards, the final play being O'Brien's twenty-three yard pass to Chuck Newton.

O'Brien recovered Isbell's fumble on the Eagle 38 to start a sixty-two yard Eagle drive for the final score. The big play was O'Brien's thirty-three yard flip to Bill Hewitt on the Packers' 4. Joe Bukant bucked over. Lineups:

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 12.—The New York Giants maintained their reputation as professional football's champion opportunists at the expense of the luckless Chicago Cardinals today.

A crowd of 28,217 in the Polo Grounds saw them carve out a 17 to 7 victory on a blocked punt, an intercepted pass, and a fifty-one yard punt return, all in the first 20 minutes.

The Cardinals scored the hard way, marching fifty-five yards for a touchdown late in the second quarter. Frank Patrick's passing barrage was a continual threat, but the alert Giant secondary snuffed out all other scoring opportunities. Altogether the Cardinals had six chances inside the Giants' 30 yard line but were able to capitalize on only one.

Giants Halt Long March.

A seventy-four yard march by the Cardinals in the first quarter, sparked by Bert Johnson's passes, bogged down on the Giants' 4 yard line. On another occasion they lost the ball on downs at the 25. Once a pass was intercepted on the New York 19 after the Cardinals had marched from their own 20 yard line. Twice the Chicago team was unsuccessful in field goal attempts. Bill Smith missing from the 38 yard line late in the second quarter, and George Faust from the 33 yard line in the fourth quarter.

The Cardinals had all the better of the statistics except for costly pass interceptions and punt returns.

Sabados Is Injured.

Andy Sabados of Aurora, Ill., first year guard for the Cardinals suffered a torn knee cartilage during the fourth period.

Frank Cope blocked Johnson's punt midway in the first period, the ball bouncing out of bounds on the Cardinal 17 yard line. Danowski passed to Jim Howell for fourteen yards and Hank Soar's end run brought the first touchdown. Soar added the extra point. On the first play after the next kickoff Len Barnum intercepted Johnson's pass on the Giant 46 yard line. Barnum passed to Leemans for ten yards, then on third down Barnum booted a field goal from the 47 yard line, longest scoring kick of the season in New York.

In the second quarter Leemans ran back Faust's punt fifty-one yards to the 7 yard line and on the second play thereafter Barnum passed to Leemans for a touchdown. Barnum kicked the extra point.

The Cardinals scored on a fifty-yard drive in which Milt Popovich ran twenty yards to the Giant 28 yard line. Faust ran fifteen more and Popovich seven. On fourth down Marshall Goldberg went across from the 3 yard line and Faust converted to complete the day's scoring.

Injured Kansas Football Player Leaves Hospital

Zale Battles Meleski in 10 Round Bout

Tony Zale, former Gary sectional Golden Gloves middleweight victor, who has knocked out his last three opponents, will seek to make it four straight in a 10 round bout against Eddie Meleski of the Catholic Youth organization in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, tonight. The agreed weight is 160 pounds, a mark which will be to Tony's advantage.

Zale weighed 158¾ when he floored Al Wardlow, also a Golden Gloves alumnus, for the count in Youngstown, O., Oct. 31. Meleski carried only 151¾ pounds in his losing effort against Milt Aron in the same arena last Aug. 7. However, Meleski expects to come in at least two pounds heavier on this occasion because of being idle since that battle, a fight which found Aron on the canvas in the first round.

Zale has the thought of a match with Champion Al Hostak beckoning soon to lead him on. Meleski, however, carries a powerful wallop which will make him dangerous as long as he remains in the fight.

Pete Ferrand, South Chicago junior welterweight, and Frankie Agnes will be contestants in a five round secondary attraction. Joey Spiegel, Milwaukee 142-pounder, and George Kontopolis will meet for four rounds, as will Tony De Pasquale and Annunzio Ferrara, welterweights, and Charley Banks and Luther Brent, light heavyweights.

Jack Cooper, who won the Illinois Athletic club amateur welterweight title as Jack Carter last January, has been matched to meet Aaron Wade, 1935 Peoria district Golden Gloves titleholder, in a five round event in White City Friday. . . . Wolcott Langford, who lost his eyesight as the result of a ring campaign which terminated 12 years ago, will know on Nov. 20 whether he will be able to see again. The former middleweight last Friday underwent an operation on his right eye which it is hoped will restore his sight. Dr. Sydney Walker performed the operation.

Izzy Kline, trainer for Max and Buddy Baer, has taken over the management of Maxie Doyle, Little Rock, Ark., heavyweight. Izzy also has signed to manage Bob Sikes, Pine Bluff, Ark., 135 pounder. F. M.

COLUMBIA YACHT CLUB AND NYE WIN IN REGATTAS

Columbia Yacht club crews defeated the University of Michigan's Sailing club team, 145¾ to 143¾, and Harry Nye Jr. captured the Horlick trophy in a series between Chicago Yacht club and Racine [Wis.] Yacht club crews in competition in Grant Park harbor yesterday. A northwest wind prevailed over the harbor courses.

High point scorers of the winning Columbia Yacht club team in the interstate regatta were Jack Holbrook and Mrs. Jerry Masek, skipper and crew, who won three of the eight races. J. J. Lewis, Stony Creek, Conn., and J. C. Shenstone, Toronto, Canada, led the University of Michigan crews.

Nye, with his wife, Betty, as crew, defeated 16 other crews in the third annual Horlick regatta. His winning score was 110½ points to the 109¾ accumulated by Lockwood M. Pirie, runner up.

Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis, national indoor champion, won the 40 lap main event midget auto race last night in the 124th field artillery armory, leading Duke Nalon of Chicago by two lengths at the finish. The time was 9 minutes and 45 seconds.

MacQuinn took the lead from Nalon on the third lap, opened a comfortable lead when Nalon spun on the fifth circuit, but Nalon came on again and was closing in at the finish. Tony Williman of Milwaukee was third; Ted Duncan of Chicago fourth, and Art Hartsfeld of Toledo fifth.

Nalon set a new one lap time trial mark of 13.16 seconds and a record of 2 minutes and 43 seconds in the first 12 lap qualifying race.

Hundreds of purebred dogs are being groomed to look their best for the annual fall dog show to be held by the Western Specialty Clubs association Nov. 25 and 26 in the Coliseum. Outstanding judges of the United States have been chosen to officiate in the rings and make the awards to the winning dogs. Ribbons, handsome trophies, and thousands of dollars in cash prizes go to the owners of the winning purebreds.

Twenty-four breeds and the same number of dog clubs will be represented in the show, which is the largest show of its kind in the United States. One of the guard and companion type of breeds being benched in the show is the standard schnauzer. Entries of this breed are being obtained by the Midwest Standard Schnauzer club, a member club of the Western Specialty association. In addition to schnauzers, collies, Great Danes, setters and other medium and large sized breeds, the show also will bench cocker spaniels, Boston terriers, wire haired terriers, Scottish terriers and a number of the smaller breeds which are popular as pets in America today.

N. U. Girls and a Referee Beat Frat Eleven

To the accompaniment of shrieks and screams from the entire sisterhood, the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority yesterday defeated the Delta Tau Delta fraternity, 15 to 7, in a touch football game at Northwestern university. A crowd of 1,500 watched the co-eds make two touchdowns and a safety.

In the interest of accuracy it should be added that the fraternity boys were handicapped by being required to pass and kick left handed and left footed and skip instead of run. John Haman, center of the Wildcat football team, and Jack Warnock, the officials, were accused by the Deltas of favoring the co-eds in assessing penalties.

Jean Grassett the Heroine.

Heroine of the game was Jean Grassett, captain and full back of the Theta team. She made two touchdowns on passes. She scored first after taking a fifteen yard pass from Barbara Freeman and running sixty yards to the goal. Her second touchdown came on a twenty yard run after catching a twenty yard pass. The safety came in the second quarter when Bill Erickson intercepted a pass behind the goal line and was tagged when he attempted to run it out. Erickson also ran eighty yards for a touchdown, but the score was not allowed by the officials who ruled that he ran part way instead of skipping.

And That Water Girl!

The biggest hand was reserved for the Theta water girl, a pretty blonde attired in varicolored pajamas. During the time-outs she ministered to the co-ed gridders with powder puffs and lipsticks.

Just to show that it was all in the spirit of good clean fun and no hard feelings, the fraternity boys entertained the sorority chapter at a buffet dinner after the game.

Legal Racing Bet Revenues Cited in Study

Not state politics, its usual field, but horse race betting information, now a lively topic in Chicago, is the subject of an announcement made yesterday by the Council of State Governments. The council, a quasi-governmental body of which Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri is president, has its headquarters on the University of Chicago's Midway, at 1313 East 60th street.

In 22 states, the council reported, pari-mutuel betting is legal, and in 10 of these states $7,975,311 was paid last year into state treasuries as taxes.

The council said that in those 10 states $213,033,313 was wagered legally by the pari-mutuel system—which does not take into consideration the millions or billions wagered illegally. The council said sponsors of the system in New York estimate it will produce $8,000,000 a year in taxes for the Empire state, and a million and a half for the treasury of New Jersey.

List Shows Wagers.

Voters in New York and New Jersey have approved the pari-mutuel system. This made the states the 21st and 22d ones to come under the system if the proper machinery can be put into effect.

The 10 states in which figures were available were listed by the council, together with the amounts wagered in 1938 in each state, the tax imposed by the state, and the state's share of race track money, including its share of admissions. The list follows:

	Total wagered.	State Tax.	State share.
Arkansas	$ 3,922,548	4%	$ 171,322
California	66,142,631	4%	2,661,142
Delaware	8,789,814	3%	360,681
Florida	34,932,022	3%	1,186,511
Maryland	29,222,534	1%	968,225
Massachusetts	27,122,162	3½%	1,294,549
New Hampshire	10,967,357	3½%	381,757
Rhode Island	24,262,571	3½%	832,690
Washington	5,508,393	5%	183,512
West Virginia	5,283,281	1%	74,532

The other states listed by the council as having legalized pari-mutuel betting, but which do not tax the bets, but get revenue instead from licenses and admissions, are Illinois, Kentucky, Nebraska, Ohio, Michigan, Oregon, North Carolina, New Mexico, South Carolina, and Nevada.

Council Called in Error.

The council is said to be slightly in error in the statement that all pari-mutuel bets are registered on a totalizer which calculates the odds. Turfmen said the calculating is done by experts, but is recorded on the odds board.

At the instance of United States Attorney William J. Campbell and State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, the Illinois Bell Telephone company last Thursday denied Chicago's bookies access to service direct from the tracks.

Yesterday Courtney and Campbell were awaiting the decision of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson on a plea for an injunction. It was explained that if the injunction is denied the American Telephone and Telegraph company and the Western Union Telegraph company will follow the lead of the Illinois Bell company and pari-mutuel news will not be sent over any of their wires to give information to any one wishing to bet outside a race track.

Judge Wilkerson is to hear arguments on the injunction Wednesday.

Mount Carmel of the south section and St. Ignatius of the north division will meet next Sunday for the football championship of the Catholic High School league. The winner of this game will play the Chicago Public High School league champion in Soldiers' field Dec. 2 in Mayor Edward J. Kelly's annual Christmas benefit game.

Mount Carmel, defending the Catholic title, retained its south section crown with a 27 to 13 triumph over De Paul academy yesterday on Stagg field. St. Ignatius, playing without its star half back, Ray McCaffery, gained the final round by turning back a St. George elcven which ruled the favorite, 19 to 12.

Pechous Scores Twice.

Joe Pechous was the star of the St. Ignatius victory, scoring two touchdowns, the first on the third play of the game on a 62 yard run. After this dash, Jacoby raced 30 yards for another touchdown to give St. Ignatius a 12 to 0 lead, but St. George cut this advantage before the half ended on Grimes' 18 yard end run. Pechous came back in the third period to count again, this time from the 3 yard line. O'Donnell added St. George's final touchdown on a 32 yard run.

Bob Quinn scored a pair of touchdowns and Frank Meakim and John Andrelich one each to lead the Mount Carmel attack against De Paul. Quinn scored his in the first and third quarters on short plunges. Mount Carmel led, 14 to 7, at half time and increased the margin to 20 to 7 at the conclusion of the third period.

St. Philip, Loyola Win.

In other league contests yesterday St. Philip won from St. Patrick, 13 to 7; Loyola defeated St. Mel, 13 to 6; Leo routed Weber, 40 to 6, and St. Rita rallied for a 12 to 6 triumph over De La Salle. Lineups:

St. Ignatius Has Its Troubles Even in Victory

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

St. Ignatius defeated St. George, 19 to 12, yesterday in Austin stadium to win the Catholic league north section football title, but had its anxious moments along the way. Here Trippichio of St. George blocks Spartz's punt in the second quarter while Schmidt (No. 37) looks on. Pechous starred in the St. Ignatius victory, scoring two touchdowns, one on a sixty-two yard run.

down with the ball on Northwestern's 14 yard line.

By this victory the Boilermakers have a new outlook for the Wisconsin and Indiana games. After defeats by Santa Clara and Iowa, Purdue apparently is headed toward the form displayed in the conference opener with Minnesota.

Gophers Turn on Power.

The Gophers turned on the power Saturday in Ann Arbor and blasted Michigan, 20 to 7. Obviously still suffering from their surprise defeat the week before at Illinois and with shattered morale, due in part to loss of their blocking ace, Forest Evashevski, the Wolverines were no match for the Gophers. George Franck and Harold Van Every paced the Gophers' attack. A fourth period touchdown by sophomore Bruce Smith followed the pattern cut out by his teammates.

This week, Iowa's test is Minnesota. The Gophers might be routed by passes and with Kinnick throwing the Hawkeyes may continue their astounding successes. Watching Michigan's futility against Minnesota, it scarcely can be understood how Iowa could have been beaten by Michigan, 27 to 7.

Indiana was beaten in New York by Fordham, 13 to 0, which may be considered a creditable showing in view of the Hoosiers' loss to Ohio State the preceding week, 24 to 0. With their sixth and final road trip this week to Michigan State, Indiana can begin thinking of its engagement in Bloomington with Purdue. On the result of this game depends the Hoosiers' chance for a first division berth. They have won two Big Ten games against Wisconsin and Illinois and lost two [Ohio State and Iowa].

Cornell Has Narrow Escape.

Cornell's narrow escape from being removed from the ranks of undefeated football teams and Dartmouth's loss to Princeton share top billing for eastern activity Saturday. Only by scoring two points after touchdowns—both by running, incidentally—was Cornell able to whip Colgate, 14 to 12. The try for the extra point was blocked after Cornell's first touchdown, but the ball was picked up and run over the goal line. A penalty on a missed kick after the second score permitted a second try, and this, too, was run over.

Dartmouth, already victorious over Yale and Harvard, failed to sweep the Big Three, an annual objective, when Princeton won, 9 to 7. The third period winning touchdown was made possible by a blocked kick, recovered on Dartmouth's 8 yard line, an offside penalty, and successful plunges for the remaining distance.

Pittsburgh regained early season form to win from Carnegie Tech, 6 to 0; Harvard surprised Army, 15 to 0, and Missouri paraded in New York, defeating New York university, 20 to 7.

Tulane Whips Alabama.

Tulane almost matched the size of Tennessee's victory over Alabama, winning 13 to 0. North Carolina and Duke won easily and advanced to their important game this week. Mississippi defeated Mississippi State, 27 to 7, but there was a mild surprise in Kentucky's loss to Georgia Tech, 13 to 6.

Texas Aggies marched on toward the Southwest conference championship by winning on a muddy field from Southern Methodist, 6 to 2. Southern California whipped Stanford, 33 to 0, and now gets a rest until its trip to Notre Dame.

Chicago Beats New York at Rugby, 24 to 9

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Larry Kelley, Yale's All-American end, came all the way from New York to Chicago yesterday to watch Jay Berwanger run. Berwanger, the University of Chicago's last All-American [and whose distinction in that particular appears to be in no immediate danger], did not disappoint Mr. Kelley nor the 10,000 chilled spectators in Soldiers' field.

Kelley was a member of the invading New York rugby football team, but he looked no different than the other 14 as the Chicago team paraded up and down the gridiron for a 24 to 9 victory. Berwanger, for a young man ailing from a charley horse, did a bit of all right. The one-time Maroon ran with all his old-time collegiate verve, bucking and twisting his way to three of the Chicago tries on spectacular runs.

Jay Has Plenty of Help.

Berwanger made the first and the last score, but in between some of his colleagues were matching his skill. Hamil Reidy, who owes his allegiance to Lehigh, made two tries [a try counts for 3 points]. Bob Childs of Yale chipped in with a try and added a drop kick worth 4 points. Alex Crawford, player-coach made the only conversion [two points].

Berwanger's only lack of skill was in trying for conversions after scores. He missed four kicks, three of them after the three scores in the first half, which ended 9 to 4.

New York's score in this period came on a neat drop kick by Woolsey Wheeler, also a Yale alumnus. Wheeler prevented the easterners from being blanked in the second period by scooping up a free ball and running 10 yards over the goal in the last minute of play.

The spills suffered by the players in the rapid fire action claimed only one serious casualty. Joe Smith of Dartmouth, the New York full back, was carried off the field late in the second half with an ankle injury.

Quality for Title Game.

The New Yorkers simply could not keep up with the terrific pace set by the Chicagoans, who by their victory qualified for a national championship game in Los Angeles next month against the Hollywood Light Horse team, their recent conquerors in the lake front arena.

The Chicago forces added a generous helping of football tactics to the rugby game. They spurned safety first methods of kicking the ball when surrounded by the blue shirted New Yorkers, making several spectacular runs and lateral passes that kept the ball in enemy territory most of the time.

Most spectacular scoring play came in the second half, when Reidy started a series of passes from his own 30 yard line and wound up in possession on the New York 10 yard line, from where he ran for a try. Berwanger's best offering was a twisting twenty-five yard run reminiscent of his Stagg field days. Lineups:

FRISINA TAKES FRENCH LICK GOLF MEET IN PLAYOFF

French Lick, Ind., Nov. 12 [Special].—James Frisina of Taylorville, Ill., scored a birdie 3 on the second hole of a play-off to win the first annual club champions event on the French Lick Springs hotel course. Russell Martin of Flossmoor, Chicago, the 18 hole leader, shot a par 72 today for a 36 hole total of 148, and Frisina, with 35—36—71 today, slipped into a tie.

They halved the first extra hole in 4s, but Frisina put his second shot five feet from the pin on the 383 yard second hole and holed the putt.

Allan Wood of Longwood, 78—79—157, and John Karben, Big Oaks, 77—78—155, tied for the next two places. Wilford Wehrle, Tam o' Shanter, won in the nonchampions division with 74—75—149.

COST OF ENTERING WAR FIGURED AT 30 BILLION A YEAR

Scale of Living Certain to Decline, Says Report.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—"While the loss of human life and liberties would be the greatest price we would pay in another war, the risk of inflation and ruinous taxation probably would mean a lower standard of living for generations to come."

This is the warning contained in a study, released today by the National Economy league, entitled: "Can We Afford Another War?"

Based on data compiled by the league's director, John C. Gebhart, the study concerns itself with the effect on our national credit, our money, and our tax burden which would result from American participation in another major war.

From a review of what past wars have cost us, it is asserted that the indirect and continuing costs are far greater than the costs of actual hostilities.

Costs Double and Triple.

For example, while our participation in the actual engagements of the world war cost us 24 billion dollars, the total cost to date has reached the staggering sum of 57 billion dollars, the report said. Therefore, it continues, it is not war itself, but the aftermath which puts such a heavy drain on a nation's resources.

The league maintains that while the indirect and continuing costs of war are important, the first impact would be financing of the direct cost of hostilities.

If we should be involved in a war similar to the world war, we know definitely that most of the important items would be much more costly than in 1917; battleships, airplanes, cargo steamers, and other important items would cost fully five times as much as they did in 1917.

30 Billions a Year.

Without attempting to offer any exact estimates, it is fair to assume that we should spend at least 30 billion dollars a year for our part in a major war, the league calculated.

Such a tremendous expense, added to our present swollen federal budgets and our staggering debt load, would have two immediate, serious consequences.

First, there would be a drastic increase in taxes all along the line, but falling most heavily on the low income groups.

Second, some degree of inflation involving depreciation in the value of our currency and a rapid rise in living costs far out of proportion to possible increases in earnings.

While the tax problem is an overwhelming one, the chief warning lies in our position now as compared with the time of our entrance into the last world war.

Warns of Inflation.

On this point Gebhart says:

"In 10 years of deficit financing we already have laid the foundation for serious inflation. So far this inflation has not been reflected in a serious rise in prices because production is lagging with 8 to 10 million men out of work and with little demand for the bank credit which has been piled up.

"If war comes, the situation will be changed. All of our productive resources will be pushed to the limit.

"Under such conditions a new debt of 30 billion dollars, sold largely to the banks, would plunge us into a serious inflation."

KILLS HIMSELF TO AVOID ARREST IN WIFE SHOOTING

Twelve hours after he shot and seriously wounded his wife, Enart Schmidt, 36 years old, returned last night to his apartment at 4729 North Troy street and fatally wounded himself when he found a police detail waiting to seize him. He died a few minutes later in Swedish Covenant hospital.

Shortly after 6 a. m., Schmidt had gone to the coffee shop in the Fort Dearborn hotel, Van Buren and La Salle streets, where his wife, Grace, 34, was employed as a waitress. He sat at the counter, ordered some coffee, and exchanged sharp words with her. Then he drew a pistol and fired twice, wounding her in the abdomen and left arm. Mrs. Schmidt, who was separated from her husband and living in the hotel, was taken to St. Luke's hospital.

Policemen Nicholas Downey and Philip Doherty were stationed inside Schmidt's apartment. They waited all day and finally heard him come up the rear steps to the back porch. Schmidt saw them, drew his gun, and fired one shot into his head.

3 BURN IN PLANE CRASH ON FLIGHT FROM GRID GAME

Farmhaven, Miss., Nov. 12 (AP).—Three men were killed here today when their airplane crashed in flames after circling a wooded area apparently in search of an emergency landing spot. The bodies were burned beyond recognition, but thru papers found in the wreckage the victims were believed to be H. P. Thompson of Los Angeles, Cal.; Elkins Crawford of West Memphis, Ark., and Pilot Sydnor Hall of Memphis, Tenn. The party apparently was en route back to Memphis from New Orleans after attending the Tulane-Alabama football game Saturday.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

U. S. PLANTS CAN TURN OUT 15,000 PLANES YEARLY

Ability to Expand Is Shown in Survey.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—The Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America today made public a survey of aircraft factory expansion which, it said, showed American plants could turn out 15,000 planes a year. Projects now under way, said John H. Jouett, president of the chamber, would result in even larger production capacity.

"Our survey," he explained, "included 43 airplane and 13 engine manufacturing plants. Of the 43 airplane plants, 23 are now working on orders for military equipment. The current capacity is 1,250 planes a month, equal to a rate of 15,000 machines a year.

Factory Space Increased.

"The airplane factory space increased from 6,000,000 square feet to 7,625,000 square feet during the first six months this year, an expansion of 27 per cent in manufacturing space. At the same time the aircraft engine factory space increased 334,000 square feet, a 20 per cent expansion. All that space is now in use."

Jouett said further that while some aircraft plants were working at full capacity, "others have not even approached their limit with single working shifts. When orders are received in sufficient volume to warrant it, the plants will go into three working shifts a day."

The chamber said that to obtain maximum output, standardization or "freezing" on a single model in one factory would be necessary. Some plants not working at top speed are still producing as many as seven or eight different types of planes.

Subcontracting Grows.

"Another factor which has increased plant capacity," said Jouett, "is the recent growth of the subcontracting system. Subcontracting in the past was a very small part of aircraft production, because the manufacturer could not guarantee the subcontractor continuous business, and the subcontractor could not tool up sufficiently to assure a return on his investment.

"With increased orders and the larger unit volume on each order, all plants in the industry which are not working on their own business and filling original orders of their own are available for subcontracting. In other words, this opens the entire manufacturing industry to full time production."

'ACME STEEL CO. WILL EXPAND AT $1,500,000 COST

Acme Steel company, Chicago manufacturer of hot and cold strip and other specialty steels, will expand its Riverdale plant at a cost of about $1,500,000, officials disclosed yesterday. They said the improvements involve principally new cold rolling and scale removal equipment. The expansion work is scheduled to begin immediately and the new facilities are expected to go into operation late in 1940.

Airways Agree to Arbitrate Own Disputes

To assure continued progress of the nation's air lines, a permanent plan has been devised for prompt settlement of disputes between members of the industry, Edgar S. Gorrell, president of the Air Transport Association of America, announced yesterday.

Edgar S. Gorrell.

The A. T. A. dealt with disputes for four years thru mediation committees composed of representatives of the air lines. Separate groups ruled on differences in various fields as they came up. This arrangement had the disadvantage of making some committee members feel that they were "on the spot," and it lacked "teeth" for enforcement, Gorrell said.

Arbitration Association to Act.

Under the new system disputes will be handled by the American Arbitration association, which maintains a network of tribunals thruout the country for settlement of commercial controversies out of court. An agreement signed by the air lines provides that the decisions of the arbitrators are to be final and binding. Orders can be enforced by the power of arbitrators to assess damages for refusal to obey.

Among the typical trade questions which arbitration boards will be called upon to consider are the following:

Agreements for mutual use of equipment and facilities; restrictions upon questionable advertising terms and practices; standardization of flight procedure; regulations concerning nonscheduled flights and maintenance of adequate schedules.

An innovation is a clause giving the arbitration boards power to interpret agreements between air carriers even tho no dispute has arisen.

Industry Opposes Regimentation.

"The new procedure will prevent occasions from arising for court action," Gorrell said. "It will save the industry's progress. Methods should be as modern as air line equipment.

"As long as an industry can govern itself there is neither need nor excuse for government regimentation. The air lines are policing themselves, and will improve the job they are now doing."

Jurisdiction of the civil aeronautics authority will not be affected. The federal agency deals with all questions of rates, routes, safety, and mail transportation.

National Parley Will Seek to Promote Private Building

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12 (AP).—A national construction conference of trade associations and local business groups, called to find means of promoting private building, will open a two day session here tomorrow. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in announcing the meeting, said that the conferees also would include representatives of labor unions, government agencies, suppliers of material, and real estate and financing institutions.

ONCE LIGHTLY TAXED, AMERICA IS LOADED NOW

'38 Ratio 3d Highest of Leading Nations.

New York, Nov. 12 [Special].—The most lightly taxed nation in the world only a decade ago, the United States later lost that distinction and in 1938 was one of the most heavily taxed, it was shown today in a survey by the National Industrial Conference Board, Inc. The board is a privately financed research organization.

In 1928 only 12.3 per cent of the United States national income was collected as taxes. The ratios in other leading countries were 14 per cent for Canada, 22.8 per cent for Great Britain, 19.1 per cent for Germany, 27.3 per cent for France, and about 18 per cent for Italy, the survey revealed.

Third Highest Last Year.

By 1938, however, the ratio of tax collections to national income in the United States had risen to 22.4 per cent, while the ratios of the other nations in that year were: Canada, 20.7; Great Britain, 21.7; Germany, 26.2; France, 23.3, and Italy, about 21.5 per cent. This meant that only two of these nations were more heavily taxed than America.

The higher ratios of tax collections to national income reflect the increased rôle of government in economic affairs, the board said.

"They also suggest that the reserve of tax paying power possessed by the principal nations is now relatively much smaller than it was a quarter of a century ago," it added.

Per Capita Debt Soars.

In respect to per capita public debt, the United States also has lost its favorable position among the nations, the survey showed. In 1913 the per capita obligations of all government units in this country amounted to $59.28, the lowest figure by a wide margin among those of the countries studied.

By 1938 the per capita debt had increased to $432.65, a gain of 630 per cent, and had passed the per capita debts of Germany, France, and Italy.

BOND DEPOSITS IN N. Y. TRANSIT PROGRAM LAG

New York, Nov. 12 [Special].—Holders of the bonds and preferred stocks of Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit corporation and Brooklyn and Queens Transit corporation will receive tomorrow an official company statement showing that deposits of these securities, as required in the $175,000,000 unification agreement with the city, are far below the 90 per cent minimum needed to make the plan operative.

The amount of bonds deposited is 56.5 per cent of the total of $154,671,000 outstanding in the hands of the public, the statement shows. In addition 136,088 shares of B. M. T. preferred stock, or 54.6 per cent of the 249,468 shares outstanding, and 72,432 shares of B. Q. T. preferred stock, or 48.6 per cent of the 149,217 shares outstanding, have been deposited.

Deposits under the agreement must be made by the close of business on Nov. 30.

LARGER PROFITS SHOWN THIS YEAR FOR GREYHOUND

The Greyhound system yesterday reported consolidated profit of $7,950,984 for the first nine months of 1939, compared with $6,498,092 for the corresponding 1938 period.

After deductions for preferred and common stocks of subsidiaries' consolidated, the net income applicable to stock of Greyhound corporation was $5,315,250, equal to $1.92 a common share, compared with $4,391,251, or $1.59 a share, in the first nine months of last year.

Texas Gulf Producing company had a profit of $414,237, equal to 46 cents each on 888,144 shares of stock, in the nine months ended Sept. 30, against $566,445, or 63 cents a share, in the 1938 period.

WOOL STOCK CUT SINCE AUGUST; PRICE UP 50 PCT.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12 [Special].—An increase of nearly 50 per cent in wool prices since August was reported today by the bureau of agricultural economics in its annual report on the outlook of the sheep, lamb, and wool industry.

Increased domestic and foreign demand for wool as a result of the European war and reduced domestic supplies will tend to hold domestic wool prices at higher levels in 1940, the bureau predicted. The rise in prices since August was attributed in part to these conditions.

The bureau forecast that the number of sheep on farms and ranches at the beginning of 1940 would be approximately the same as at the beginning of 1939.

STOCKS CRASHED DECADE AGO; FEW ARE HIGHER NOW

Representative Issues Compared in Price.

Ten years ago the stock market suffered one of its darkest days and the country entered the most severe depression in its history. Two weeks before, Oct. 28 and 29, the initial breaks in the market had cast their shadows of coming events.

Breaking sharply on Nov. 12 and 13, the market momentarily rallied on Nov. 14.

Rockefeller Buying Unfounded.

A report that John D. Rockefeller had ordered his brokers to buy a million shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey at $60 a share became widely circulated. The rumor was proved false and the market dropped again.

Out of 16 representative stocks of 1929, two were not traded last Friday [market closed Saturday], 12 showed decreases from Nov. 12, 1929, prices—some almost to the vanishing point—and only two have risen in price.

FIFTH IN STEEL.

How does the National Steel corporation rank in the industry? Please give me its earnings in the last few years.—K. F.

Answer: National Steel corporation is the fifth largest steel maker in the country. It has attained the position of a major producer by its program of plant building and improvement in the last four years, on which it has spent more than $65,000,000.

With ingot capacity of 3,400,000 tons a year, the company concentrates on production of the lighter forms of steel—sheets, strips, and tin plate. It is the second ranking producer of tin plate.

National Steel is a low-cost producer. Its plants are close to both consuming markets and raw materials. With its subsidiaries, it is thoroly integrated from mining and transportation of iron ore and coal thru the making of pig iron, steel ingots and producing the finished products. The company controls iron ore reserves sufficient for 50 years' needs.

Most of the recent plant expansion has been at the Detroit works of the company. Other plants are at Weirton, W. Va., and Steubenville, O.

National Steel is dependent substantially on the automobile industry, which takes one-third of its finished steel. Other important consumers are the building, railroad equipment, refrigerator, metal furniture, and tin container industries.

Formed in November, 1929, after the stock market collapse, National Steel holds the unique position among the large steel companies of having weathered the last nine years without a loss. The record of those years follows:

	Net income.	Inc. per shr.	Paid per shr.
1930	$ 8,415,822	$3.91	$2.00
1931	4,443,324	2.06	2.00
1932	1,662,920	.77	.75
1933	2,812,407	1.30	.624
1934	6,050,722	2.81	1.00
1935	11,136,452	5.16	1.50
1936	12,541,842	5.80	3.12½
1937	17,801,893	8.21	3.50
1938	6,661,852	3.03	1.00

Interest on the funded debt of the company, which totaled $66,148,000 at the end of 1938, always has been covered amply. Interest charges in 1938 were earned 3.81 times; in 1937, 9.15, and in 1936, 6.78 times.

Improved earnings, especially in the third quarter, raised net income in the first nine months this year to $7,289,305, equal to $3.31 a share, from $3,908,495, or $1.80 a share, in the same period of 1938. Three dividends of 40 cents each, the last on Sept. 30, were paid thus far in 1939.

Capital stock of the company consists of 2,199,067 shares of $25 par common stock, listed on the New York Stock exchange. Current assets shown on the March 31, 1939, balance sheet amounted to $49,959,182, against current liabilities of $11,411,513. Total assets were $207,101,508.

N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE SEEKS TAX REFORM TO HALT LOSS OF TRADE

New York, Nov. 12 [Special.]—The New York Stock exchange is preparing to make its annual appeal to the New York state legislature soon after the turn of the year for further relief from what it considers the discriminatory effect of the state stock transfer tax, it was learned today.

William Martin Jr.

A special tax committee of the stock exchange has been working on a new approach to the problem, and will present evidence to the legislature that the high transfer tax in this state has resulted in shifting stock trading to other exchanges, including the Chicago Stock exchange.

Similar appeals to the legislature have been made by the New York exchange in the last few years and while some minor concessions have been obtained, they have not been sufficient to stem the trend of business to other financial centers. Last year, William Martin Jr., president of the exchange, appeared before a joint committee of the legislature to present the case and he again is leading the effort to get action.

The manner in which out-of-town exchanges have taken advantage of the New York stock transfer tax to advertise the advantages of "dealing at home" has been a matter of considerable concern to officials of the exchange here.

STEEL LEADERS EXPECT OUTPUT TO HOLD STEADY

The nation's steel industry, fortified with a heavy backlog of orders, particularly in flat rolled steel, for early 1940 delivery, expects no marked drop in production with the turn of the year, the magazine Steel reported yesterday.

The European situation, lower scrap prices and temporary national economic committee monopoly hearings have diminished the likelihood of higher prices, however, Steel reported. Steel buyers report no letdown in immediate needs, but are inactive in making forward commitments.

Scrap prices have eased further in a relatively quiet market. The price composite declined 50 cents last week to $20.33, bringing quotations back to the late September level and comparing with the recent peak of $22.16.

TUNGSTEN STEEL MAKER PLEDGES NO PRICE BOOST

McKeesport, Pa., Nov. 12 (AP).—The Firth-Sterling Steel company announced today it would maintain current prices on tungsten high speed tool steel for 1940, and declared the immediate objective was to "refute disturbing rumors of an imminent price increase" because of war demand.

The statement said, however, that the price guarantee would be subject to change should there be a general wage increase thruout the tool steel industry. In that event, only such increase as would cover the higher costs of labor would be considered, it added.

Chicago's Business Holds on Even Plane Last Week

Business in Chicago held steady last week, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. Wholesale commitments for holiday season merchandise were made in larger volume than last year, and retailers reported a good business in cold weather goods, the association said. Industrial employment was reported to be increasing.

Ship and Grain Men Row Over Storage Rates

Cleveland, O., Nov. 12 [Special].—Grain shippers and vessel operators are engaged in a battle over rates, and chartering of storage tonnage is at a virtual standstill, it was reported today.

Approximately 25 freighters have been lined up to load storage grain late this month, but efforts to charter additional tonnage have proved futile. A majority of the vessels already under charter were lined up at upper lake ports to hold at Buffalo at 6 cents. Brokers now are attempting to line up capacity at 5 cents, but vessel operators aren't interested.

The rate remained steady from early last month until the middle of last week, when one vessel owner reportedly chartered two boats at 5½ cents.

Record Storage Fleet Expected.

A record storage fleet is expected to hold cargoes at lower lake ports, due to congestion in elevators, but carriers will not be ready to report for grain until they have fulfilled ore contracts. Buffalo, Erie, Toledo, and Cleveland harbors will house the storage grain fleet, but some vessels may load grain and winter at upper lake ports if weather conditions become unfavorable.

The railroad embargo on grain shipments to Fort William and Port Arthur has curtailed the movement and a slight decrease was recorded in stocks at the Canadian ports in the week ended Nov. 4. Vessels loaded 4,822,299 bushels of wheat, 515,991 bushels of oats, 272,773 bushels of barley, 18,136 bushels of flaxseed, and 165,716 bushels of rye. Receipts totaled 3,966,099 bushels of wheat, 1,043,844 bushels of oats, 706,901 bushels of barley, and 92,468 bushels of flax.

Hold Large Stocks of Grain.

At the close of the week Fort William and Port Arthur elevators were holding 76,738,889 bushels of wheat, 2,583,899 bushels of oats, 2,248,052 bushels of barley, 218,900 bushels of flaxseed, and 714,182 bushels of rye.

A 45,000,000 ton ore movement was assured when vessels brought 9,201,249 tons of ore down the lakes last month. It represented the largest October movement since 1928. Shipments are 21,811,864 tons heavier than in the corresponding period last year.

Pittsburgh Steamship company vessels will load cargoes as late as Nov. 20, it was learned today. The United States Steel corporation subsidiary previously had intended to start laying up its fleet on Nov. 15. Other fleets may load ore until the end of the month.

BRITISH BUYING BOOMS CANADA WHEAT EXPORTS

Pact for a Set Price in War Rumored.

Export business in Canadian wheat boomed last week as Great Britain bought large quantities of the vital foodstuff. Total sales of Manitoba wheat to Britain during the week were placed at nearly 8,000,000 bushels.

Britain also was reported to have bought 5,000,000 bushels of Argentine wheat, altho this report could not be confirmed. If true, it would bring total British purchases of Argentine wheat to more than 12,000,000 bushels in two weeks.

In midweek there were reports that Britain and Canada might come to an agreement whereby Canadian wheat would be sold to the United Kingdom at a set price, probably for the duration of the war.

Recall Winnipeg Closing.

As the week closed, no further developments had been reported, but members of the grain trade were wondering if the Winnipeg Grain exchange would be closed, as it was in the latter part of the world war, when a similar deal was made.

Grain men said Canada was in no position to haggle over terms with Britain. Granaries and elevators are choked with the largest visible supply of wheat on record—about 335,445,000 bushels. It is estimated that 25,000,000 bushels will be stored in lake vessels this winter.
